Statute For Free Trieste Adopted

Russia, Other Slavic Nations Are Defeated

25 Separate Votes Necessary To Cover Two-Page French Proposal

PEACE COMMISSION INVOKES GAG RULE

Yugoslavia Charges U. S., Britain With Betraying Big Four Pact

PARIS, Thursday, Oct. 3—(AP)—A peace conference commission adopted today, over the solid opposition of the Slavic bloc, the broad principles of a western-backed statute for the free territory of Trieste.

Balloting at Soviet demand, sometimes on single words, in a French proposal setting forth the broad outlines for governing the free zone at the head of the Adriatic, the delegates voted on nearly every occasion along straight East-West lines.

Twenty-five separate votes were necessary to cover the two-page French proposal which the Soviet Union and other Slavic nations fought with every parliamentary means at their disposal.

The voting came after Yugoslavia charged the United States and Britain with betraying the Big Four agreement on Trieste in order to establish a British-American military base on the Adriatic.

Gag Rule Applied

The Yugoslav delegate, Dr. Mosha Pijade, said it was too late for the conference to do anything about settling the East-West dispute over the projected international zone.

He declared that the whole problem should be sent to the Council of Foreign Ministers with a statement that the conference could not reach an agreement and with a request that the Big Four find a solution in conjunction with Yugoslavia.

With the deadline for a decision on the statute for the Trieste international zone almost at hand, the Italian Economic Commission applied the most stringent gag rule yet in the conference—limitation of each subject to 45 minutes with only one speaker allowed to speak 10 minutes for a measure and one against.

The new rule was invoked in an effort to speed up the work of the Italian Economic Commission, which has lagged farthest behind in its work.

Commission Meets Twice

The commission met twice yesterday in sessions that saw the Yugoslav delegate launch a violent tirade against the United States and Britain, who favor giving considerable authority to a United Nations-appointed governor to rule Trieste.

Pijade's most violent terms were reserved for his comment on an American proposal to codify the decisions of principle reached by the Foreign Ministers Council on Trieste.

He called the proposal a "facade" masking the true western designs of creating a United States-British base at the Adriatic port for future action. He did not say against whom the action was to be directed.

Under the new gag rule Pijade was limited to 10 minutes for his speech, but when Chairman Lief Egeland, of South Africa, rapped at the end of that period and called on another speaker, the Yugoslav refused to cease and continued his attacks.

British Delegate Gladwyn Jebb moved that Pijade be given two

Baruch Says Wallace Has Failed To Admit "Errors" About Atom Control Plan

Hull's Condition Now Critical, Navy Department Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—The Navy Department reported tonight that the condition of Cordell Hull, previously described as serious, has become "critical."

The Navy made public shortly after 10 p. m., EST, a bulletin from the Bethesda Naval Hospital which said:

"Mr. Hull's condition, which has been serious, is now considered to have become critical.

Earlier, fear for the life of the former Secretary of State had mounted as he failed to rally from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Former Commerce Secretary Accused Of Creating "Confusion"

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch tonight charged Henry A. Wallace with creating "confusion and division among our people" by failing to correct what he said were "errors" about the United States atomic energy control plan in Wallace's July letter on foreign policy.

Baruch, the United States delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, also told a news conference that Wallace personally admitted to him he was in error at a meeting in Baruch's office in Manhatan. But, Baruch added, Wallace later did not sign a statement admitting the errors which was prepared by a representative of Wallace and Baruch's staff after their talk here last Friday.

Baruch said that "in view of the misinformation that has been spread and continuously spread and in view of the fact that Wallace admitted he was in error and despite my continued efforts to have him do so, he has refused to correct the errors, which he said were caused by the fact he was not fully informed, it was forced to put out the statement."

Baruch Releases Statement

With that Baruch released the statement which he said Wallace would not sign; a statement on the matter which Wallace proposed to Baruch, and a memorandum for President Truman from Baruch on the points raised in Wallace's July 3 letter.

Baruch also released a telegram which he sent this afternoon to Wallace in Washington after, he said, attempting until late in the day to have Wallace agree to sign the statement prepared in New York.

In the telegram, Baruch said:

"When you left me Friday afternoon, after three hours of discussion, you said that you had regretted your failure to have talked with the American delegation to the Atomic Energy Commission before composing your letter to the President, which you wrote on July 23. You also volunteered your approval of the course we have been following on each of the points covered in my memorandum to the President.

Statement Drawn Up

"After our discussion, you instructed your associate, Mr. Philip Hauser (former deputy chief of the Census Bureau and later assistant to the Secretary of Commerce) to get together with Mr. Herbert Swope, one of my associates, to draw up a statement indicating the mistakes in your letter and showing your approval of our position based on your full understanding of the facts. After several hours they succeeded in drafting a proposed statement for your signature. It was wholly agreeable to your representative and accepted by me and my group. I assured my colleagues of my conviction that you would carry out what was regarded as a fair expression of your attitude as stated to me on Friday morning. I now find I was quite wrong.

"We were unable to reach you Friday night, Saturday, or Sunday, and it wasn't until late Monday that I heard from you. In the proposed statement which you telephoned me on Monday afternoon, you failed to say you had not been fully informed, nor did you express approval of the course I have been following on the points originally criticized by you. Instead, you proceeded to discuss other questions that had no bearing upon the misstatements regarding atomic energy contained in your letter to the President.

News Blackout Over Nuernberg Jail Is Imposed

Nazi Leaders Ask To Be Shot Instead Of Hanged; Precautions Taken

NUERNBERG, Germany, Oct. 2 (AP)—The United States Army imposed a news blackout tonight over the heavily guarded Nuernberg courthouse and jail, after a tense day during which defense attorneys pressed final pleas to save Adolf Hilter's doomed henchmen from the ignominty of the gallows.

A four-power commission, meeting in the courthouse, drew up its recommendations on details of the scheduled hangings October 16 of Hermann Goering and 10 other top-ranking Nazis convicted yesterday.

The recommendations, which also dealt with the confinement of seven other Nazis sentenced to prison terms, will be rushed to Berlin for approval of the Allied Control Council.

The news clampdown obscured happenings within the prison, where unusual precautions were reported taken to prevent suicide by any of the once-cocky and resplendent Nazis who teamed with Hilter in waging the most destructive war in the history of mankind.

Attorneys for all the defendants sentenced to death filed appeals with the Allied Control Council to commute the sentences. It was believed, however, that the appeals would be denied.

The lawyers said that if the council rejected the commutation pleas, they would ask all the doomed prisoners be granted the last request of dying before a firing squad, rather than on the gallows.

The American Army doubled its security guard and gave orders to shoot to kill at any provocation. A protective barrier also was thrown around a courthouse corridor, where three acquitted defendants—Hjalmar Schacht, Franz Von Papen and Hans Fritzsche—waited their formal release.

The rushing of German attorneys in and out of the court started rumor after rumor, few of which could be confirmed.

One rumor was that each condemned Nazi had been ordered handcuffed to a military policeman continuously until the executions.

German civil authorities were reported to have filed petitions asking for the custody of Schacht, Von Papen and Fritzsche, so that the trio could be brought before German denazifaction boards and sentenced to prison. Acquittal of the three touched off protests in many quarters.

CONEY ISLAND FIRE—Firemen are shown battling flames in the abandoned section of Luna Park on New York's Coney Island yesterday. A number of buildings which had been condemned to make way for a veterans' housing project were destroyed. The fire apparently was caused by a spark from an acetylene torch in the hands of workmen dismantling the "Mile Sky Ride."

New Training Plan Offered By U. S. Army

Proposal Is Broader Than Legion Favors; Bradley Raps Stelle

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2 (AP)—Secretary of War Robert Patterson disclosed before the American Legion today a new universal military training plan, broader in its basic phase than the Legion favored, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley took the Legion's commander sharply to task for his criticism of the Veterans' Administration.

The Legion, on hearing Patterson's plan to qualify 1,000,000 youths of 18 to 20 annually with basic military camp training of six months a requirement, issued a headquarters release stating that four months was sufficient. However, Patterson already had said four months would "not suffice to give the country the security it needs in trained manpower."

Gen. Bradley, who had been accused before the Legion by National Commander John Stelle of "breaking faith" by approving a $200 ceiling for on-the-job veteran training, said Stelle "has impaired our progress by misrepresenting our objectives."

Pay Ceiling Prevents Profiteering

"What we have been able to accomplish during this year in the Veterans' Administration has been achieved not because of but in spite of your national commander."

Bradley said the ceiling for on-the job veteran training "prevents a privileged minority of veterans from profiting unfairly by the G. I. bill."

Patterson, carefully treating the four-months view on the universal military training plan as one held by "some quarters of the Legion" urged the Legion to back the whole plan.

Patterson said the plan was essential to keep the nation a respected power in peace and observed "in these days it is the unarmed transport plane, not the Flying Fortress, that gets shot down."

Respectable military strength "will give pause to any power overseas," he said after his implied reference to the shooting down of a plane over Yugoslavia which cost five American lives and drew an apology from Marshal Tito.

Hershey Supports Plea

Patterson, whose plea for universal military training was backed in another address by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, wartime director of Selective Service, said recent experience has taught anew "that military weakness is nothing but an invitation to be pushed around and assaulted by ambitious dictators."

Patterson outlined a proposal whose features included:

Six months continuous training at military camps with a variety of optionals for the other six months including going to college with government aid and taking ROTC training.

The acquisition by the plan of 1,000,000 men yearly with 726,000 going to the Army and air, and the rest to the Navy.

Retention by those affected of civilian status with the system under a civilian organization and the trainees governed by a specially drawn cost of conduct.

Adm. William F. Halsey, who led naval forces across the Pacific to bombardment of Japan's shores, told the Legion in a prepared address that the future Navy, emphasizing large submersibles able to launch missiles from underwater, will be capable of "an atomic counter-attack."

New Naval Era Looms

He urged separate research departments for the Navy, Army and air arms but did not touch upon the larger question of a single department of national defense. Secretary Patterson urged support of the single department.

Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan assured his audience that naval research already promises a new naval era, helped by the atom bomb tests at Bikini.

Negotiations Will Continue This Morning

"Continuous Sessions" Recessed Amid Uncertainty And Confusion

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS HAVE LITTLE TO SAY

Unions Accused Of Leaving Idle Ships In "Hazardous" Condition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — A compromise plan involving a separate East coast agreement in the maritime strike ran into a snag tonight, but negotiations will be resumed tomorrow.

The Labor Department announced another session at 10 a. m. (EST) and said the talks definitely have not broken down.

Government officials who were talking optimistically this morning of an early settlement were saying little or nothing tonight.

What had started out to be "continuous sessions" to drive home an agreement were recessed at 7:10 p. m. amid uncertainty and confusion.

At the same time East coast ship owners added a note of urgency to the two-day-old strike by asking the Coast Guard to do something about idle ships left in "hazardous" condition because — the operators said —two unions representing captains, mates and engineroom officers refused to set proper security watches.

Plan Never Announced

The compromise plan has never been announced by the Labor Department, but this version was pieced together by reporters after talking with numerous persons in the negotiations:

The two unions, CIO Marine Engineers and AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots, were to sign separate agreements with East coast ship owners including the preferential hiring of union members and "maintenance of membership"—meaning men who join the union must remain members or lose their jobs — for all the eastern companies.

Then the Maritime Commission was to have ordered the same terms put into effect on government vessels in the Pacific. This presumably would leave Pacific coast ship owners, who have flatly refused to grant the hiring and membership clauses, out in the cold in their strictly private operations.

But, according to the version given by those present, the West coast portion of the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots, represented here by Capt. C. W. May, balked at the arrangement. Capt. May was represented as insisting that the hiring and membership clauses must be accepted in both government and private operations in the Pacific.

Schwellenbach Talks With May

Labor Secretary Schwellenbach himself was reported to have talked to Capt. May at length this afternoon without changing May's position.

Union leaders and spokesmen for the Pacific ship owners grew more bitter toward one another as the day progressed. Marion Plant, attorney for the Pacific American Ship Owners Association, denounced the union demands at a news conference. Capt. Harry Martin, president of the Masters, Mates and Pilots, countered tonight by telling reporters:

"The West coast operators have not made any efforts whatever to meet any of our demands. They have made no counteroffer on wages

UMW Authorizes Holiday In Honor Of John L. Lewis

Convention Votes Union Chieftain Unspecified Salary Boost

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 2 (AP) — The United Mine Workers convention today voted John L. Lewis an "appropriate" but unspecified boost in his $25,000 annual salary and authorized a national work holiday in his honor—possibly on February 12.

Lewis was born on Lincoln's Birthday 66 years ago. Although the convention did not specify what day should be selected at the 1948 conclave, when the constitution can be changed, Secretary Treasurer Thomas Kennedy said the present anthracite contract sets aside that date for observance of "John L. Lewis Day."

Miners in the anthracite area of Pennsylvania now observe October 29 as John Mitchell Day, in honor of the UMW president who led the anthracite strike of 1902.

Because the union can not amend its constitution this year, the 2,800 delegates authorized the International Executive Board to make such salary increases "as it thinks appropriate' for 1946, 1947 and 1948, for Lewis and his top associates, including members of the board itself.

Atlanta, Ga., Newspaper Says Nip Scientists Who Developed Weapon Are Soviet Prisoners

ATLANTA, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Atlanta Constitution said tonight in a copyrighted story that Japan developed and successfully tested an atomic bomb three days before the war ended and that "Japanese scientists who developed the bomb are now in Moscow, prisoners of the Russians."

The story was written by David Snell, former Constitution reporter recently returned from service with the Twenty-Fourth Criminal Investigation Detachment operating in Korea. He gave as the basis of his story an interview with a Japanese officer who said he was in charge of counterespionage at the atomic developing project in Korea.

The Constitution story said that Japan "destroyed unfinished atomic bombs, secret papers and her atomic bomb plant only hours before the advance units of the Russian army moved into Konan, Korea, site of the project."

After removal of the captured scientists to Moscow, the story related, the Russians brought pressure on them to learn the "atomic 'know how.'"

"I learned this information from a Japanese officer," Snell related. "He gave names, dates, facts and figures on the Japanese atomic project, which I submitted to United States Army Intelligence in Seoul.

Army "Withholds" Information

"The War Department is withholding much of the information. To protect the man who told me this story, and at the request of the Army, he is here given a pseudonym, Capt. Tsetusuo Wakabayashi."

Stars Will Seek AFL Arbitration Of Movie Dispute

Violence Slackens From Tuesday's Bloody Riots Outside Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2 (AP) — As violence slackened from yesterday's bloody riots, the Screen Actors Guild disclosed tonight it will send 10 of Hollywood's top stars to Chicago next week to plead for AFL arbitration of the current movie labor disputes.

Robert Taylor, Walter Pigdeon, Robert Montgomery, Gene Kelly, Edward Arnold, George Murphy, Dick Powell, Ronald Regan, Jane Wyman and June Allyson will present the SAG's plea to the American Federation of Labor's convention and President William Green.

The announcement came shortly after the Association of Motion Picture Producers disclosed that carpenters and painters at Republic Studio had been discharged for failure to work on sets built by rival AFL unionists. This brought to 10—the entire membership of the AMPP—studios which have fired employes for refusal to work.

Officers Keeps Order

World Press Criticizes Nuernberg Sentences Of Nazis As "Too Soft"

[By The Associated Press]

The foreign press formed an almost solid bloc Wednesday in criticizing the Nuernberg sentences of Nazis as "too soft."

Most of the criticism abroad centered on the acquittal of Franz Von Papen, Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritzsche and the failure to send Rudolf Hess to the gallows along with Hermann Goering and the 10 other Nazi ringleaders now in captivity.

Many editors in the United States press, too, expressed misgivings regarding the acquittal of the three but in general hailed the verdict as a possible deterrent to future aggressors.

Part of the British press also viewed the acquittals with "astonishment" but in general expressed approval of the result.

From Germany itself came the bitterest criticism.

The French-licensed newspaper Kurier reported that demonstrations had occurred in the Russian sector of Berlin in which a group of young people marched through the streets crying "We demand death for all war criminals."

Near the entrance to the Berlin Opera someone had painted on the pavement a gallows with a hanging corpse, with the inscription, "All twenty-two must hang."

The Russian-licensed Night Express carried the streamer, "The German People Protest" and printed columns of criticism of the verdicts and sentences.

All Berlin newspapers—American and British-licensed as well as Russian-controlled — maintained that Schacht, Von Papen and Fritzsche, although acquitted, are "guilty in the eyes of the German people."

This unanimity was unique in that it was perhaps the first time that there was agreement among the papers of the western powers and Russia on a major political issue.

AFL Truckers Defy Pittsburgh Union

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2. (AP)—AFL coal truck drivers today ignored picket lines to deliver fuel to a big steam heating company subsidiary of the struck Duquesne Light Company in the first open defiance of independent union efforts to throttle operations of the firm.

The truckers drove through picket lines at the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company plant as the ninth day of the power strike found this city's economic life badly disrupted. Police were called when trouble threatened, but the incident passed off with only bitter remarks by the rival unionists.

Action by the truckers followed announcement by the heating firm that service would be suspended tonight to 384 downtown business buildings. This announcement created a new obstacle to makeshift efforts to maintain "business as usual."

A spokesman for the heating firm said deliveries by truckers refusing to honor the picket lines were not sufficient to maintain operation.

Expert Says:

"Meat-Eating Is Just A Habit"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—John L. Lewis says if his miners can't get meat, they can't mine coal.

Many manual laborers have protested, "No meat, no work."

Are they right or are they wrong?

Wrong, said a Department of Agriculture nutrition expert today.

"What they mean is, they like meat, they prefer meat, they've got the meat-eating habit," Dr. Esther Phipard told a reporter.

"But they certainly don't have to have meat to do hard work."

Whereupon Dr. Phipard grabbed some impressive books off a nearby shelf and read some impressive sounding stuff by other experts.

They all said that meat's okay but not positively essential.

Dr. Phipard said any number of combinations of foods will do the job nicely. Just put in plenty of eggs, milk, fish, dreid beans, peas, peanuts, peanut butter and whole grain foods.

She said many a worker thinks his labor is directly tied up with his meat, or protein, supply. Actually it's calories that he needs, and he can get them just as well from carbohydrates.

But Dr. Phipard admitted its difficult to keep meatless menus interesting. And in the case of miners and other workers, lunch boxes can be a grade A problem.

"But mostly it's the habit," she said. "Habitually we're a meat-eating nation."

Maryland Meat Search Ordered

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—On orders from Gov. O'Conor, the food and drug bureau of the State Department of Health will survey food storage establishments to determine if any large supplies of meat are being held off the market.

He said, however, that a preliminary investigation showed there was not much chance of coming up with such meat bonanzas as were discovered in similar searches recently in New York and Boston.

Just how much may be stored in Maryland in privately-owned or rented lockers is not known, nor can it be ascertained definitely, since the health department does not have access to such storage places, it was said.

Painter Is Accused Of Running Down Expectant Mother In Test Of Love

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 2 (AP)—A hit-run driver was charged by state's attorneys today with deliberately running down an expectant mother, causing the premature birth of her child, for no other reason than to test the love of a woman riding with him.

Police investigators labeled the crime one of the most brutal they had encountered. They arrested Howard R. Sullins, 21-year-old house painter of Lebanon, Tenn., on charges of assault with intent to commit murder and leaving the scene of an accident.

Assistant District Attorney A. D. Tanner said Sullins swerved his truck so as to strike down Mrs. Gladys Derrick Newman, wife of James Newman, an Eastern Airlines employe, as she stood on a suburban road taking mail out of a post box. Mrs. Newman was dragged 20 feet. She gave birth of a five-pound, six-ounce girl prematurely 24 hours after the incident which occurred Monday.

Tanner explained Sullins' motive this way:

As Sullins drove along the highway, near the "Hermitage" home of Andrew Jackson, he asked his companion, identified by police as 42-year-old Mrs. Annie Patrick, mother of six, if she would "tell a lie for me." Sullins continued:

"What I meant was—we were talking about marriage and all that, and I asked her if she would tell a lie for the man she married and she said 'yes.' And I said 'I'll see if you will or not—watch me hit that girl.'"

After striking the woman, Sullins stopped, rolled the bleeding woman over and then drove off.

Mrs. Newman's child was placed in an incubator. Doctors reported it had a good chance of survival. The mother, suffering head and back injuries, was described in fair condition.

Baruch, the United States delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, also told a news conference that Wallace personally admitted to him he was in error at a meeting in Baruch's office in Manhatan. Atlanta, Ga., Newspaper Says Nip Scientists Who Developed Weapon Are Soviet Prisoners

ATLANTA, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Atlanta Constitution said tonight in a copyrighted story that Japan developed and successfully tested an atomic bomb three days before the war ended and that "Japanese scientists who developed the bomb are now in Moscow, prisoners of the Russians."

The story was written by David Snell, former Constitution reporter recently returned from service with the Twenty-Fourth Criminal Investigation Detachment operating in Korea. He gave as the basis of his story an interview with a Japanese officer who said he was in charge of counterespionage at the atomic developing project in Korea.

The Constitution story said that Japan "destroyed unfinished atomic bombs, secret papers and her atomic bomb plant only hours before the advance units of the Russian army moved into Konan, Korea, site of the project."

After removal of the captured scientists to Moscow, the story related, the Russians brought pressure on them to learn the "atomic 'know how.'"

"I learned this information from a Japanese officer," Snell related. "He gave names, dates, facts and figures on the Japanese atomic project, which I submitted to United States Army Intelligence in Seoul.

Army "Withholds" Information

"The War Department is withholding much of the information. To protect the man who told me this story, and at the request of the Army, he is here given a pseudonym, Capt. Tsetusuo Wakabayashi."

Stars Will Seek AFL Arbitration Of Movie Dispute

Violence Slackens From Tuesday's Bloody Riots Outside Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2 (AP) — As violence slackened from yesterday's bloody riots, the Screen Actors Guild disclosed tonight it will send 10 of Hollywood's top stars to Chicago next week to plead for AFL arbitration of the current movie labor disputes.

Robert Taylor, Walter Pigdeon, Robert Montgomery, Gene Kelly, Edward Arnold, George Murphy, Dick Powell, Ronald Regan, Jane Wyman and June Allyson will present the SAG's plea to the American Federation of Labor's convention and President William Green.

The announcement came shortly after the Association of Motion Picture Producers disclosed that carpenters and painters at Republic Studio had been discharged for failure to work on sets built by rival AFL unionists. This brought to 10—the entire membership of the AMPP—studios which have fired employes for refusal to work.

Officers Keeps Order

New Training Plan Offered By U.S. Army

Proposal Is Broader Than Legion Favors; Bradley Raps Stelle

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2 (AP) — Secretary of War Robert Patterson disclosed before the American Legion today a new universal military training plan, broader in its basic phase than the Legion favored, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley took the Legion's commander sharply to task for his criticism of the Veterans' Administration.

The Legion, on hearing Patterson's plan to qualify 1,000,000 youths of 18 to 20 annually with basic military camp training of six months a requirement, issued a headquarters release stating that four months was sufficient. However, Patterson already had said four months would "not suffice to give the country the security it needs in trained manpower."

Gen. Bradley, who had been accused before the Legion by National Commander John Stelle of "breaking faith" by approving a $200 ceiling for on-the-job veteran training, said Stelle "has impaired our progress by misrepresenting our objectives."

Pay Ceiling Prevents Profiteering

"What we have been able to accomplish during this year in the Veterans' Administration has been achieved not because of but in spite of your national commander."

Bradley said the ceiling for on-the job veteran training "prevents a privileged minority of veterans from profiting unfairly by the G. I. bill."

Patterson, carefully treating the four-months view on the universal military training plan as one held by "some quarters of the Legion" urged the Legion to back the whole plan.

Patterson said the plan was essential to keep the nation a respected power in peace and observed "in these days it is the unarmed transport plane, not the Flying Fortress, that gets shot down."

Respectable military strength "will give pause to any power overseas," he said after his implied reference to the shooting down of a plane over Yugoslavia which cost five American lives and drew an apology from Marshal Tito.

Hershey Supports Plea

Patterson, whose plea for universal military training was backed in another address by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, wartime director of Selective Service, said recent experience has taught anew "that military weakness is nothing but an invitation to be pushed around and assaulted by ambitious dictators."

Patterson outlined a proposal whose features included:

Six months continuous training at military camps with a variety of optionals for the other six months including going to college with government aid and taking ROTC training.

The acquisition by the plan of 1,000,000 men yearly with 726,000 going to the Army and air, and the rest to the Navy.

Retention by those affected of civilian status with the system under a civilian organization and the trainees governed by a specially drawn cost of conduct.

Adm. William F. Halsey, who led naval forces across the Pacific to bombardment of Japan's shores, told the Legion in a prepared address that the future Navy, emphasizing large submersibles able to launch missiles from underwater, will be capable of "an atomic counter-attack."

New Naval Era Looms

He urged separate research departments for the Navy, Army and air arms but did not touch upon the larger question of a single department of national defense. Secretary Patterson urged support of the single department.

Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan assured his audience that naval research already promises a new naval era, helped by the atom bomb tests at Bikini.

Negotiations Will Continue This Morning

Unions Accused Of Leaving Idle Ships In "Hazardous" Condition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — A compromise plan involving a separate East coast agreement in the maritime strike ran into a snag tonight, but negotiations will be resumed tomorrow.

The Labor Department announced another session at 10 a. m. (EST) and said the talks definitely have not broken down.

Government officials who were talking optimistically this morning of an early settlement were saying little or nothing tonight.

What had started out to be "continuous sessions" to drive home an agreement were recessed at 7:10 p. m. amid uncertainty and confusion.

At the same time East coast ship owners added a note of urgency to the two-day-old strike by asking the Coast Guard to do something about idle ships left in "hazardous" condition because — the operators said —two unions representing captains, mates and engineroom officers refused to set proper security watches.

Plan Never Announced

The compromise plan has never been announced by the Labor Department, but this version was pieced together by reporters after talking with numerous persons in the negotiations:

The two unions, CIO Marine Engineers and AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots, were to sign separate agreements with East coast ship owners including the preferential hiring of union members and "maintenance of membership"—meaning men who join the union must remain members or lose their jobs — for all the eastern companies.

Then the Maritime Commission was to have ordered the same terms put into effect on government vessels in the Pacific. This presumably would leave Pacific coast ship owners, who have flatly refused to grant the hiring and membership clauses, out in the cold in their strictly private operations.

But, according to the version given by those present, the West coast portion of the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots, represented here by Capt. C. W. May, balked at the arrangement. Capt. May was represented as insisting that the hiring and membership clauses must be accepted in both government and private operations in the Pacific.

Schwellenbach Talks With May

Labor Secretary Schwellenbach himself was reported to have talked to Capt. May at length this afternoon without changing May's position.

Union leaders and spokesmen for the Pacific ship owners grew more bitter toward one another as the day progressed. Marion Plant, attorney for the Pacific American Ship Owners Association, denounced the union demands at a news conference. Capt. Harry Martin, president of the Masters, Mates and Pilots, countered tonight by telling reporters:

"The West coast operators have not made any efforts whatever to meet any of our demands. They have made no counteroffer on wages

World Press Criticizes Nuernberg Sentences Of Nazis As "Too Soft"

[By The Associated Press]

The foreign press formed an almost solid bloc Wednesday in criticizing the Nuernberg sentences of Nazis as "too soft."

Most of the criticism abroad centered on the acquittal of Franz Von Papen, Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritzsche and the failure to send Rudolf Hess to the gallows along with Hermann Goering and the 10 other Nazi ringleaders now in captivity.

Many editors in the United States press, too, expressed misgivings regarding the acquittal of the three but in general hailed the verdict as a possible deterrent to future aggressors.

Part of the British press also viewed the acquittals with "astonishment" but in general expressed approval of the result.

From Germany itself came the bitterest criticism.

The French-licensed newspaper Kurier reported that demonstrations had occurred in the Russian sector of Berlin in which a group of young people marched through the streets crying "We demand death for all war criminals."

Near the entrance to the Berlin Opera someone had painted on the pavement a gallows with a hanging corpse, with the inscription, "All twenty-two must hang."

The Russian-licensed Night Express carried the streamer, "The German People Protest" and printed columns of criticism of the verdicts and sentences.

All Berlin newspapers—American and British-licensed as well as Russian-controlled — maintained that Schacht, Von Papen and Fritzsche, although acquitted, are "guilty in the eyes of the German people."

This unanimity was unique in that it was perhaps the first time that there was agreement among the papers of the western powers and Russia on a major political issue.

AFL Truckers Defy Pittsburgh Union

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2. (AP)—AFL coal truck drivers today ignored picket lines to deliver fuel to a big steam heating company subsidiary of the struck Duquesne Light Company in the first open defiance of independent union efforts to throttle operations of the firm.

The truckers drove through picket lines at the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company plant as the ninth day of the power strike found this city's economic life badly disrupted. Police were called when trouble threatened, but the incident passed off with only bitter remarks by the rival unionists.

Action by the truckers followed announcement by the heating firm that service would be suspended tonight to 384 downtown business buildings. This announcement created a new obstacle to makeshift efforts to maintain "business as usual."

A spokesman for the heating firm said deliveries by truckers refusing to honor the picket lines were not sufficient to maintain operation.

Expert Says:

"Meat-Eating Is Just A Habit"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—John L. Lewis says if his miners can't get meat, they can't mine coal.

Many manual laborers have protested, "No meat, no work."

Are they right or are they wrong?

Wrong, said a Department of Agriculture nutrition expert today.

"What they mean is, they like meat, they prefer meat, they've got the meat-eating habit," Dr. Esther Phipard told a reporter.

"But they certainly don't have to have meat to do hard work."

Whereupon Dr. Phipard grabbed some impressive books off a nearby shelf and read some impressive sounding stuff by other experts.

They all said that meat's okay but not positively essential.

Dr. Phipard said any number of combinations of foods will do the job nicely. Just put in plenty of eggs, milk, fish, dreid beans, peas, peanuts, peanut butter and whole grain foods.

She said many a worker thinks his labor is directly tied up with his meat, or protein, supply. Actually it's calories that he needs, and he can get them just as well from carbohydrates.

But Dr. Phipard admitted its difficult to keep meatless menus interesting. And in the case of miners and other workers, lunch boxes can be a grade A problem.

"But mostly it's the habit," she said. "Habitually we're a meat-eating nation."

Maryland Meat Search Ordered

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—On orders from Gov. O'Conor, the food and drug bureau of the State Department of Health will survey food storage establishments to determine if any large supplies of meat are being held off the market.

He said, however, that a preliminary investigation showed there was not much chance of coming up with such meat bonanzas as were discovered in similar searches recently in New York and Boston.

Just how much may be stored in Maryland in privately-owned or rented lockers is not known, nor can it be ascertained definitely, since the health department does not have access to such storage places, it was said.

Painter Is Accused Of Running Down Expectant Mother In Test Of Love

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 2 (AP)—A hit-run driver was charged by state's attorneys today with deliberately running down an expectant mother, causing the premature birth of her child, for no other reason than to test the love of a woman riding with him.

Police investigators labeled the crime one of the most brutal they had encountered. They arrested Howard R. Sullins, 21-year-old house painter of Lebanon, Tenn., on charges of assault with intent to commit murder and leaving the scene of an accident.

Assistant District Attorney A. D. Tanner said Sullins swerved his truck so as to strike down Mrs. Gladys Derrick Newman, wife of James Newman, an Eastern Airlines employe, as she stood on a suburban road taking mail out of a post box. Mrs. Newman was dragged 20 feet. She gave birth of a five-pound, six-ounce girl prematurely 24 hours after the incident which occurred Monday.

Tanner explained Sullins' motive this way:

As Sullins drove along the highway, near the "Hermitage" home of Andrew Jackson, he asked his companion, identified by police as 42-year-old Mrs. Annie Patrick, mother of six, if she would "tell a lie for me." Sullins continued:

"What I meant was—we were talking about marriage and all that, and I asked her if she would tell a lie for the man she married and she said 'yes.' And I said 'I'll see if you will or not—watch me hit that girl.'"

After striking the woman, Sullins stopped, rolled the bleading woman over and then drove off.

Mrs. Newman's child was placed in an incubator. Doctors reported it had a good chance of survival. The mother, suffering head and back injuries, was described in fair condition.

Changes In State Tax System, Fund Allocation Urged

Overhauling Is Designed To Increase Revenue By $12,799,905.86

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—Sweeping tax changes designed to increase by a total of $12,799,905.96 the revenue funds collected by Maryland's 23 counties, Baltimore City and other subdivisions were recommended in a State Survey Commission's report released today.

The committee's report came after a five-months study of existing tax procedure and funds allocation.

More than half the general increase, or $6,444,448, would go to Baltimore City under the commission's proposals to attain more equitable distribution of revenue funds.

In a move to overcome what it termed "inequities and inequalities" in the present system of allocating funds, the commission recommended:

1. A new system of dividing the proceeds of the Maryland income tax.

2. A revolutionary overhauling of the methods of taxing racing in the state as well as allocating racing revenues.

3. A general reconstruction of school finance methods.

Among its urgent proposals also was a recommendation that the General Assembly meet yearly instead of biennially to permit budgeting on an annual basis.

Uniform Accounting System

A uniform system of accounting by all counties and political subdivisions was recognized by the commission as a need, and it urged the creation within the State Tax Commission of a bureau of fiscal research to assure more intelligible data upon which to base tax procedures.

The commission recommended that political subdivisions, uniformly, be given a limited first call on state income taxes paid by their individual residents, expressed in terms of percentage of income rather than percentage of tax, and that the percentage of income be one and one-half per cent of investment income and .625 per cent of ordinary income.

Both the method of taxing racing and the method of allocating the revenues thereof were cited by the commission for thorough overhauling in recommendations:

a—That the race track pari-mutuel "take" be increased to four per cent.

b—That the tax on net revenues of the tracks be abolished and the daily license fees on mile tracks be reduced $1,000 a day.

c—That half-mile tracks retain their "breakage."

d—That all tax revenues received from major tracks should be split one-half to state and the remainder to counties and incorporated towns on basis of population.

"Inequities" In Present Method

e—That tax revenues from half-mile tracks be split one-half to the state, one-fourth to counties and towns and one-fourth to the Maryland State Fair Board.

The commission said it found the existing method of taxing the racing industry is "bristling with inequities both to the racing industry and to the state and its political subdivisions."

As a result of its study of the financial needs of public education, the commission proposed that all education appropriations be allocated through two funds, (1) $400 per classroom unit per year, and (2) $20 per pupil in attendance per year. It also suggested that incentive funds be established on a matching basis, one for increasing teachers' salaries and the other to provide better facilities.

Japan Reportedly

Snell said the officer told him that Japanese worked feverishly in a Korean cave only five days before Japan surrendered. They were working on the bomb.

"To the north Russian hordes were spilling into Manchuria," the story continued.

"Shortly after midnight of that day a convoy of Japanese trucks moved from the mouth of the cave, past watchful sentries. x x x In the cool predawn Japanese scientists and engineers loaded genzai bakudan (Japan's name for the bomb) aboard a ship at Konan.

"Off the coast, near an islet in the Sea of Japan, more frantic preparations were under way. All that day and night ancient ships, junks and fishing vessels moved into the anchorage.

"Before dawn on August 12 (1945), a robot launch chugged through the ships at anchor and beached itself on the islet. Its passenger was genzai bakudan.

Observers Blinded By Flash

"x x x the moment the sun peeped over the sea there was a burst of light at the anchorage, blinding the observers (20 miles away) who wore welders' glasses. The ball of fire was estimated to be 1,100 yards in diameter. A multicolored cloud of vapors boiled toward the heavens, then mushroomed in the stratosphere."

The story related that ships and junks burned fiercely, "several" vanished.

"Japan had perfected and successfully tested an atomic bomb as cataclysmic as those that withered Hiroshima and Nagasaki," the story continued.

Snell said the Japanese officer told him the Russians were too close to give his country time to load the bombs on ready Kamikaze planes. A decision had to be made.

The Japanese made their decision. Machinery, papers and partially-manufactured bombs were destroyed. Dynamite was used to seal the secrets of the cave. But the Russians came so quickly the scientists could not escape, the story said.

One Jap Scientist Escaped

The Constitution added:

"One scientist was master director of the entire project. Six others, all eminent Japanese scientists, were in charge of six phases of bomb production. Each of these six men was kept in ignorance of the work of the other five. (Names of these scientists are withheld by Army censorship)."

Snell said the Japanese captain told him that one of the scientists escaped from the Russians in June, 1946 and fled to the American zone of occupation in Korea. He said United States intelligence officers had "interrogated this man."

"This story may throw light on Stalin's recent statement that America will not long have a monopoly on atomic weapons," the Constitution story said. "x x x And perhaps it will throw new light on the shooting down by the Russians of our B-29 on August 29, 1945 in the Konan area."

Snell said he interviewed the Japanese captain "not as a member of the armed forces but as a newspaperman; he was advised, and understood thoroughly, that he was speaking for publication."

"News" To Gen. Groves

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, chief of the atom bomb Manhattan Project, said tonight when informed of reports that Japan exploded a test A-bomb three days before surrender:

"I would be very much interested if the story were true.

"It's all news to me."

TENSE MOMENT—A deputy sheriff stands with cocked pistol in his hand near a fallen fellow officer, holding back a crowd of demonstrators at M-G-M studio in Hollywood, Calif., until the injured man can be helped to safety. The tense moment came during a clash between police officers and some 400 parading pickets who said they were ex-servicemen.

reported that stars had crossed picket lines.

Seven hundred and fifty demonstrators, many of them wearing military uniforms, others odd parts of such garb, marched nine times around Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Studio under the stern gaze of 150 helmeted sheriff's deputies and police armed with tear gas grenades. More than 200 other deputies stood by within hailing distance as the pickets, four abreast, sang and counted cadence.

A dozen buses carrying workers inside the studio were stoned and a few windows broken. But the violence was far less than yesterday, when 39 were hurt and 13 arrested in a bloody clash between the pickets and the officers.

more minutes to continue. This was granted.

The fiery Yugoslav poured out his attack in such rapid French that at one point the conference stenotypists were unable to keep up with him.

Pijade declared that "Anglo-Saxon power" had denounced the "most important" decisions of the Foreign Ministers Council on Trieste.

"Democratic principles in the British, American and French proposals," he said, "have gone with the wind."

He assailed the British proposals as putting Trieste on a par with a British colony.

He asserted that the British and American proposals for the Trieste statute, plus speeches Tuesday by Sen. Tom Connally and British Delegate Jebb, "reveal that Trieste in their minds is not to become a truly free state but a military base under an Anglo-American condominium."

Pijade submitted a Yugoslav proposal for the treaty section on Trieste providing for economic and monetary union between the free state and Yugoslavia.

The United States and Britain, in opposing this economic union, he said, "are erecting a Chinese wall, if not an iron curtain, between Trieste and Yugoslavia."

"This is not our last word," he warned. "If Trieste is not to be democratic, we can never accept it."

News Blackout

The four-power commission, which represented the control council, met behind guarded doors in the same chamber that the justices of the International Military Tribunal had used for their conferences during the 10-month trial.

Members of the commission, representing the United States, France, Russia and Britain, declined to see reporters, and it was not immediately learned whether they would return to Berlin or convene again here tomorrow.

Col. B. C. Andrus, chief of the security detail, referred all questioners to the public relations officer of the military tribunal. The public relations officer said that he had no new information and that Andrus had refused to give him any.

Before the news clampdown was ordered, however, Andrus said he was waiting for definite instructions from the commission before proceeding with the erection of a scaffold within the prison.

Wife Asks Divorce, Charges Desertion

Suit for an absolute divorce from Robert E. Suesse was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Ina T. Suesse on grounds of desertion. She asks for the custody of a minor child.

Mrs. Suesse, represented by John T. Fey, said she and her husband were married November 13, 1939, in Baltimore, and lived together until April 1, 1945.

A cross-bill of complaint asking a partial divorce from George Blair Zufall was filed by Mrs. Pauline Nora Zufall through her attorney, Edward J. Ryan.

Mrs. Zufall charged her husband with cruelty and said she was forced to leave their home August 31 this year. She asks for the custody of their five children. Chief Judge William A. Huster signed an order directing Zufall to pay his wife $25 weekly alimony pending a decision.

Suit for an absolute divorce from Jacob Bean has been filed by Mrs. Cledith Bean through her attorney, Paul M. Fletcher. She said she and her husband voluntarily lived apart for five consecutive years.

Andrew W. McKinley filed suit for a divorce from Helen G. McKinley on undisclosed grounds. Morgan C. Harris is his attorney.

Ryan Will Represent McCauley At Trial

Edward J. Ryan, Cumberland and Frostburg attorney, who is regarded as one of the best criminal lawyers in this section, conferred for two hours yesterday with Mark McCauley, charged with the murder of two West Virginia police officers on September 9, and said last night that he will represent him when he is brought to trial.

McCauley, now held in the Mineral County jail at Keyser, W. Va., is awaiting action of the Mineral County grand jury, which meets October 15, on charges of murdering Sgt. Joseph P. Horne of the State Police, and Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter of Tucker County.

Ryan, who talked with McCauley at the jail yesterday, said last night he is not "prepared to say what we'll do" when the case comes to trial. He said he expects to talk to McCauley again Sunday or the first of the week.

Injured In Crash

John Robinson, 30, 100 Knobley road, Ridgeley, W. Va., was treated in Allegany Hospital late Tuesday night for facial lacerations suffered, he told attaches, in an automobile accident near Wiley Ford, W. Va. Attaches said eight sutures were used to close the cuts about the nose and right eye.

Further this division is to be deepened and the errors repeated by means of republication of your letter to the President in a pamphlet which you informed us was to be issued by a group which is backing your position and which you say is for wide publication.

Australian Girls Besiege Crewmen Of U. S. Freighter

MELBORNE, Australia, Oct. 2. (AP)—Crewmen of the American freighter Cape Stephens said today that they were virtually besieged at Victoria dock—by girls.

"What's wrong with Australian men?" one American asked an Australian reporter. He added that nowhere else in the world had the crew seen such a surplus of women.

Other crewmen, complaining that the girls pestered them "beyond endurance," said they were forced to remain aboard.

of the international officers and one representative from each of the union's 30 districts, receive $500 a month. Others who would get pay boosts under the resolution adopted are Vice-President John O'Leary and Secretary-Treasurer Kennedy, each of whom receives $18,000 annually, and the editor of the UMW Journal, whose constitutional salary is $7,000. Lewis has the constitutional authority to increase these amounts for "additional services" if he wants to.

One resolution from a West Virginia local suggested that Lewis's salary be upped to $50,000 a year.

Earlier, the delegates gave Lewis a standing vote of "appreciation and confidence."

Lewis is recovering from an appendectomy and missed the start of the conclave. Vice-President John O'Leary reported to the 2,800 delegates that Lewis was "coming along nicely" in a Washington hospital and would be walking around by the end of the week.

Some delegates took this to mean he still might try to get to the convention before it adjourns Saturday.

The committee on the officers' report recommended adoption of the 264-page account of the unions affairs for the past year, then submitted a declaration of loyalty to Lewis, describing him as "the champion of all labor."

The convention moved along slowly today with Lewis's absence apparent everywhere. Throughout the laborious reading of the committee action on the officers' report, section by section, only one delegate took the floor.

He was Charles Branney, Morgantown, W. Va., who suggested that the miners "use a little of the money in the treasury to protect the things John L. Lewis got us."

Branney proposed that the union try to elect more "representative" to office, and said he received only 800 votes in running for the West Virginia Legislature from a district in which 6,000 miners resided.

Martin said that if his union and the Marine Engineers should reach success in agreeing with Atlantic and Gulf ship owners, and if it is agreeable with the engineers to call off the East coast strike, the Masters, Mates and Pilots "will return to work."

Earlier Frank J. Taylor, representing East coast ship owners, made public a vigorous telegram he sent to the United States Coast Guard, accusing the two striking unions of leaving their idle ships "in a hazardous condition."

The Maritime Commission moved into the case with a statement of policy which union leaders said would assure uniformity in working rules on all government-owned vessels. The commission still had made no public announcement in detail.

No Developments In Robbery Case

A Cumberland man, arrested by police early Tuesday morning in connection with the robbery of Hixon's service station, still was held in the city jail last night but police reported no developments in the case.

State Police said two men broke into the service station, made a getaway in an allegedly stolen car and soon were forced to flee on foot when the vehicle wrecked a short distance from the scene.

Trooper William McElfish was passing the station about 1 a. m. when he noticed a Buick car parked in the rear. After he backed his car, got out of it and started toward the building to investigate, two men, who apparently saw him approaching, jumped into the Buick and sped toward Wills Creek bridge. McElfish found the car wrecked and abandoned there a few minutes later.

City Police, summoned to the scene, assisted McElfish in scouring the area. Later they arrested Woodrow Leslie, 27, 109 South Cedar street, on a tip from a cab driver. Detective Edwin Lilya said Leslie made conflicting statements when questioned.

McElfish said the service station was entered through a side window. A pay telephone was torn from the wall and a radio was missing. They were found in the wrecked car, which carried Virginia license tags.

"Hampering" Regulations Beset Nation, O'Conor Says

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 2 (AP) — Gov. O'Conor, the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, declared today the country would advance as a world power "only so long, and in such measure, as the initiative and enterprise of its citizens are encouraged and not hampered or restricted by unnecessary federal regulations."

In an address before the Frederick Rotary Club, O'Conor reiterated his stand for the "state's rights" doctrine, and repeated his criticism of some of the government's food, price and manufacturing regulations.

He said the country was "beset by difficulties, by shortages of necessities of life, by hampering regulations that prevent the free flow of commodities and to that extent the freedom of the individual to do and possess the things he desires," and added:

"In a country so large as this, it is impossible for a central government to lay down regulations pertaining to all sections without working unnecessary hardships on many."

He said at least a part of the present difficulties of the country could be traced to the efforts of government agencies to perpetuate themselves.

"One strong reason I have always been against the entrance of the federal government into local affairs," he said, "is that once an agency is set up to undertake a new job, it is rarely possible to get rid of that agency when the real demand for its services has past.

"We have seen numerous instances during the latter days of the war and since V-J Day where officials of agencies have sought to devise new fields of endeavor to continue themselves in office after the original purpose for which their office has been established no longer existed.

"I believe that much of the confusion and lack of needed material is due to attempts by established federal agencies to continue control of materials both at their source and in the various fields of industry by artificial restrictions."

While all newspapers praised the tribunal for conducting an extremely fair trial, they differed with the court on the acquittals.

The American-licensed Taggesspiegel quoted leading Berlin politicians as demanding that the acquitted trio be handed over to German courts "for reckoning."

The Soviet-controlled Berliner Zeitung called the acquittals "incomprehensible," and the Socialist Unity Party's organ Neues Deutschland observed that "the German people cannot understand the prison sentences and find the acquittals utterly incomprehensible."

The Socialist Unity Party advertised a rally for Wednesday night to discuss the verdicts, and it was thought likely this would turn into a protest demonstration.

Changes In State Tax System, Fund Allocation Urged

Overhauling Is Designed To Increase Revenue By $12,799,905.86

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—Sweeping tax changes designed to increase by a total of $12,799,905.86 the revenue funds collected by Maryland's 23 counties, Baltimore City and other subdivisions were recommended in a State Survey Commission's report released today.

The committee's report came after a five-months study of existing tax procedure and funds allocation.

More than half the general increase, or $6,444,448, would go to Baltimore City under the commission's proposals to attain more equitable distribution of revenue funds.

In a move to overcome what it termed "inequities and inequalities" in the present system of allocating funds, the commission recommended:

1. A new system of dividing the proceeds of the Maryland income tax.

2. A revolutionary overhauling of the methods of taxing racing in the state as well as allocating racing revenues.

3. A general reconstruction of school finance methods.

Among its urgent proposals also was a recommendation that the General Assembly meet yearly instead of biennially to permit budgeting on an annual basis.

Uniform Accounting System

A uniform system of accounting by all counties and political subdivisions was recognized by the commission as a need, and it urged the creation within the State Tax Commission of a bureau of fiscal research to assure more intelligible data upon which to base tax procedures.

The commission recommended that political subdivisions, uniformly, be given a limited first call on state income taxes paid by their individual residents, expressed in terms of percentage of income rather than percentage of tax, and that the percentage of income be one and one-half per cent of investment income and .625 per cent of ordinary income.

Both the method of taxing racing and the method of allocating the revenues thereof were cited by the commission for thorough overhauling in recommendations:

a—That the race track pari-mutuel "take" be increased to four per cent.

b—That the tax on net revenues of the tracks be abolished and the daily license fees on mile tracks be reduced $1,000 a day.

c—That half-mile tracks retain their "breakage."

d—That all tax revenues received from major tracks should be split one-half to state and the remainder to counties and incorporated towns on basis of population.

"Inequities" In Present Method

e—That tax revenues from half-mile tracks be split one-half to the state, one-fourth to counties and towns and one-fourth to the Maryland State Fair Board.

The commission said it found the existing method of taxing the racing industry is "bristling with inequities both to the racing industry and to the state and its political subdivisions."

As a result of its study of the financial needs of public education, the commission proposed that all education appropriations be allocated through two funds, (1) $400 per classroom unit per year, and (2) $20 per pupil in attendance per year. It also suggested that incentive funds be established on a matching basis, one for increasing teachers' salaries and the other to provide better facilities.

TENSE MOMENT—A deputy sheriff stands with cocked pistol in his hand near a fallen fellow officer, holding back a crowd of demonstrators at M-G-M studio in Hollywood, Calif., until the injured man can be helped to safety. The tense moment came during a clash between police officers and some 400 parading pickets who said they were ex-servicemen.

Japan Reportedly

Snell said the officer told him that Japanese worked feverishly in a Korean cave only five days before Japan surrendered. They were working on the bomb.

"To the north Russian hordes were spilling into Manchuria," the story continued.

"Shortly after midnight of that day a convoy of Japanese trucks moved from the mouth of the cave, past watchful sentries. x x x In the cool predawn Japanese scientists and engineers loaded genzai bakudan (Japan's name for the bomb) aboard a ship at Konan.

"Off the coast, near an islet in the Sea of Japan, more frantic preparations were under way. All that day and night ancient ships, junks and fishing vessels moved into the anchorage.

"Before dawn on August 12 (1945), a robot launch chugged through the ships at anchor and beached itself on the islet. Its passenger was genzai bakudan.

Observers Blinded By Flash

"x x x the moment the sun peeped over the sea there was a burst of light at the anchorage, blinding the observers (20 miles away) who wore welders' glasses. The ball of fire was estimated to be 1,100 yards in diameter. A multicolored cloud of vapors boiled toward the heavens, then mushroomed in the stratosphere."

The story related that ships and junks burned fiercely, "several" vanished.

"Japan had perfected and successfully tested an atomic bomb as cataclysmic as those that withered Hiroshima and Nagasaki," the story continued.

Snell said the Japanese officer told him the Russians were too close to give his country time to load the bombs on ready Kamikaze planes. A decision had to be made.

The Japanese made their decision. Machinery, papers and partially-manufactured bombs were destroyed. Dynamite was used to seal the secrets of the cave. But the Russians came so quickly the scientists could not escape, the story said.

One Jap Scientist Escaped

The Constitution added:

"One scientist was master director of the entire project. Six others, all eminent Japanese scientists, were in charge of six phases of bomb production. Each of these six men was kept in ignorance of the work of the other five. (Names of these scientists are withheld by Army censorship)."

Snell said the Japanese captain told him that one of the scientists escaped from the Russians in June, 1946 and fled to the American zone of occupation in Korea. He said United States intelligence officers had "interrogated this man."

"This story may throw light on Stalin's recent statement that America will not long have a monopoly on atomic weapons," the Constitution story said. "x x x And perhaps it will throw new light on the shooting down by the Russians of our B-29 on August 29, 1945 in the Konan area."

Snell said he interviewed the Japanese captain "not as a member of the armed forces but as a newspaperman; he was advised, and understood thoroughly, that he was speaking for publication."

"News" To Gen. Groves

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, chief of the atom bomb Manhattan Project, said tonight when informed of reports that Japan exploded a test A-bomb three days before surrender:

"I would be very much interested if the story were true.

"It's all news to me."

Stars Will Seek

reported that stars had crossed picket lines.

Seven hundred and fifty demonstrators, many of them wearing military uniforms, others odd parts of such garb, marched nine times around Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Studio under the stern gaze of 150 helmeted sheriff's deputies and police armed with tear gas grenades. More than 200 other deputies stood by within hailing distance as the pickets, four abreast, sang and counted cadence.

A dozen buses carrying workers inside the studio were stoned and a few windows broken. But the violence was far less than yesterday, when 39 were hurt and 13 arrested in a bloody clash between the pickets and the officers.

more minutes to continue. This was granted.

The fiery Yugoslav poured out his attack in such rapid French that at one point the conference stenotypists were unable to keep up with him.

Pijade declared that "Anglo-Saxon power" had denounced the "most important" decisions of the Foreign Ministers Council on Trieste.

"Democratic principles in the British, American and French proposals," he said, "have gone with the wind."

He assailed the British proposals as putting Trieste on a par with a British colony.

He asserted that the British and American proposals for the Trieste statute, plus speeches Tuesday by Sen. Tom Connally and British Delegate Jebb, "reveal that Trieste in their minds is not to become a truly free state but a military base under an Anglo-American condominium."

Pijade submitted a Yugoslav proposal for the treaty section on Trieste providing for economic and monetary union between the free state and Yugoslavia.

The United States and Britain, in opposing this economic union, he said, "are erecting a Chinese wall, if not an iron curtain, between Trieste and Yugoslavia."

"This is not our last word," he warned. "If Trieste is not to be democratic, we can never accept it."

News Blackout

The four-power commission, which represented the control council, met behind guarded doors in the same chamber that the justices of the International Military Tribunal had used for their conferences during the 10-month trial.

Members of the commission, representing the United States, France, Russia and Britain, declined to see reporters, and it was not immediately learned whether they would return to Berlin or convene again here tomorrow.

Col. B. C. Andrus, chief of the security detail, referred all questioners to the public relations officer of the military tribunal. The public relations officer said that he had no new information and that Andrus had refused to give him any.

Before the news clampdown was ordered, however, Andrus said he was waiting for definite instructions from the commission before proceeding with the erection of a scaffold within the prison.

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the hero in defeat at Corregidor and now commander of the Fourth Army, struck back at "ill-considered criticism" of the Army and emphasized "it is necessary also that we maintain our military power at peak efficiency and prestige."

Wife Asks Divorce, Charges Desertion

Suit for an absolute divorce from Robert E. Suesse was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Ina T. Suesse on grounds of desertion. She asks for the custody of a minor child.

Mrs. Suesse, represented by John T. Fey, said she and her husband were married November 13, 1939, in Baltimore, and lived together until April 1, 1945.

A cross-bill of complaint asking a partial divorce from George Blair Zufall was filed by Mrs. Pauline Nora Zufall through her attorney, Edward J. Ryan.

Mrs. Zufall charged her husband with cruelty and said she was forced to leave their home August 31 this year. She asks for the custody of their five children. Chief Judge William A. Huster signed an order directing Zufall to pay his wife $25 weekly alimony pending a decision.

Suit for an absolute divorce from Jacob Bean has been filed by Mrs. Cledith Bean through her attorney, Paul M. Fletcher. She said she and her husband voluntarily lived apart for five consecutive years.

Andrew W. McKinley filed suit for a divorce from Helen G. McKinley on undisclosed grounds. Morgan C. Harris is his attorney.

Ryan Will Represent McCauley At Trial

Edward J. Ryan, Cumberland and Frostburg attorney, who is regarded as one of the best criminal lawyers in this section, conferred for two hours yesterday with Mark McCauley, charged with the murder of two West Virginia police officers on September 9, and said last night that he will represent him when he is brought to trial.

McCauley, now held in the Mineral County jail at Keyser, W. Va., is awaiting action of the Mineral County grand jury, which meets October 15, on charges of murdering Sgt. Joseph P. Horne of the State Police, and Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter of Tucker County.

Ryan, who talked with McCauley at the jail yesterday, said last night he is not "prepared to say what we'll do" when the case comes to trial. He said he expects to talk to McCauley again Sunday or the first of the week.

Injured In Crash

John Robinson, 30, 100 Knobley road, Ridgeley, W. Va., was treated in Allegany Hospital late Tuesday night for facial lacerations suffered, he told attaches, in an automobile accident near Wiley Ford, W. Va. Attaches said eight sutures were used to close the cuts about the nose and right eye.

lowing our talk last Friday, when you were willing to make public the correction of errors which you freely admitted to us in private. These efforts have not succeeded.

"As a result these errors stand uncorrected by you. They are gravely dangerous to the delicate negotiations now under way.

"They create confusion and division among your people. Further this division is to be deepened and the errors repeated by means of republication of your letter to the President in a pamphlet which you informed us was to be issued by a group which is backing your position and which you say is for wide publication.

"Yours is a responsibility for impairing the support of the American proposals which you frankly approved once your misunderstandings had been corrected.

"You have disappointed me sorely. Your reluctance publicly to correct your mistakes tends to confusion and mistrust. Certainly confidence and faith cannot be achieved by misstatements of fact. That method only adds to dissension.

"You have no monopoly of the desire for peace. I have given 30 years of my life to the search for peace and there are many others whose aims have been the same."

Australian Girls Besiege Crewmen Of U. S. Freighter

MELBORNE, Australia, Oct. 2. (AP)—Crewmen of the American freighter Cape Stephens said today that they were virtually besieged at Victoria dock—by girls.

"What's wrong with Australian men?" one American asked an Australian reporter. He added that nowhere else in the world had the crew seen such a surplus of women.

Other crewmen, complaining that the girls pestered them "beyond endurance," said they were forced to remain aboard.

of the international officers and one representative from each of the union's 30 districts, receive $500 a month. Others who would get pay boosts under the resolution adopted are Vice-President John O'Leary and Secretary-Treasurer Kennedy, each of whom receives $18,000 annually, and the editor of the UMW Journal, whose constitutional salary is $7,000. Lewis has the constitutional authority to increase these amounts for "additional services" if he wants to.

One resolution from a West Virginia local suggested that Lewis's salary be upped to $50,000 a year.

Earlier, the delegates gave Lewis a standing vote of "appreciation and confidence."

Lewis is recovering from an appendectomy and missed the start of the conclave. Vice-President John O'Leary reported to the 2,800 delegates that Lewis was "coming along nicely" in a Washington hospital and would be walking around by the end of the week.

Some delegates took this to mean he still might try to get to the convention before it adjourns Saturday.

The committee on the officers' report recommended adoption of the 264-page account of the unions affairs for the past year, then submitted a declaration of loyalty to Lewis, describing him as "the champion of all labor."

The convention moved along slowly today with Lewis's absence apparent everywhere. Throughout the laborious reading of the committee action on the officers' report, section by section, only one delegate took the floor.

He was Charles Branney, Morgantown, W. Va., who suggested that the miners "use a little of the money in the treasury to protect the things John L. Lewis got us."

Branney proposed that the union try to elect more "representative" to office, and said he received only 800 votes in running for the West Virginia Legislature from a district in which 6,000 miners resided.

or on any other point in the entire proposed contract. We believe that the East coast operators really have tried to negotiate and reach a settlement."

Martin said that if his union and the Marine Engineers should reach success in agreeing with Atlantic and Gulf ship owners, and if it is agreeable with the engineers to call off the East coast strike, the Masters, Mates and Pilots "will return to work."

Earlier Frank J. Taylor, representing East coast ship owners, made public a vigorous telegram he sent to the United States Coast Guard, accusing the two striking unions of leaving their idle ships "in a hazardous condition."

The Maritime Commission moved into the case with a statement of policy which union leaders said would assure uniformity in working rules on all government-owned vessels. The commission still had made no public announcement in detail.

No Developments In Robbery Case

A Cumberland man, arrested by police early Tuesday morning in connection with the robbery of Hixon's service station, still was held in the city jail last night but police reported no developments in the case.

State Police said two men broke into the service station, made a getaway in an allegedly stolen car and soon were forced to flee on foot when the vehicle wrecked a short distance from the scene.

Trooper William McElfish was passing the station about 1 a. m. when he noticed a Buick car parked in the rear. After he backed his car, got out of it and started toward the building to investigate, two men, who apparently saw him approaching, jumped into the Buick and sped toward Wills Creek bridge. McElfish found the car wrecked and abandoned there a few minutes later.

City Police, summoned to the scene, assisted McElfish in scouring the area. Later they arrested Woodrow Leslie, 27, 109 South Cedar street, on a tip from a cab driver. Detective Edwin Lilya said Leslie made conflicting statements when questioned.

McElfish said the service station was entered through a side window. A pay telephone was torn from the wall and a radio was missing. They were found in the wrecked car, which carried Virginia license tags.

"Hampering" Regulations Beset Nation, O'Conor Says

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor, the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, declared today the country would advance as a world power "only so long, and in such measure, as the initiative and enterprise of its citizens are encouraged and not hampered or restricted by unnecessary federal regulations."

In an address before the Frederick Rotary Club, O'Conor reiterated his stand for the "state's rights" doctrine, and repeated his criticism of some of the government's food, price and manufacturing regulations.

He said the country was "beset by difficulties, by shortages of necessities of life, by hampering regulations that prevent the free flow of commodities and to that extent the freedom of the individual to do and possess the things he desires," and added:

"In a country so large as this, it is impossible for a central government to lay down regulations pertaining to all sections without working unnecessary hardships on many."

He said at least a part of the present difficulties of the country could be traced to the efforts of government agencies to perpetuate themselves.

"One strong reason I have always been against the entrance of the federal government into local affairs," he said, "is that once an agency is set up to undertake a new job, it is rarely possible to get rid of that agency when the real demand for its services has past.

"We have seen numerous instances during the latter days of the war and since V-J Day where officials of agencies have sought to devise new fields of endeavor to continue themselves in office after the original purpose for which their office has been established no longer existed.

"I believe that much of the confusion and lack of needed material is due to attempts by established federal agencies to continue control of materials both at their source and in the various fields of industry by artificial restrictions."

World Press

While all newspapers praised the tribunal for conducting an extremely fair trial, they differed with the court on the acquittals.

The American-licensed Tagesspiegel quoted leading Berlin politicians as demanding that the acquitted trio be handed over to German courts "for reckoning."

The Soviet-controlled Berliner Zeitung called the acquittals "incomprehensible," and the Socialist Unity Party's organ Neues Deutschland observed that "the German people cannot understand the prison sentences and find the acquittals utterly incomprehensible."

The Socialist Unity Party advertised a rally for Wednesday night to discuss the verdicts, and it was thought likely this would turn into a protest demonstration.

Nazis Convicted By Fair System They Wanted Destroyed

Ten members of Adolf Hitler's government of madmen who helped plan and execute a war that was to see virtually every nation in the world involved, will swing from the gallows at Nuremberg, Germany, two weeks from yesterday for their crime against humanity.

Three of the defendants were given life prison terms, four will be jailed, while three were acquitted. One was convicted, and sentenced to be hanged in absentia. The individual verdicts and the pronouncements of the sentences climaxed a trial of many months, before a tribunal that has no precedent. The accused members of an army and government defeated in a brutal conflict, were found guilty, or acquitted, by a court made up of representatives of the victor nations. But the painstaking fairness that marked the cases must be cause for admiration by the peoples of the earth.

It required more than nine months to hear the evidence against each defendant, and to permit the 21 in the prisoners' dock to have his final say. From ranting Hermann Goering, shouting his self-justification, Rudolph Hess, rambling dimly through the past, to weeping Walter Funk they begged mercy, never dreaming for a minute that their conquerors would go to all the trouble and expense to bring them to justice. Until they heard their doom they defied the court or played the stoic. They finally became weary in their last act of tragic frustration during the long months of prosecution, and Monday and Tuesday, when they learned their fate was no exception.

Those verdicts were the considered opinion of one of the most important and significant tribunals ever assembled in human annals. The proceedings wrote a new chapter of history. It was an elaborate demonstration of democracy at work in the full glare of a world spotlight. Their crimes were those long recognized as capital crimes through the ages, and they were tried under a system of fairness they tried to destroy.

It's the irksome task that puts you on your mettle.

World Awaits Change In Joseph Stalin's Attitude

There is no indication yet that the statement issued by Joseph Stalin ten days ago has brought any change in Soviet policy. The world waits for some hint that Russia will act to implement his peace views. So far there has been no abatement of the hostile tone of official and unofficial Moscow utterances, in contrast to which Stalin's pronouncement was so refreshing and so encouraging.

Most disappointing of all is the continuing refusal of the Soviet Union and its satellites to join with the western democracies in any program for recovery and stabilization in areas where famine and chaos have been averted so far by stopgag measures, largely financed by the United States. Most depressing at the moment are the economic situations in Hungary, Austria and Germany, and the tensions in Greece and at Trieste, provoked by the warlike gestures of Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria, states under Russian control.

Nikolai I. Feonov, Russian delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, meeting at Lake Success, has rejected all proposals for rebuilding Europe's shattered economy on a unified, continent-wide basis. Yet some degree of unity is essential if there are to be such developments as a hydro-electric power system, and if avenues of transport are to be freed from political roadblocks. In one breath, Mr. Feonov has complained because suggested plans treated Europe as an economic entity and did not tie in its problems and resources with those of the rest of the world. In the next, he has objected to United States representation on a central co-ordinating commission for the reconstruction of European economy. Americans cannot follow reasoning which so ignores the realities.

More than 70 percent of the money for European relief and rehabilitation since the war has been contributed by the United States. We will be expected to furnish money for more permanent reconstruction measures in about the same ratio. But certainly that money will not be forthcoming unless we are to have some voice in its spending. We do not want our money used to finance another war, or a series of small wars, such as are breeding at the moment. The Albanians, presently creating incidents on the Greek border, are living on UNRRA rations. Americans have good reason to believe that their UNRRA dollars have been used to build up Marshal Tito's army, now threatening Italy. We also have a right to insist that money we send to Europe be spent wisely, where it will buy the most for the greatest number, without respect to iron curtains, boundry lines, ideologies, nationalities or religion.

Europe needs an integrated economy, if it is to become self-sustaining again, and barriers to such a program must be removed. But most of all, Europe needs peace. And Russia holds the answer to that.

Criticize yourself and you'll be too busy to criticize others.

Expense Justified

Because of what it termed an imperative need, the Civil Aeronautics Board has ordered new fire-safety rules for all passenger planes.

The new rules are designed to prevent fire in flight and are the result of investigations into several serious accidents. Among other things, they provide for fire detectors and built-in fire extinguishers in engines and all other installations where combustible fluids are used. Flame-resisting materials must be used in passenger and crew compartments. Non-inflammable hydraulic fluid must be used as soon as it becomes available, probably not for several months.

Work on the modification of the planes to which the new rules apply is scheduled to start January 1. Although the cost of the changes may average thousands of dollars a plane, according to airline estimates, the recent crash of a Belgian airliner in Newfoundland and other similar accidents make it clear that the greatest possible protection against fire is a top necessity. If money will buy more safety, the expense is fully justified.

SPRAINED ANKLE

SOMETIMES during an unguarded moment we take an awkward step. Should the sole of the foot turn in, the entire weight of the body is suddenly forced upon the ankle joint. If the strain on the neighboring tissues is sufficient to tear the structures, a sprain results. The majority of mishaps occur when the foot is rocked inwardly toward the midline. By contrast, fractures are more common should the part be turned outward.

The abnormality is seen most frequently among those engaged in competitive sports altho a high percentage can be blamed on slipping, catching the foot in a crevice, or a misstep. Occasionally a fall from a height is responsible especially if the lower extremities are not in good alignment when the ground is struck.

The ligaments suffer the greatest injury. This is fortunate for, if they do not bear the brunt, the bony attachment is likely to break. Occasionally the fibrous capsule surrounding the joint is also damaged as well as the blood vessels traversing these parts.

Pain is usually present. Fluid accumulates, which produces swelling, localized first over the affected area; soon puffiness spreads until the entire ankle zone is involved. Hemorrhages cause the skin to become black and blue within a few days. Some individuals are able to walk but, as they move about, discomfort increases so that limping ensues. Several hours may be required before distress reaches its maximum intensity and throbbing is common, particularly during the first night.

It is not always easy to tell after accidents of this type, whether sprain or fracture exists. For this reason, X-rays are advised. I recall a patient who slipped on the ice and experienced sudden pain in the left ankle. She was helped into a cab and taken to the hospital. On examination it was obvious that the structure had been hurt altho only a sprain was suspected. The films revealed that three bones had been cracked.

A simple method of treating a sprained ankle was devised by Thorndike for football players. As soon as possible the extremity is immersed in ice water for 30 minutes; or cold compresses may be substituted. Then an elastic pressure dressing is applied, to discourage edema and rest the part. Twenty-four to 48 hours later heat and massage are started. Up to this time, crutches are used but these devices are discarded within 7 to 10 days. Then the structure is rebound with adhesive and the patient is allowed to walk without aid.

Cold is advised early because heat used initially encourages puffiness. Once this stage has passed, warmth is beneficial. By keeping off the feet thru employing crutches or staying in bed the torn ligaments are better able to approximate themselves. Rest is the secret of healing and is demonstrated most vividly when we cut the skin over a knuckle. Constant movement will delay the process but if the finger is kept stiff, repair may be expected within a day or two.

Unless sprains are managed adequately there is a danger that the ankle will be weak thereafter, with recurrences on the slightest provocation. In some cases in which the impairment is slight, tape alone will suffice. On the other hand, when the trauma is severe and the individual cannot use crutches or is unable to remain in bed for a few days, a cast can be applied with a walking caliper attached.

SOFT PALATE

W. B. D. writes: What is the function of the soft palate?

REPLY

This structure acts as a partition between the nose and throat. In swallowing, it is elevated to prevent food from going into the nasal passages. During speech, it closes off the nasopharynx, which is necessary to the pronunciation of hard consonants especially.

Many do it without apparent harm but the back pressure may do some damage to the tissues. As with coughing, ordinary courtesy should prevail.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2 — Arrived here for the American Legion Convention, the first full convention since Pearl Harbor. The vets of World War 2 have brought a lot of new ideas to the Legion meet. In fact, I hadn't been in town two hours before I was hit on the head with a plastic bag full of water.

I said to one policeman who was highly disturbed that he should remember the boys were just "Ships that pass in the night." He said he didn't mind the ships, but when they put the locomotives in the Mark Hopkins lobby it was just too much.

Mayor Lapham welcomed the boys from the City Hall steps, and it would have been quite an affair if someone only had known where the steps were at the moment.

Yes sir, San Francisco is in for a big week and if the seismograph starts swaying at Georgetown University, ignore it; it's just the Missouri and Iowa delegates settling the Wallace question the hard way.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Blandy And Aides Deplore Cancellation of Third A-Bomb Test; Scientists Say "Pig 311" Story Hoax; Truman Turns Down McKellar On Flood-Control Spending

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 — It will probably be denied, but Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy and several of his top associates are boiling mad at the cancellation of the third atomic bomb test.

This was the test which the scientists predicted would really show the world the true power of the A-bomb, and which would have shown modern navies to be completely obsolete.

Unfortunately the reports of the colossal damage done by the first and second bombs were only made public piecemeal, days after the explosions took place, so that the public never got a clear picture of the fantastic destruction caused by the bomb.

Admiral Blandy and his aides have now made a confidential report which shows that more than half the men who would have been aboard the Bikini fleet would have been instantly killed; while more than 60 per cent of the survivors would have been permanently disabled or died of wounds.

Test no. 3 — underwater — would have been even more horrible. That is why men like Blandy who have been doing everything possible to educate the public to the truth about atomic energy are now pretty well disgusted. One example of the mistaken conclusions which the public got as a result of bombs no. 1 and 2 is the case of "Pig 311."

"Pig 311" is the porker supposed to have been placed aboard ship near the center of the explosion to demonstrate the effectiveness of bomb radiation on humans. After the second test it was reported that "Pig 311" had been hurled into the water by the explosion, had swum around 36 hours, and managed to survive with no sign of illness.

Scientists who checked this story, however, discovered that "Pig 311" had never been near the explosion and the incident had not occurred.

It never leaked out but when Admiral Blandy was about to hold a press conference aboard the USS Burleson which brought the surviving animals of the Bikini test back to Washington, an aide suggested that Blandy pose with "Pig 311" as evidence that the porker survived the terrors of the A-bomb.

"I will not be a party to any such hoax," replied Blandy, angrily. "We all know that 'Pig 311' never left this boat."

In the press conference which followed, "Pig 311" was not mentioned.

Real fact is that Blandy and his aides wish their superiors shared their realization of the A-bomb's devastating power.

Note—The bombs used at Bikini are mere beanbags alongside future bombs capable of destroying a hundred-square-mile area.

McKellar's Budget Balancing

Senator Kenneth McKellar's conference with President Truman on flood-control spending wasn't as congenial — or as truthful — as the gentleman from Tennessee intimated to the press.

Truman promised to "review" his executive order, under the War Powers Act, by which he slashed the $500,000,000 appropriation for rivers and harbors and flood control by two-thirds. This "promise" was hardly a face-saver for McKellar, so he wouldn't have to tell the newsmen that he had been turned down cold in his efforts to get the order rescinded.

Actually, he was turned down cold. Furthermore, he caught an indirect lecture from the President for preaching economy for others while raiding the treasury himself.

Plainly irritated by demands from the Tennessee Senator and several members of Congress who accompanied him that the anti-pork-barrel order be rescinded, Truman said:

"Several of you have been after me at one time or another to balance the budget, but when I begin doing it—as in this case—you step on my toes."

As an afterthought, Truman added that those who were most vocal about balancing the budget usually wanted it balanced in some other state.

McKellar's Blushes

Obviously the President had in mind a recent speech in which McKellar rapped him for the order blocking the rivers-and-harbors pork grab and challenged his right to issue the order.

The Tennesseean flushed as he listened to this lecture and looked for a moment as if he had been beaned with a croquet mallet. When he got his tongue into gear again, he sputtered something about being "heartily in accord" with balancing the budget.

He added, however, that the rivers-and-harbors project shouldn't be docked more than its proportionate share.

Truman made no promises about voiding his order, except to say that he would be glad to "review" it. He repeated that it was necessary to balance the budget, partly because of its effect in maintaining the high prestige the United States enjoys among other nations.

If the job had to be done at the expense of rivers and harbors, he was prepared to do it, he said, despite the bricks that might be thrown at him.

"The President usually has to take the bricks," he concluded, "and I can take them."

Note—The White House eventually may make some slight concessions on certain reclamation projects which the Budget Bureau now admits were cut too sharply, but that's all.

"General" Sarnoff

When David Sarnoff, head of the Radio Corporation of America, was presented at the recent meeting of the New National Commission to advise the State Department on Cultural activities, newsmen were uncertain whether to refer to him as General or plain Mister. He appeared in civilian clothes, having been in and out of the Army several times.

The problem was settled by an unidentified man who decided that Sarnoff, although a reserve officer, is still "Mister."

"Here's the story I've heard Sarnoff tell on himself," he said. "In December of 1944, the day after he went off active duty, Sarnoff left his office in Radio City, New York, to go downtown. When he reached the street, he stood in a cold rain trying to hail a taxi.

"Finally, an empty cab drew up and Sarnoff was about to get in when out of nowhere a young Army lieutenant jumped into the cab ahead of him and slammed the door. Sarnoff, forgetting he was out of uniform, was preparing to let the lieutenant know what he thought when the cab driver said, 'Sorry, buddy, but with me a serviceman gets the call over a civilian any time.' The cab drew off.

"And Sarnoff says that since then he has never forgotten he can no longer 'pull his rank,' even though he was a General."

Democrat Hopes Impeded Since Wallace Ouster

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the crystallizing of political consequences of President Truman's dismissal of Mr. Henry A. Wallace from his cabinet, some evidence emerged last week-end at Chicago. It came from a meeting called by its sponsors "a conference of progressives". The sponsors included the CIO Political Action Committee. The head of CIO as a labor union, Mr. Philip Murray, was present; and so was Mr. Jack Kroll who succeeded the late Mr. Sidney Hillman as head of the Political Action Committee, which Mr. Murray has spoken of as CIO's "political arm". Altogether it would be tenable to interpret the meeting and what it did as reflecting the state of mind of those who provide ideas and organization leadership for the CIO Political Action Committee and sympathetic groups.

No Mention of Truman

What the meeting most reflected was puzzlement. It adopted resolutions embodying its domestic and foreign policies, which in both fields parallel the policies of Henry Wallace. The policies which the meeting proclaimed are familiar. More conspicuous than any of them was an omission. There was no mention of President Truman.

Yet that omission did not really have as much significance as was implied by the conspicuousness which reporters gave to it. The CIO Political Action Committee has always maintained that it is not a part of the Democratic party, nor of the Republican one, that it makes use of the mechanisms of both parties to advance its own policies and promote its own political favorites. Quite possibly, had Mr. Truman's dismissal of Mr. Wallace never occurred, this meeting would not have endorsed the President. It was an anomaly of the Truman-Wallace relation, and of the Truman administration, that one of the President's cabinet members was the favorite and the receiver of constant laudation from a political group which, toward Mr. Truman had an attitude of frequent criticism or hostility.

Charge Is Conspicuous

It is true that omission of Mr. Truman's name at a conference sponsored by CIO and similar groups must have an effect on the Congressional campaign. There are candidates for Congress who are on the Democratic ticket, and at the same time have the support of CIO and depend upon it. As Democratic candidates, these in their campaign speeches must proclaim loyalty to the Democratic President. Their situation must make conspicuous to their constituencies the cleavage between the two groups whose support they depend upon, the Democratic Party and CIO. The election of Democratic candidates for Congress, and continuation of Democratic control of it, are definitely impeded by the Truman-Wallace split.

What most reflected the state of mind of the Chicago conference of CIO and groups of like mind was their program for the future. For the immediate congressional campaign, they declared they would have 500,000 workers in the 125,000 election precincts of the country, to elect members of Congress favorable to their program. In this sort of work, spoken of at the meeting as "doorbell ringing" the CIO Political Action Committee is more thoroughly organized than either of the old parties. Yet the success it may have in electing members of Congress is discounted by leaders of the old parties. During the primaries last summer, CIO carried on a similar campaign. Figures compiled by the Dunn Survey of Greenwich, Conn., suggest that CIO did not have great success in preventing nomination of candidates they opposed.

For the more distant future the conference marked time. They set up a "continuation committee" to meet at Washington immediately after the election in November. This is to call a second full-dress "conference of progressives" in January. Obviously the intention is to study the outcome of the November elections and then lay out a program for the Presidential election in 1948.

Program Centers About Wallace

The program of CIO and its friendly groups, past and present, centers about Henry Wallace. They tried desperately to nominate him for Vice-President on the ticket with President Roosevelt in 1944. Had they succeeded, they would now have Mr. Wallace in the White House.

After their defeat in 1944 they still clung to Mr. Wallace. The keeping of him in the cabinet by Mr. Truman was interpreted as a deference to them. It was their hope and expectation, and Mr. Truman must have known it, to get the Presidential nomination for Mr. Wallace in 1948, displacing Mr. Truman. This program was jarred, though not necessarily destroyed, by Mr. Truman's dismissal of Mr. Wallace.

CIO and groups of like mind may still cling to the purpose of nominating Mr. Wallace for President on the Democratic ticket in 1948. They must be guided by what prestige with Democrats Mr. Wallace may have kept or lost after his dismissal from the cabniet of a Democratic President. If not Mr. Wallace, who? There are only vague suggestions. Always there is talk of a third party. But the more practical leaders of the dissident groups discount that. Talk of a third party has its chief force as a threat designed to get consideration from the regular Democrats.

Letting Peoples Know Truth Only Way Of Preventing U. S.-Soviet War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—There is one way to prevent war between Russia and the United States—and that is to let the peoples of both countries know the truth.

This can be done only by lifting the censorship inside Russia and by persuading the American government to make public the texts of all the notes it has exchanged with the Soviet Union since V-J Day.

The American people are being misled by Russian propaganda. Thus Stalin made a gesture of friendship recently by his statement given to British correspondent, Alexander Werth, but inside Russia the government is preaching to its people the inevitability of conflict with the United States.

Stalin Softens U. S. Opinion

The Stalin maneuver is now known to have been merely a method of softening American public opinion to one of indifference to the matters going on between the governments at Paris and elsewhere in the world.

Stalin has also determined to try to drive a wedge between America and Britain and there are signs that some of the British statesmen are falling victims of the strategy, for they talk about acting as mediator between America and Britain and pursuing a neutral course between these two countries.

Likewise, inside the United States the "party line" has been given to the intermediaries who manage in one way or another to attract innocent liberals to their way of thinking. The chief strategy in this recently has been to cause Americans to denounce the British policies. This maneuver was one of the Nazi's favorite approaches to the problem of dividing the Allies, but it never succeeded except to corral some elements which were quite ready to join any cause as long as it was anti-British.

It may be expected, however, that the "party line" will soon change and that efforts will be made by Stalin to build up a pro-Soviet strength in both the United States and Britain, while at the same time carrying on the opposite tactics inside Russia.

Truth On Russia Withheld

This business of pursuing one policy to obtain concessions from Allied governments in pending negotiations and another to build up a pro-war sentiment at home would not be possible if the American people were able to read uncensored reports of what is going on inside Russia. There is reason to believe that the American people today are not getting full reports of what the Soviet leaders are saying to their own people.

Only when a correspondent leaves Moscow can he tell all the truth. The Russian government limits the number of correspondents in Russia to a handful and exercises a severe censorship on all outgoing material, even though it is merely a reproduction of what is being written and printed in the Russian press.

A comparison of the contents of such publications as do reach the outside world belatedly with what was transmitted by the correspondents in Russia at a given time indicates that the internal and external policies of the Soviet are distinctly different. There would be no harm in this if the internal propaganda were not designed to maintain a feeling of hospitality toward the American government. A certain amount of boasting and exaggeration for home consumption is understandable but, when a totalitarian government incites its own people to a sentiment of suspicion and hatred, there is bound to be friction in the long run. This has been going on for a long time and now has produced similar suspicions in the United States.

The truth of the matter is that every bit of evidence received from persons familiar with the Russian situation and from a reading of the Soviet press indicates that the recent statement of Stalin does not signify any change in Soviet policy or any retreat whatsoever but was designed solely to affect external opinion and to influence Allied governments so that they would yield more and more to Russian demands.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Billy Rose

The other day I was in a deep study—the one I use when they're cleaning the shallow study. My secretary announced a young lady with a letter of introduction from an old friend. "She says she's a writer and wants some advice," my secretary added.

"Aha," I aha'd. "Have her wait." I quickly put on a smoking jacket, stubbed out my cigarette, lit a meerschaum and settled back in a recently rehearsed pose, the Author Among His Books. "Show her in," I commanded.

In walked a spectacled version of Jane Russell. Like all young writers in the presence of the Master, she knocked her head three times against the floor.

"Mr. Rose," she began.

"Call me Somerset," I cut in.

"Somerset," she corrected herself. "I want to write. My parents keep telling me all I have to do is go to a typewriter and put words on paper. But the fellows I know tell me I should live dangerously. To write, they say, one must drink deep of the cup of Life. My uncle said I ought to talk to you about it."

I put another match to the meerchaum, which refused to stay lit. "What kind of writing do you want to do?" I asked.

"Oh, a book with depth and significance," she answered. "Like 'Forever Amber'."

I got it. Obviously her uncle wanted me to fast-talk her into going home to mommy. Well, now that I'm too old to set a bad example, I delight in giving good advice. I went into my monologue like an old vaudevillian.

"My dear child," I said, "write about Life as it really happens, and you'll paper your walls with rejection slips. It's too improbable, corn-crusted and mawkish. For instance: In Egypt they discovered a boy who was raised by a herd of gazelles. He eats grass and runs fifty miles an hour. Submit that as fiction to an editor and he'll drop you down the elevator shaft.

"And how about the Indian Maharajah who climbed off the funeral pyre when the fire got hot and for 20 years tried to prove he was alive? He finally was believed and restored to the throne—and then died the next week. Try selling that to True Story Magazine.

"And don't tell me the incredible only happens in faraway places. The other day a five-year-old boy, blind from birth, had his sight restored by an operation. When they took the bandages off, the youngster saw his mother for the first time and said, 'Gee, you're pretty.' Put that much sentiment on a stage and the critics will brickbat you out of town."

She broke in. "But you don't understand—I want to write about romance. The love stories of real people aren't stranger than fiction."

"In a pig's eye," I retorted elegantly. "Let me tell you a true story that makes Cinderella and the Prince seem commonplace. In San Francisco a few years ago there was a lady steeplejack. She specialized in painting church spires. One day she fell in love with another steeplejack. His specialty was painting flagpoles on top of office buildings. They married and were very happy. They made a handsome couple, swinging side by side in the clouds and swishing their brushes like crazy.

"One day the lady took a bad fall. She slipped in her bathtub and suffered a painful spine injury. When she recovered, she rejoined her spouse on the steeples. But the old assurance was gone. She was nervous, uncertain. The joy had gone out of the work. On two occasions only the ready arm of her husband kept her from plunging to the pavement, hundreds of feet below. Doctors said there was nothing wrong with her—it was all mental. Her husband pondered the problem for weeks, and then from his sensitive heart came the solution. He ordered a plumber to rip out the bathtub and replace it with a shower. And they've been painting happily ever since."

The phone rang and my secretary announced the next caller. I took my friend's niece to the door and let go with a parting shot, "Kathleen Windsor resently said if she had done all the things she told about in 'Forever Amber,' she never would have had time to write it."

The powderpuff Hemingway smiled a goodbye. "Well anyhow, it's nice work if you can get it," she said, and went out to keep her rendezvous with Life.

Nazis Convicted By Fair System They Wanted Destroyed

Ten members of Adolf Hitler's government of madmen who helped plan and execute a war that was to see virtually every nation in the world involved, will swing from the gallows at Nuremberg, Germany, two weeks from yesterday for their crime against humanity.

Three of the defendants were given life prison terms, four will be jailed, while three were acquitted. One was convicted, and sentenced to be hanged in absentia. The individual verdicts and the pronouncements of the sentences climaxed a trial of many months, before a tribunal that has no precedent. The accused members of an army and government defeated in a brutal conflict, were found guilty, or acquitted, by a court made up of representatives of the victor nations. But the painstaking fairness that marked the cases must be cause for admiration by the peoples of the earth.

It required more than nine months to hear the evidence against each defendant, and to permit the 21 in the prisoners' dock to have his final say. From ranting Hermann Goering, shouting his self-justification, Rudolph Hess, rambling dimly through the past, to weeping Walter Funk they begged mercy, never dreaming for a minute that their conquerors would go to all the trouble and expense to bring them to justice. Until they heard their doom they defied the court or played the stoic. They finally became weary in their last act of tragic frustration during the long months of prosecution, and Monday and Tuesday, when they learned their fate was no exception.

Those verdicts were the considered opinion of one of the most important and significant tribunals ever assembled in human annals. The proceedings wrote a new chapter of history. It was an elaborate demonstration of democracy at work in the full glare of a world spotlight. Their crimes were those long recognized as capital crimes through the ages, and they were tried under a system of fairness they tried to destroy.

It's the irksome task that puts you on your mettle.

World Awaits Change In Joseph Stalin's Attitude

There is no indication yet that the statement issued by Joseph Stalin ten days ago has brought any change in Soviet policy. The world waits for some hint that Russia will act to implement his peace views. So far there has been no abatement of the hostile tone of official and unofficial Moscow utterances, in contrast to which Stalin's pronouncement was so refreshing and so encouraging.

Most disappointing of all is the continuing refusal of the Soviet Union and its satellites to join with the western democracies in any program for recovery and stabilization in areas where famine and chaos have been averted so far by stopgag measures, largely financed by the United States. Most depressing at the moment are the economic situations in Hungary, Austria and Germany, and the tensions in Greece and at Trieste, provoked by the warlike gestures of Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria, states under Russian control.

Nikolai I. Feonov, Russian delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, meeting at Lake Success, has rejected all proposals for rebuilding Europe's shattered economy on a unified, continent-wide basis. Yet some degree of unity is essential if there are to be such developments as a hydro-electric power system, and if avenues of transport are to be freed from political roadblocks. In one breath, Mr. Feonov has complained because suggested plans treated Europe as an economic entity and did not tie in its problems and resources with those of the rest of the world. In the next, he has objected to United States representation on a central co-ordinating commission for the reconstruction of European economy. Americans cannot follow reasoning which so ignores the realities.

More than 70 percent of the money for European relief and rehabilitation since the war has been contributed by the United States. We will be expected to furnish money for more permanent reconstruction measures in about the same ratio. But certainly that money will not be forthcoming unless we are to have some voice in its spending. We do not want our money used to finance another war, or a series of small wars, such as are breeding at the moment. The Albanians, presently creating incidents on the Greek border, are living on UNRRA rations. Americans have good reason to believe that their UNRRA dollars have been used to build up Marshal Tito's army, now threatening Italy. We also have a right to insist that money we send to Europe be spent wisely, where it will buy the most for the greatest number, without respect to iron curtains, boundry lines, ideologies, nationalities or religion.

Europe needs an integrated economy, if it is to become self-sustaining again, and barriers to such a program must be removed. But most of all, Europe needs peace. And Russia holds the answer to that.

Criticize yourself and you'll be too busy to criticize others.

Expense Justified

Because of what it termed an imperative need, the Civil Aeronautics Board has ordered new fire-safety rules for all passenger planes.

The new rules are designed to prevent fire in flight and are the result of investigations into several serious accidents. Among other things, they provide for fire detectors and built-in fire extinguishers in engines and all other installations where combustible fluids are used. Flame-resisting materials must be used in passenger and crew compartments. Non-inflammable hydraulic fluid must be used as soon as it becomes available, probably not for several months.

Work on the modification of the planes to which the new rules apply is scheduled to start January 1. Although the cost of the changes may average thousands of dollars a plane, according to airline estimates, the recent crash of a Belgian airliner in Newfoundland and other similar accidents make it clear that the greatest possible protection against fire is a top necessity. If money will buy more safety, the expense is fully justified.

SPRAINED ANKLE

SOMETIMES during an unguarded moment we take an awkward step. Should the sole of the foot turn in, the entire weight of the body is suddenly forced upon the ankle joint. If the strain on the neighboring tissues is sufficient to tear the structures, a sprain results. The majority of mishaps occur when the foot is rocked inwardly toward the midline. By contrast, fractures are more common should the part be turned outward.

The abnormality is seen most frequently among those engaged in competitive sports altho a high percentage can be blamed on slipping, catching the foot in a crevice, or a misstep. Occasionally a fall from a height is responsible especially if the lower extremities are not in good alignment when the ground is struck.

The ligaments suffer the greatest injury. This is fortunate for, if they do not bear the brunt, the bony attachment is likely to break. Occasionally the fibrous capsule surrounding the joint is also damaged as well as the blood vessels traversing these parts.

Pain is usually present. Fluid accumulates, which produces swelling, localized first over the affected area; soon puffiness spreads until the entire ankle zone is involved. Hemorrhages cause the skin to become black and blue within a few days. Some individuals are able to walk but, as they move about, discomfort increases so that limping ensues. Several hours may be required before distress reaches its maximum intensity and throbbing is common, particularly during the first night.

It is not always easy to tell after accidents of this type, whether sprain or fracture exists. For this reason, X-rays are advised. I recall a patient who slipped on the ice and experienced sudden pain in the left ankle. She was helped into a cab and taken to the hospital. On examination it was obvious that the structure had been hurt altho only a sprain was suspected. The films revealed that three bones had been cracked.

A simple method of treating a sprained ankle was devised by Thorndike for football players. As soon as possible the extremity is immersed in ice water for 30 minutes; or cold compresses may be substituted. Then an elastic pressure dressing is applied, to discourage edema and rest the part. Twenty-four to 48 hours later heat and massage are started. Up to this time, crutches are used but these devices are discarded within 7 to 10 days. Then the structure is rebound with adhesive and the patient is allowed to walk without aid.

Cold is advised early because heat used initially encourages puffiness. Once this stage has passed, warmth is beneficial. By keeping off the feet thru employing crutches or staying in bed the torn ligaments are better able to approximate themselves. Rest is the secret of healing and is demonstrated most vividly when we cut the skin over a knuckle. Constant movement will delay the process but if the finger is kept stiff, repair may be expected within a day or two.

Unless sprains are managed adequately there is a danger that the ankle will be weak thereafter, with recurrences on the slightest provocation. In some cases in which the impairment is slight, tape alone will suffice. On the other hand, when the trauma is severe and the individual cannot use crutches or is unable to remain in bed for a few days, a cast can be applied with a walking caliper attached.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2 — Arrived here for the American Legion Convention, the first full convention since Pearl Harbor. The vets of World War 2 have brought a lot of new ideas to the Legion meet. In fact, I hadn't been in town two hours before I was hit on the head with a plastic bag full of water.

I said to one policeman who was highly disturbed that he should remember the boys were just "Ships that pass in the night." He said he didn't mind the ships, but when they put the locomotives in the Mark Hopkins lobby it was just too much.

Mayor Lapham welcomed the boys from the City Hall steps, and it would have been quite an affair if someone only had known where the steps were at the moment.

Yes sir, San Francisco is in for a big week and if the seismograph starts swaying at Georgetown University, ignore it; it's just the Missouri and Iowa delegates settling the Wallace question the hard way.

Blandy And Aides Deplore Cancellation of Third A-Bomb Test; Scientists Say "Pig 311" Story Hoax; Truman Turns Down McKellar On Flood-Control Spending

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 — It will probably be denied, but Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy and several of his top associates are boiling mad at the cancellation of the third atomic bomb test.

This was the test which the scientists predicted would really show the world the true power of the A-bomb, and which would have shown modern navies to be completely obsolete.

Unfortunately the reports of the colossal damage done by the first and second bombs were only made public piecemeal, days after the explosions took place, so that the public never got a clear picture of the fantastic destruction caused by the bomb.

Admiral Blandy and his aides have now made a confidential report which shows that more than half the men who would have been aboard the Bikini fleet would have been instantly killed; while more than 60 per cent of the survivors would have been permanently disabled or died of wounds.

Test no. 3 — underwater — would have been even more horrible. That is why men like Blandy who have been doing everything possible to educate the public to the truth about atomic energy are now pretty well disgusted. One example of the mistaken conclusions which the public got as a result of bombs no. 1 and 2 is the case of "Pig 311."

"Pig 311" is the porker supposed to have been placed aboard ship near the center of the explosion to demonstrate the effectiveness of bomb radiation on humans. After the second test it was reported that "Pig 311" had been hurled into the water by the explosion, had swum around 36 hours, and managed to survive with no sign of illness.

Scientists who checked this story, however, discovered that "Pig 311" had never been near the explosion and the incident had not occurred.

It never leaked out but when Admiral Blandy was about to hold a press conference aboard the USS Burleson which brought the surviving animals of the Bikini test back to Washington, an aide suggested that Blandy pose with "Pig 311" as evidence that the porker survived the terrors of the A-bomb.

"I will not be a party to any such hoax," replied Blandy, angrily. "We all know that 'Pig 311' never left this boat."

In the press conference which followed, "Pig 311" was not mentioned.

Real fact is that Blandy and his aides wish their superiors shared their realization of the A-bomb's devastating power.

Note—The bombs used at Bikini are mere beanbags alongside future bombs capable of destroying a hundred-square-mile area.

McKellar's Budget Balancing

Senator Kenneth McKellar's conference with President Truman on flood-control spending wasn't as congenial — or as truthful — as the gentleman from Tennessee intimated to the press.

Truman promised to "review" his executive order, under the War Powers Act, by which he slashed the $500,000,000 appropriation for rivers and harbors and flood control by two-thirds. This "promise" was hardly a face-saver for McKellar, so he wouldn't have to tell the newsmen that he had been turned down cold in his efforts to get the order rescinded.

Actually, he was turned down cold. Furthermore, he caught an indirect lecture from the President for preaching economy for others while raiding the treasury himself.

Plainly irritated by demands from the Tennessee Senator and several members of Congress who accompanied him that the anti-pork-barrel order be rescinded, Truman said:

"Several of you have been after me at one time or another to balance the budget, but when I begin doing it—as in this case—you step on my toes."

As an afterthought, Truman added that those who were most vocal about balancing the budget usually wanted it balanced in some other state.

McKellar's Blushes

Obviously the President had in mind a recent speech in which McKellar rapped him for the order blocking the rivers-and-harbors pork grab and challenged his right to issue the order.

The Tennesseean flushed as he listened to this lecture and looked for a moment as if he had been beaned with a croquet mallet. When he got his tongue into gear again, he sputtered something about being "heartily in accord" with balancing the budget.

He added, however, that the rivers-and-harbors project shouldn't be docked more than its proportionate share.

Truman made no promises about voiding his order, except to say that he would be glad to "review" it. He repeated that it was necessary to balance the budget, partly because of its effect in maintaining the high prestige the United States enjoys among other nations.

If the job had to be done at the expense of rivers and harbors, he was prepared to do it, he said, despite the bricks that might be thrown at him.

"The President usually has to take the bricks," he concluded, "and I can take them."

Note—The White House eventually may make some slight concessions on certain reclamation projects which the Budget Bureau now admits were cut too sharply, but that's all.

"General" Sarnoff

When David Sarnoff, head of the Radio Corporation of America, was presented at the recent meeting of the New National Commission to advise the State Department on Cultural activities, newsmen were uncertain whether to refer to him as General or plain Mister. He appeared in civilian clothes, having been in and out of the Army several times.

The problem was settled by an unidentified man who decided that Sarnoff, although a reserve officer, is still "Mister."

"Here's the story I've heard Sarnoff tell on himself," he said. "In December of 1944, the day after he went off active duty, Sarnoff left his office in Radio City, New York, to go downtown. When he reached the street, he stood in a cold rain trying to hail a taxi.

"Finally, an empty cab drew up and Sarnoff was about to get in when out of nowhere a young Army lieutenant jumped into the cab ahead of him and slammed the door. Sarnoff, forgetting he was out of uniform, was preparing to let the lieutenant know what he thought when the cab driver said, 'Sorry, buddy, but with me a serviceman gets the call over a civilian any time.' The cab drew off.

"And Sarnoff says that since then he has never forgotten he can no longer 'pull his rank,' even though he was a General."

Democrat Hopes Impeded Since Wallace Ouster

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the crystallizing of political consequences of President Truman's dismissal of Mr. Henry A. Wallace from his cabinet, some evidence emerged last week-end at Chicago. It came from a meeting called by its sponsors "a conference of progressives". The sponsors included the CIO Political Action Committee. The head of CIO as a labor union, Mr. Philip Murray, was present; and so was Mr. Jack Kroll who succeeded the late Mr. Sidney Hillman as head of the Political Action Committee, which Mr. Murray has spoken of as CIO's "political arm". Altogether it would be tenable to interpret the meeting and what it did as reflecting the state of mind of those who provide ideas and organization leadership for the CIO Political Action Committee and sympathetic groups.

No Mention of Truman

What the meeting most reflected was puzzlement. It adopted resolutions embodying its domestic and foreign policies, which in both fields parallel the policies of Henry Wallace. The policies which the meeting proclaimed are familiar. More conspicuous than any of them was an omission. There was no mention of President Truman.

Yet that omission did not really have as much significance as was implied by the conspicuousness which reporters gave to it. The CIO Political Action Committee has always maintained that it is not a part of the Democratic party, nor of the Republican one, that it makes use of the mechanisms of both parties to advance its own policies and promote its own political favorites. Quite possibly, had Mr. Truman's dismissal of Mr. Wallace never occurred, this meeting would not have endorsed the President. It was an anomaly of the Truman-Wallace relation, and of the Truman administration, that one of the President's cabinet members was the favorite and the receiver of constant laudation from a political group which, toward Mr. Truman had an attitude of frequent criticism or hostility.

Charge Is Conspicuous

It is true that omission of Mr. Truman's name at a conference sponsored by CIO and similar groups must have an effect on the Congressional campaign. There are candidates for Congress who are on the Democratic ticket, and at the same time have the support of CIO and depend upon it. As Democratic candidates, these in their campaign speeches must proclaim loyalty to the Democratic President. Their situation must make conspicuous to their constituencies the cleavage between the two groups whose support they depend upon, the Democratic Party and CIO. The election of Democratic candidates for Congress, and continuation of Democratic control of it, are definitely impeded by the Truman-Wallace split.

What most reflected the state of mind of the Chicago conference of CIO and groups of like mind was their program for the future. For the immediate congressional campaign, they declared they would have 500,000 workers in the 125,000 election precincts of the country, to elect members of Congress favorable to their program. In this sort of work, spoken of at the meeting as "doorbell ringing" the CIO Political Action Committee is more thoroughly organized than either of the old parties. Yet the success it may have in electing members of Congress is discounted by leaders of the old parties. During the primaries last summer, CIO carried on a similar campaign. Figures compiled by the Dunn Survey of Greenwich, Conn., suggest that CIO did not have great success in preventing nomination of candidates they opposed.

For the more distant future the conference marked time. They set up a "continuation committee" to meet at Washington immediately after the election in November. This is to call a second full-dress "conference of progressives" in January. Obviously the intention is to study the outcome of the November elections and then lay out a program for the Presidential election in 1948.

Program Centers About Wallace

The program of CIO and its friendly groups, past and present, centers about Henry Wallace. They tried desperately to nominate him for Vice-President on the ticket with President Roosevelt in 1944. Had they succeeded, they would now have Mr. Wallace in the White House.

After their defeat in 1944 they still clung to Mr. Wallace. The keeping of him in the cabinet by Mr. Truman was interpreted as a deference to them. It was their hope and expectation, and Mr. Truman must have known it, to get the Presidential nomination for Mr. Wallace in 1948, displacing Mr. Truman. This program was jarred, though not necessarily destroyed, by Mr. Truman's dismissal of Mr. Wallace.

CIO and groups of like mind may still cling to the purpose of nominating Mr. Wallace for President on the Democratic ticket in 1948. They must be guided by what prestige with Democrats Mr. Wallace may have kept or lost after his dismissal from the cabniet of a Democratic President. If not Mr. Wallace, who? There are only vague suggestions. Always there is talk of a third party. But the more practical leaders of the dissident groups discount that. Talk of a third party has its chief force as a threat designed to get consideration from the regular Democrats.

Letting Peoples Know Truth Only Way Of Preventing U. S.-Soviet War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—There is one way to prevent war between Russia and the United States—and that is to let the peoples of both countries know the truth.

This can be done only by lifting the censorship inside Russia and by persuading the American government to make public the texts of all the notes it has exchanged with the Soviet Union since V-J Day.

The American people are being misled by Russian propaganda. Thus Stalin made a gesture of friendship recently by his statement given to British correspondent, Alexander Werth, but inside Russia the government is preaching to its people the inevitability of conflict with the United States.

Stalin Softens U. S. Opinion

The Stalin maneuver is now known to have been merely a method of softening American public opinion to one of indifference to the matters going on between the governments at Paris and elsewhere in the world.

Stalin has also determined to try to drive a wedge between America and Britain and there are signs that some of the British statesmen are falling victims of the strategy, for they talk about acting as mediator between America and Britain and pursuing a neutral course between these two countries.

Likewise, inside the United States the "party line" has been given to the intermediaries who manage in one way or another to attract innocent liberals to their way of thinking. The chief strategy in this recently has been to cause Americans to denounce the British policies. This maneuver was one of the Nazi's favorite approaches to the problem of dividing the Allies, but it never succeeded except to corral some elements which were quite ready to join any cause as long as it was anti-British.

It may be expected, however, that the "party line" will soon change and that efforts will be made by Stalin to build up a pro-Soviet strength in both the United States and Britain, while at the same time carrying on the opposite tactics inside Russia.

Truth On Russia Withheld

This business of pursuing one policy to obtain concessions from Allied governments in pending negotiations and another to build up a pro-war sentiment at home would not be possible if the American people were able to read uncensored reports of what is going on inside Russia. There is reason to believe that the American people today are not getting full reports of what the Soviet leaders are saying to their own people.

Only when a correspondent leaves Moscow can he tell all the truth. The Russian government limits the number of correspondents in Russia to a handful and exercises a severe censorship on all outgoing material, even though it is merely a reproduction of what is being written and printed in the Russian press.

A comparison of the contents of such publications as do reach the outside world belatedly with what was transmitted by the correspondents in Russia at a given time indicates that the internal and external policies of the Soviet are distinctly different. There would be no harm in this if the internal propaganda were not designed to maintain a feeling of hospitality toward the American government. A certain amount of boasting and exaggeration for home consumption is understandable but, when a totalitarian government incites its own people to a sentiment of suspicion and hatred, there is bound to be friction in the long run. This has been going on for a long time and now has produced similar suspicions in the United States.

The truth of the matter is that every bit of evidence received from persons familiar with the Russian situation and from a reading of the Soviet press indicates that the recent statement of Stalin does not signify any change in Soviet policy or any retreat whatsoever but was designed solely to affect external opinion and to influence Allied governments so that they would yield more and more to Russian demands.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

The other day I was in a deep study—the one I use when they're cleaning the shallow study. My secretary announced a young lady with a letter of introduction from an old friend. "She says she's a writer and wants some advice," my secretary added.

"Aha," I aha'd. "Have her wait." I quickly put on a smoking jacket, stubbed out my cigarette, lit a meerschaum and settled back in a recently rehearsed pose, the Author Among His Books. "Show her in," I commanded.

Billy Rose

In walked a spectacled version of Jane Russell. Like all young writers in the presence of the Master, she knocked her head three times against the floor.

"Mr. Rose," she began.

"Call me Somerset," I cut in.

"Somerset," she corrected herself. "I want to write. My parents keep telling me all I have to do is go to a typewriter and put words on paper. But the fellows I know tell me I should live dangerously. To write, they say, one must drink deep of the cup of Life. My uncle said I ought to talk to you about it."

I put another match to the meerschaum, which refused to stay lit. "What kind of writing do you want to do?" I asked.

"Oh, a book with depth and significance," she answered. "Like 'Forever Amber'."

I got it. Obviously her uncle wanted me to fast-talk her into going home to mommy. Well, now that I'm too old to set a bad example, I delight in giving good advice. I went into my monologue like an old vaudevillian.

'My dear child," I said, "write about Life as it really happens, and you'll paper your walls with rejection slips. It's too improbable, corn-crusted and mawkish. For instance: In Egypt they discovered a boy who was raised by a herd of gazelles. He eats grass and runs fifty miles an hour. Submit that as fiction to an editor and he'll drop you down the elevator shaft.

"And how about the Indian Maharajah who climbed off the funeral pyre when the fire got hot and for 20 years tried to prove he was alive? He finally was believed and restored to the throne—and then died the next week. Try selling that to True Story Magazine.

"And don't tell me the incredible only happens in faraway places. The other day a five-year-old boy, blind from birth, had his sight restored by an operation. When they took the bandages off, the youngster saw his mother for the first time and said, 'Gee, you're pretty.' Put that much sentiment on a stage and the critics will brickbat you out of town."

She broke in. "But you don't understand—I want to write about romance. The love stories of real people aren't stranger than fiction."

"In a pig's eye," I retorted elegantly. "Let me tell you a true story that makes Cinderella and the Prince seem commonplace. In San Francisco a few years ago there was a lady steeplejack. She specialized in painting church spires. One day she fell in love with another steeplejack. His specialty was painting flagpoles on top of office buildings. They married and were very happy. They made a handsome couple, swinging side by side in the clouds and swishing their brushes like crazy.

"One day the lady took a bad fall. She slipped in her bathtub and suffered a painful spine injury. When she recovered, she rejoined her spouse on the steeples. But the old assurance was gone. She was nervous, uncertain. The joy had gone out of the work. On two occasions only the ready arm of her husband kept her from plunging to the pavement, hundreds of feet below. Doctors said there was nothing wrong with her—it was all mental. Her husband pondered the problem for weeks, and then from his sensitive heart came the solution. He ordered a plumber to rip out the bathtub and replace it with a shower. And they've been painting happily ever since."

The phone rang and my secretary announced the next caller. I took my friend's niece to the door and let go with a parting shot. "Kathleen Windsor resently said if she had done all the things she told about in 'Forever Amber,' she never would have had time to write it."

The powderpuff Hemingway smiled a goodbye. "Well anyhow, it's nice work if you can get it," she said, and went out to keep her rendezvous with Life.

Upturn Fails To Achieve Momentum But Lifts Stocks Up To Two Points

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—An upturn that never achieved momentum lifted stocks fractions to around two points in today's market.

Steels and rails led the recovery move in early dealings, and although gains spread to other sections of the list, demand slackened. Extreme advances were shaded here and there, while a few issues stayed in losing ground.

Transfers totalled 960,000 shares compared with 890,000 Tuesday.

Among gainers were Youngstown Sheet at $64, up $1.75; United States Steel at $71.25, up 75 cents; Southern Railway at $38.25, up $1.37, Union Pacific at $120.50, up $2, and United States Rubber at $59.25, up $1.75.

Laggards included American Can, Douglas Aircraft and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Bonds showed late improvement.

Advancing in the Curb were Cities Service, United Gas, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover here was 290,000 shares against 250,000 Tuesday.

A better brand of buying in the final hour lifted the bond market out of a narrow rut and placed a selected list of rails and utilities major fractions to two or more points higher. There were some laggards in all groups.

Showing brisk advances were Katy first 4s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Morris and Essex 4½s, New Haven 3½s, 4½s and 6s, Westchester and Boston 4½s, Pennsylvania Cenral Airlines 3½s, Frisco 5s and Southern Pacific 4½s.

On the losing end were Reading 3⅛s, Cotton Belt 5s, Pennsylvania Railroad 3⅛s and New York Central 5s.

Brazilian issues paced a generally lower foriegn dollar list.

United States governments were quiet on both the stock exchange.

Sales of $4,600,000 were far below the recent average and compared with $4,720,000 the day before.

Fall Shoes Have Style And Warmth

FOOTNOTES TO FALL . . . New closed-toe styles are (l. to r.): Brown calf spectator pump with slashed "squadron" design, by Marino; stitched suit shoe in calf with tailored ornament, by Wolf; suede D'Orsay with butterfly bow, designed by Fox.

SHOES OF THE SEASON . . . Outstanding fashions are (l. to r.): Closed-toe platform pump in black suede with corded vamp, by Palter de Liso; flat suede wedge, by I. Miller, and a new draped vamp flat in smooth calf, designed by Newton Elkin.

[By The Associated Press]

This winter you won't have to wade through the snowdrifts in airy, open-toed shoes. This winter your stiff blue toes won't have to gather icicles. The war is over, and closed-toe shoes are back.

Shoe designers, exulting in the piping days of peace, have gone to town this season with new and elegant shoe styles which not only look pretty but also protect your feet, a footwear function practically forgotten for the last five years.

Back on the shoe scene are the flattering and ever-popular opera pump, the smart calf walking shoe, the suit pump in butter-smooth calf, the suede D'Orsay and the closed-toe-and-heel platform pump.

Designs are simple. There are few flashy ornaments, fewer beads and sequins. But there's a new dressmaker touch to the fine shoes—draped or tucked vamps, stitching, piping, quilting and scallops, discreet bows and tailored ornaments with a new look.

For those who prefer them, there are still open-toed, open-heeled models, suggested for dressy wear. The sling pump still is popular with a large group of women, and is presented in new and flattering versions for fall.

Platforms are important also, say officials of the Guild of Better Shoe Manufacturers, and to last year's amazing double decker has been added a triple decker.

But the news this season is that there's a shoe for every taste—and if you want closed toes and heels, you can get them.

Mr. Platt explained his plan for the development of instrumental music in the schools and arrangements for classes in instrumental courses which will be offered to the children.

Dr. Anderson discussed the nutrition survey being conducted in Columbia street and East Side schools, the purpose of which is to find the actual relationship of nutrition and health. Dr. Anderson illustrated his talk with pictures showing the effect of diet on the general health of people in other sections of the country.

Miss Margaret Doak's fifth grade room won the $5 for the largest percentage of parents attending. Refreshments were served by a committee comprised of Mrs. Chisholm and her co-chairman, Mrs. Allie Yankey, and Mrs. Harry Bell, Mrs. John Ferguson and Mrs. Frances Frey.

AID TO THEATREGATE—Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, is the first local organization to come to the aid of Cumberland's dramatic organization, Theatregate, with a financial contribution. Frank J. Davis, deputy supreme governor of the Moose, is shown above as he presented a check for $50 to Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie, president of the group. Looking on (left to right) are Mrs. Earl Gower, secretary; Miss Erica Donovan, director; Charles F. Burke, Jr., treasurer of the Moose lodge; and Mrs. John Durst (extreme right), chairman of the publicity committee. Theatregate's next production, "Dangerous Corner," will be given in Cumberland October 9, 10 and 11 at West Side School at 8:30 p. m.

Most Bakeries

Other baking company officials reported conditions much the same. One official, who asked that his name be withheld, said the company which operates three plants in the area, is partially closed. He said the supply of shortening on hand is sufficient for not more than 12 days.

Most companies have substituted oil to grease pans, and some are using sweetened milk to replace sugar, which is also reported to be running low.

Further trouble was predicted for local bakeries in the next couple of weeks, one official said, with the announcement of a 25 per cent cut in cellophane and wax wrapping paper.

Refusing New Business

All of the local bakeries said they "definitely are not accepting any new business," and many predicted quota cuts for present customers if the shortage of materials continues.

In nearby Pennsylvania, several baking companies have closed their plants, and retailers are seeking to get supplies from Cumberland bakeries, officials said. Local plants will not attempt to increase the quotas in the area, the baking heads asserted.

The shortage of lard is a direct result of the lack of meat as few hogs are being slaughtered, and the source is cut off. The vegetable compound shortage is caused by the increased demand, since lard cannot be obtained.

History Of

on clearing the cemetery of brush, grass and weeds.

Broadwater explained yesterday that the church board has agreed that no more graves will be opened on the plot, and no more tombstones shall be erected. The project calls for co-operation of families whose relatives and friends are buried here, to help clear the ground and make the place look better, he said.

The plan calls for leveling the lots, filling sunken graves, replacing markers where possible, and planting a lawn so that grass can be cut regularly and weeds and brush kept out. The job will be a big task, Broadwater declared, but if everyone helps a little, it shouldn't take long or prove too costly.

Conditions Have Changed

People in the community realize time has changed conditions. They are aware the village is no longer a little farming community, but is now an important residential section near a large industry where main and modern highways pass through. The cemetery lies only a few feet from U. S. Route 220, and is an eyesore to those who pass. They want the place improved, and are cooperating to improve it.

The church alongside is a modern imposing edifice, and is the finest looking building in the town, second probably only to the public school, half-a-mile away. But the unkept church yard is admittedly no credit to any community.

Mr. Hershberger recalled yesterday, that church records show that Francis Asbury, the first Methodist Bishop in American preached at Cresaptown, probably as early as 1782, and it is believed he may have dedicated the first church there.

Dr. Frank G. Porter, D.D. Conference historian, several years ago wrote, "Asbury was in that section of the country as early as the summer of 1782. He writes that in June 1782. He was 'on Pattern Creek, North Branch of Potomac, crossed the Knobbley Mountain and stopped at Colonel Joseph Cresap's, near what we used to know as Brady's Mill.'

"In 1783, the preachers on the 'Allegany Circuit' were Francis Poythress and Benjamin Roberts. On June 30, 1784, Asbury preached to a large congregation at Joseph Cresap's, 'with freedom of spirit and utterance.' August 1804 he preached at Joseph Cresap's and preached at Cresap's Mill.

Cresaptown Is Mentioned

"His first mention of Cresaptown by name was on June 29, 1808. He wrote, 'I preached in the chapel at Cresaps-Town.' How long before this the chapel was built I do not know, but Mrs. Harriet Cresap Wilson, grandmother of Robert C. Wilson, heard Asbury preach there when she was 12 years of age. Being born in 1796 would make that date 1808.

"The first class leader at Cresaptown was Joseph Cresap, appointed by Bishop Asbury before any chapel was built. The Bishop, in the seventeen eighties urged Daniel Van Meter of Cresaptown to go to the state of Ohio. The Bishop lodged with Mr. Van Meter there in 1803."

The above data, preserved by Mr. Hershberger, would indicate that the first chapel at this site was built about 1804, the same year the first person was buried there, Ann Baxter, slave of Brady.

So as Anderson wrote, "it is a touching and beautiful history . . . we find no such history elsewhere . . ."

The people of Cresaptown, particularly those associated with the Cresaptown Methodist Church, realize the responsibility of restoring and preserving this old country church yard. As Broadwater said yesterday, "It is a big job, but important enough that all of us should help."

GATEWAY CHATTER

By NEWS STAFF MEMBERS

Here's the first campaign slogan for this fall which has come to the attention of Chatter and brother it's right down our alley. We understand it originated in one of the New England States — Vermont or New Hampshire. However, it doesn't matter where it originated, because it certainly is appealing to the voters and you'll hear it a lot of times between now and Nov. 5. We won't keep you waiting any longer, so here it is:

"HAD ENOUGH? VOTE REPUBLICAN."

Two of Allegany county's theaters deserve bouquets for benefit performances which they will give this week for the "Jones Family Fund". Lionel Clark, operator of the Midland theater will give a special show tomorrow night with the entire proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund". In order to swell the proceeds Mr. Clark will increase his admission prices for the benefit show to 20 and 40 cents. His employes are donating their service in order that the Jones family will receive the entire benefit of his undertaking. William Joseph Jones, who is now a patient in the State Sanitarium formerly operated the Midland theater and later worked for Mr. Clark after he took it over.

The other theater which will give a special show for the "Jones Family Fund" is the Embassy here in Cumberland which is operated by Mrs. Grace M. Fisher. Employes of the theater are also going to donate their services and Fred Rohrs, of PRC Pictures, Washington, D. C., will donate the films, which will include a feature "The Great Mike" and cartoons. The benefit show at the Embassy will be given Saturday morning and the time will be announced tomorrow.

Although the writer lived in West Virginia many years, he never knew until a few weeks ago how the state "split up" the money officers found in slot machines after they were confiscated. Chatter was surprised when informed of the order Judge Ernest See, of Mineral County Circuit Court issued after a "one-armed bandit" had been confiscated by the law. The order read:

"The court directs that half the money found in confiscated slot machines be paid into the Mineral County Treasury and half be given to the officers making the confiscation."

Did you know that Allegany County's 1,160 farms are expected to produce more than 6,000,000 quarts of milk this year?

Well, that's the information coming to Chatter from the head of the dairy department of a big chain store. Allegany county residents are expected to consume more than 21,750,000 quarts of milk and milk products in this year in maintaining the county's high nutritional standards.

With a near record supply of milk coming from the nation's dairy farms, consumption of dairy products this year will nearly equal that of 1945 when more than 60,000,000,000 quarts were consumed.

An increased supply of most cheese products is now available in many sections of the country and other milk products are expected to be adequate during the fall and winter months. Statistics show that these products contain nearly 14 per cent of the calories, 24 per cent of the proteins, 18 per cent of the fats, 74 per cent of the calcium and 45 per cent of the riboflavin consumed by the average individual.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's slogan for the week is:

"AFTER THE WRECK COMES THE RECKONING...!" DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Held For Non Support

A man booked as Harold B. Sencindiver, this city, was arrested here last night by Officer W. E. Valentine and later was taken to Martinsburg, W. Va., by C. P. Dingler of that city. Police said a warrant charged the local man with non-support.

Two Men Pay Fines After Disturbance

A man booked as Vincent R. Bush, Maryland Hotel, was fined $15 and Clarence Broadstock, 324 Arch street, $10 in police court yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by police following a disturbance in the Capital Lunch, 52 North Mechanic street, early yesterday morning.

Testimony revealed that Broadstock was sitting in the lunch room when Bush entered and directed a remark at a young waitress who slapped him. Later Bush grabbed the girl and Broadstock intervened and a fight followed, it was reported.

Frank M. Pirolozzi, 208 West Third street, was fined $20 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A bartender, Ira Beeman, 606 Virginia avenue, employed by Clarence Broadstock and Jesse Powell at the Subway Tavern, was fined $5 for selling soft drings without a permit.

Broadstock testified that he and his partner took over the business recently and neglected to check the license which expired July 1.

WAC Commander Named

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (AP)—Capt. Catherine J. Lyons, Scranton, Pa., was named yesterday to command the less than 1,000 WACS scattered now throughout the seven states of the Second Army Area, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

AID TO THEATREGATE—Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, is the first local organization to come to the aid of Cumberland's dramatic organization, Theatregate, with a financial contribution. Frank J. Davis, deputy supreme governor of the Moose, is shown above as he presented a check for $50 to Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie, president of the group. Looking on (left to right) are Mrs. Earl Gower, secretary; Miss Erica Donovan, director; Charles F. Burke, Jr., treasurer of the Moose lodge; and Mrs. John Durst (extreme right), chairman of the publicity committee. Theatregate's next production, "Dangerous Corner," will be given in Cumberland October 9, 10 and 11 at West Side School at 8:30 p. m.

Other baking company officials reported conditions much the same. One official, who asked that his name be withheld, said the company which operates three plants in the area, is partially closed. He said the supply of shortening on hand is sufficient for not more than 12 days.

Most companies have substituted oil to grease pans, and some are using sweetened milk to replace sugar, which is also reported to be running low.

Further trouble was predicted for local bakeries in the next couple of weeks, one official said, with the announcement of a 25 per cent cut in cellophane and wax wrapping paper.

Refusing New Business

All of the local bakeries said they "definitely are not accepting any new business," and many predicted quota cuts for present customers if the shortage of materials continues.

In nearby Pennsylvania, several baking companies have closed their plants, and retailers are seeking to get supplies from Cumberland bakeries, officials said. Local plants will not attempt to increase the quotas in the area, the baking heads asserted.

The shortage of lard is a direct result of the lack of meat as few hogs are being slaughtered, and the source is cut off. The vegetable compound shortage is caused by the increased demand, since lard cannot be obtained.

Christ" being conducted by Methodist churches. The crusade will continue until 1948.

Richards, pastor of First Methodist Church, will be the instructor of the fourth course, "Music in Christian Education," open to adults and young people.

Persons of all denominations are invited to attend the courses, for which there is no charge. Classes will be held Monday through Friday, starting at 7:30 p. m. Each class will be in session 50 minutes, with two classes held each evening. There will be a 20-minute devotional period between each class.

on clearing the cemetery of brush, grass and weeds.

Broadwater explained yesterday that the church board has agreed that no more graves will be opened on the plot, and no more tombstones shall be erected. The project calls for co-operation of families whose relatives and friends are buried here, to help clear the ground and make the place look better, he said.

The plan calls for leveling the lots, filling sunken graves, replacing markers where possible, and planting a lawn so that grass can be cut regularly and weeds and brush kept out. The job will be a big task, Broadwater declared, but if everyone helps a little, it shouldn't take long or prove too costly.

Conditions Have Changed

People in the community realize time has changed conditions. They are aware the village is no longer a little farming community, but is now an important residential section near a large industry where main and modern highways pass through. The cemetery lies only a few feet from U. S. Route 220, and is an eyesore to those who pass. They want the place improved, and are cooperating to improve it.

The church alongside is a modern imposing edifice, and is the finest looking building in the town, second probably only to the public school, half-a-mile away. But the unkept church yard is admittedly no credit to any community.

Mr. Hershberger recalled yesterday, that church records show that Francis Asbury, the first Methodist Bishop in American preached at Cresaptown, probably as early as 1782, and it is believed he may have dedicated the first church there.

Dr. Frank G. Porter, D.D. Conference historian, several years ago wrote, "Asbury was in that section of the country as early as the summer of 1782. He writes that in June 1782. He was 'on Pattern Creek, North Branch of Potomac, crossed the Knobbley Mountain and stopped at Colonel Joseph Cresap's, near what we used to know as Brady's Mill.'

"In 1783, the preachers on the 'Allegany Circuit' were Francis Poythress and Benjamin Roberts. On June 30, 1784, Asbury preached to a large congregation at Joseph Cresap's, 'with freedom of spirit and utterance.' August 1804 he preached at Joseph Cresap's and preached at Cresap's Mill.

Cresaptown Is Mentioned

"His first mention of Cresaptown by name was on June 29, 1808. He wrote, 'I preached in the chapel at Cresaps-Town.' How long before this the chapel was built I do not know, but Mrs. Harriet Cresap Wilson, grandmother of Robert C. Wilson, heard Asbury preach there when she was 12 years of age. Being born in 1796 would make that date 1808.

"The first class leader at Cresaptown was Joseph Cresap, appointed by Bishop Asbury before any chapel was built. The Bishop, in the seventeen eighties urged Daniel Van Meter of Cresaptown to go to the state of Ohio. The Bishop lodged with Mr. Van Meter there in 1803."

The above data, preserved by Mr. Hershberger, would indicate that the first chapel at this site was built about 1804, the same year the first person was buried there, Ann Baxter, slave of Brady.

So as Anderson wrote, "it is a touching and beautiful history . . . we find no such history elsewhere . . ."

The people of Cresaptown, particularly those associated with the Cresaptown Methodist Church, realize the responsibility of restoring and preserving this old country church yard. As Broadwater said yesterday, "It is a big job, but important enough that all of us should help."

GATEWAY CHATTER

By NEWS STAFF MEMBERS

Here's the first campaign slogan for this fall which has come to the attention of Chatter and brother it's right down our alley. We understand it originated in one of the New England States — Vermont or New Hampshire. However, it doesn't matter where it originated, because it certainly is appealing to the voters and you'll hear it a lot of times between now and Nov. 5. We won't keep you waiting any longer, so here it is:

"HAD ENOUGH? VOTE REPUBLICAN."

Two of Allegany county's theaters deserve bouquets for benefit performances which they will give this week for the "Jones Family Fund". Lionel Clark, operator of the Midland theater will give a special show tomorrow night with the entire proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund". In order to swell the proceeds Mr. Clark will increase his admission prices for the benefit show to 20 and 40 cents. His employes are donating their service in order that the Jones family will receive the entire benefit of his undertaking. William Joseph Jones, who is now a patient in the State Sanitarium formerly operated the Midland theater and later worked for Mr. Clark after he took it over.

The other theater which will give a special show for the "Jones Family Fund" is the Embassy here in Cumberland which is operated by Mrs. Grace M. Fisher. Employes of the theater are also going to donate their services and Fred Rohrs, of PRC Pictures, Washington, D. C., will donate the films, which will include a feature "The Great Mike" and cartoons. The benefit show at the Embassy will be given Saturday morning and the time will be announced tomorrow.

Although the writer lived in West Virginia many years, he never knew until a few weeks ago how the state "split up" the money officers found in slot machines after they were confiscated. Chatter was surprised when informed of the order Judge Ernest See, of Mineral County Circuit Court issued after a "one-armed bandit" had been confiscated by the law. The order read:

"The court directs that half the money found in confiscated slot machines be paid into the Mineral County Treasury and half be given to the officers making the confiscation."

Did you know that Allegany County's 1,160 farms are expected to produce more than 6,000,000 quarts of milk this year?

Well, that's the information coming to Chatter from the head of the dairy department of a big chain store. Allegany county residents are expected to consume more than 21,750,000 quarts of milk and milk products in this year in maintaining the county's high nutritional standards.

With a near record supply of milk coming from the nation's dairy farms, consumption of dairy products this year will nearly equal that of 1945 when more than 60,000,000,000 quarts were consumed.

An increased supply of most cheese products is now available in many sections of the country and other milk products are expected to be adequate during the fall and winter months. Statistics show that these products contain nearly 14 per cent of the calories, 24 per cent of the proteins, 18 per cent of the fats, 74 per cent of the calcium and 45 per cent of the riboflavin consumed by the average individual.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's slogan for the week is:

"AFTER THE WRECK COMES THE RECKONING...!" DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Held For Non Support

A man booked as Harold B. Sencindiver, this city, was arrested here last night by Officer W. E. Valentine and later was taken to Martinsburg, W. Va., by C. P. Dingler of that city. Police said a warrant charged the local man with non-support.

Two Men Pay Fines After Disturbance

A man booked as Vincent R. Bush, Maryland Hotel, was fined $15 and Clarence Broadstock, 324 Arch street, $10 in police court yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by police following a disturbance in the Capital Lunch, 52 North Mechanic street, early yesterday morning.

Testimony revealed that Broadstock was sitting in the lunch room when Bush entered and directed a remark at a young waitress who slapped him. Later Bush grabbed the girl and Broadstock intervened and a fight followed, it was reported.

Frank M. Pirolozzi, 208 West Third street, was fined $20 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A bartender, Ira Beeman, 606 Virginia avenue, employed by Clarence Broadstock and Jesse Powell at the Subway Tavern, was fined $5 for selling soft drings without a permit.

Broadstock testified that he and his partner took over the business recently and neglected to check the license which expired July 1.

WAC Commander Named

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (AP)—Capt. Catherine J. Lyons, Scranton, Pa., was named yesterday to command the less than 1,000 WACS scattered now throughout the seven states of the Second Army Area, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

Hospital Officials Are Attending Convention

Local hospital officials are attending the annual convention of the American Hospital Association, being held in Philadelphia this week.

They are Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent of Memorial Hospital, and Sister Vincent Marie, superintendent of Allegany Hospital. Miss Frances Loftus, director of nurses at Memorial, who is now on vacation, is expected to attend the convention during the latter part of the week. The session, which opened Monday, will end on Friday.

Home accidents killed 32,000 and train accidents 246 in 1944. But that isn't the only reason we'd be glad to rent a caboose.

Husband Must Live Up To Agreement

A husband who made a verbal agreement to give his wife a share in the proceeds of the sale of their home must live up to the agreement, Associate Judge Walter C. Capper has ruled in an opinion, handed down in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Zelma Burkett filed action against George Burkett, Corriganville, alleging that they made an oral agreement on August 12 to sell their home and furniture, and that the balance, after all liens were paid, would be divided equally between them.

She said she signed the deed to enable him to sell the property for $3,500, but that he deposited the money in a Hyndman, Pa., bank in his own name and gave her $150. The decision awarded her $1,219.57 less the $150 she already had received. Her attorney is Edward J. Ryan. Estel C. Kelley represented the husband.

Harry I. Stegmaier, counsel for the Second National Bank, executor of the estate of Mrs. Catherine Kaefer, has filed a demurrer to the equity action of Mrs. Eleanor I. Kaefer, daughter-in-law of the late Mrs. Kaefer, over provisions of Mrs. Catherine Kaefer's will. Edward J. Ryan is counsel for the petitioner.

Hospital Officials Are Attending Convention

Local hospital officials are attending the annual convention of the American Hospital Association, being held in Philadelphia this week.

They are Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent of Memorial Hospital, and Sister Vincent Marie, superintendent of Allegany Hospital. Miss Frances Loftus, director of nurses at Memorial, who is now on vacation, is expected to attend the convention during the latter part of the week. The session, which opened Monday, will end on Friday.

Husband Must Live Up To Agreement

A husband who made a verbal agreement to give his wife a share in the proceeds of the sale of their home must live up to the agreement, Associate Judge Walter C. Capper has ruled in an opinion, handed down in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Zelma Burkett filed action against George Burkett, Corriganville, alleging that they made an oral agreement on August 12 to sell their home and furniture, and that the balance, after all liens were paid, would be divided equally between them.

She said she signed the deed to enable him to sell the property for $3,500, but that he deposited the money in a Hyndman, Pa., bank in his own name and gave her $150. The decision awarded her $1,219.57 less the $150 she already had received. Her attorney is Edward J. Ryan. Estel C. Kelley represented the husband.

Harry I. Stegmaier, counsel for the Second National Bank, executor of the estate of Mrs. Catherine Kaefer, has filed a demurrer to the equity action of Mrs. Eleanor I. Kaefer, daughter-in-law of the late Mrs. Kaefer, over provisions of Mrs. Catherine Kaefer's will. Edward J. Ryan is counsel for the petitioner.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Give Her Another Chance, "Doubtful," Maybe She Has Changed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was discharged from the service, I fell in love with a girl I met at a wedding. I was the happiest man in the world, for a time. I would call her a few times every day and we would see each other for two or three times a week. I wanted to marry her, but she wouldn't become serious.

About four months ago, she began acting indifferent toward me and would not give me any reason. I would have to call her three or four times before I could date her. Finally, one day, I told her I would not call her any more and I also told her she should call me up some time when she is not so busy.

For four whole months I ate my heart out for her. The other night she called me. I made no dates with her, but I am thinking about it. Should I see her again? Does she only want to see me for a few times and then brush me off again? How can I be sure she has changed her attitude toward me?

"DOUBTFUL"

There is no way you can be sure your girl has changed her attitude without trying her out again. Maybe, as you suggest, her interest is only very mild, and she might brush you off again after a short time. It is perfectly possible that, when you stopped trying to date her, she wanted to see if she could get you back again, not so much because she was deeply interested in you, but merely out of feminine curiosity and vanity.

On the other hand, she may have discovered, in the four months you have been ignoring her, that she cared more about you than she thought, and really didn't want to lose you. So why not give her another chance? That's the only way you can find out.

You Need To Grow Up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 years old and have been going steady with a boy, 19, for almost three years. We have broken up several times, because of his going out with other girls. During one of these breakups, I met a boy, 20, whom I liked very much, and he liked me also. But when my first boyfriend came back to me, I went steady with him again after which I broke up once more.

Now that I am not going steady anymore, the boy, 20, has not even bothered to call me and I don't know what to do. Now, my first boyfriend wants me to come back to him. He says we can start from scratch and forget the past, and I really believe him this time. I would appreciate it very much if you would advise me.

"M.W.L."

You don't know what you want, do you, "M.W.L."? It sounds to me as though practically any boy would do for you, as long as you have somebody to "go steady with."

I think that your first boyfriend is a little optimistic if he thinks that you can "start from scratch" and forget the past. My guess is that, if you did take up with him where you left off, it would be only a short time before you were breaking up again.

As for the boy who doesn't bother with you anymore, if you threw him over to go back to the first boyfriend, I think he shows good sense. Why should he be interested in going out with you again, when all he would probably have to look forward to is being thrown aside once more when you felt like going back to your other friend?

Before you can get anyone to pay very much attention to you, you will have to show that you are not quite so fickle. Anyhow, 17 is very young to be thinking so much about "going steady." Why not just let things ride for a year or so until you have had time to grow up a little?

Question:—
Why does homogenization make Vitamin D Milk taste so delicious?

Answer:—

Baths Cheaper

WARSAW (AP) — Members of Polish trade unions resting at health resorts, says the newspaper, Rzeczpospolita, will receive reductions amounting to 50 percent of the bath and medical service fees.

Question:—

Answer:—

KEEPING UP WITH

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2—The most successful novel in a long time, "The Pursuit of Love", by Nancy Mitford, will be made by an English producer. But wait a minute! America gets half the picture. John Sutro, who bought the film rights, plans to make half of the movie in England and the other half in Hollywood and he's headed here to make arrangements for the Ortus film production. If you have read "The Pursuit of Love" you'll know it's highly amusing and controversial, too. The author is the sister of the much publicized Unity Mitford, who figured in the notorious Hitler episode.

Greer Garson

An English girl gets the lead—Sally Gray by name. She was in "Lambeth Walk", "My Sister Eileen" and other plays in London. Sutro produced "Tale of Two Cities", and "Forty-Ninth Parallel" with the beloved Leslie Howard, and was associated with Alexander Korda in the production of the never to be forgotten "Henry VIII". He also managed to snag Gertrude Lawrence's "A Star Danced".

I thought when I read "Glittering Hill" if ever a novel would make a good movie, that was it. Laid in Butte, Montana, Clyde Murphy really turned out a story of the copper mines, full of action. Sam Jaffe bought it at least two years ago and I always wondered why he had never made it into a picture. Now from New York comes word that once again Lloyd Bacon and Jaffe will be associated in making "Glittering Hill" for 20th Century-Fox. It's an outside deal for Lloyd, who is under contract to 20th. The boys' last team work was "The Sullivans", also for 20th and a moneymaker.

At Joseph Schenck's house at dinner the other evening there was a lot of discussion over the thriller, "Nightmare Alley", a new novel on the best seller list. 20th Century-Fox has bought the film rights after considerable bidding from other studios and agents. I am told it's decidedly on the sensational side and will take a lot of doing to adapt for the screen, but once the controversial angles are smoothed out it will make a very exciting picture. I must admit I haven't yet read it, but will do so pronto.

Chatter in Hollywood: Among the guests at the Charlie Carrs cocktail party were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Spencer who own the Carl restaurant. Mrs. Spencer said the other morning her maid came running in to say there was some kind of animal in the garbage can. Upon investigation they found that a mama skunk had given birth to two little ones and there they were, just a few hours old, as cute as could be. "But who," she asked, "wants baby skunks for pets?" Well I have heard of people who have had these pariahs fixed up so that they are acceptable, I am told they make very good pets. Of course, you wouldn't want one without having him so he'd be fit for parlor company.

I had a talk with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. while I was at Universal-International and Doug said that up to now the only person in his picture, "The Exile" is himself. "I can bank on that," he said, "because I play the lead, but so far I haven't a leading lady. Looks like it's going to be a search like the one for scarlet in 'Gone With the Wind.' I know just the girl I want and I am not going to stop until I get her." If Doug will send me a printed desription I will put it in the paper for him, but why not get a new face? That's what Mark Hellinger did in "The Killer," and he didn't do badly.

If Jane Wyman doesn't get "Johnny Belinda" she's going to be the saddest girl in Hollywood. Jack Warner planked down $50,000 for the rights to this play by Elmer Harris, after Jane sugested it. Curiously enough, although it was a hit on Broadway, it was only recently purchased. Jane has always longed to play the deaf and dumb girl, and after her performance as the inarticulate mother in "The Yearling," which is a classic, she should get only the cream at Warners. She was excellent, too, in "Lost Weekend."

I'm sure remember Mary Lou Van Ness, secretary to the Paramount stars, who was interviewed by Harriet Parsons on the radio during my absence. Mary Lou is changing her name to Mrs. John Culhane in January and the groom-to-be is an executive with an optical company in Rochester. I hope there isn't anything pointed in the fact after being associated with such glamor-pusses as Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and the other Paramount idols, Mary Lou selected a groom far removed from the movies.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Jan Clayton, the gal who made history in "Carousel," the New York musical, is in town with her husband, the very rich Edward Lerner; Nancy Walker may go to New York to do a show, but if she does, it will be as Mrs. John Dahl, . . . The Dwight Taylors are expecting the stork. He's the son of stage actress Laurette Taylor . . . Xavier Cugat, who made over a million dollars last year, is much poorer on account of he has to pay big alimony. When he's free he'll marry Lorraine Allen. . . . Anne Shirley, who planned to adopt a war orphan before she knew she was to have a baby of her own, will now have two babies, . . . George Raft arrived in New York without hotel reservations and did he have a time finding a place to stay. . . . Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark have really had a whirl in Hollywood. They were introduced first at a cocktail party given by the William and Edward O'Connors. Everybody was there. Mrs. Clark is an extremely pretty woman and very likeable. The Clarks, old friends and neighbors of the Charlie Carrs, were greeted by both the legal profession and the motion picture crowd at a cocktail party at the Carrs in their honor. Earlier, I attended a luncheon given by Louis B. Mayer. It was Greer Garson's birthday and L. B. said the attorney general came all the way from Washington just for the happy event. The General paid tribute to both Greer and Irene Dunne in a very pleasant speech. Then he told some very amusing stories and in a more serious vein advised the industry show interest in public affairs by going to the polls. . . . The tennis matches have brought out many of our top stars. Robert Taylor, Diana Lewis, Bill Powell, Lindia Darnell, Betty Grable were all there the last day, cheering the victors. . . . Eddie Cantor was so delighted with Margaret Whiting's singing on his broadcast that he gave her a diamond and ruby wristwatch. When William Eythe gets back from making a picture in London Margaret will announce her official engagement to him. Her mother gave a party in her honor Friday. Saw David Niven who has to get about now that he is writing a column for a London paper. That's all today.

rkin Secures Permit o Enclose Porch

James Durkin, 220 South Smallwood street, has secured a building permit in the city engineer's office to enclose a second-story rear porch at his home with frame walls covered with inselbrick, at an estimated cost of $150. Work will be done by Burch Brothers.

Joseph S. Karp and Brothers, Incorporated, 60 North Mechanic street, distributors of wholesale bar and restaurant equipment, secured a permit to use the two-story brick building at 40 North Mechanic street for the business. The building, formerly occupied by Rudy's Incorporated, is owned by Frank Molinari, 32 Cumberland street.

An occupancy permit to use 122 West Second street as an auto repair shop was granted to Moore Motor Sales. The one-story building, now vacant, was formerly used for the same purpose. It is owned by Mayor Thomas S. Post and Charles R. Howdyshell. The permit was secured by W. J. Moore, manager.

Police Believe Father Took Hayes Boy Home

Police last night discounted any hint of foul play in connection with the report that a black sedan drove up to Leiper street late Monday afternoon and picked up a 2-year-old boy a resident of that street was rearing.

H. G. Dick, 635 Leiper street, told Officer J. Carl Stouffer that the car bearing Maryland license tags drove up to the front of his home and picked up Richard Lee Hayes, 2, who makes his home with Dick.

The local man told police he believed the boy's father, William D. Hayes, 418 19th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., was one of the occupants of the car which drove off with the child.

OPA Files Claim Against Motor Co.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (AP) — The OPA has filed a $47,165 treble damage claim in United States District Court alleging the Martin Brothers Motor Company of Baltimore sold 40 new automobiles at over-ceiling prices.

It is the largest amount yet involved in a Maryland price regulation case.

OPA said in its petition that the violations were between last November and April 29 and profited the company $15,721.

The price agency also alleged that the dealers refused to sell new cars unless buyers had a trade-in and that they failed to keep proper records of transactions, both violations.

Merchandise Mart, Bus Line Are Sued

Suit to collect an alleged bill of $4,500 has been filed in Circuit Court by George F. Hazelwood Company against Robert L. Emery, Jr., trading as Emery's Motor Coach Lines and The Merchandise Mart, Inc.

The bill, according to the declaration, is for work, labor and materials "done and furnished" by the plaintiff for alterations and repairs to the building of the Mechandise Mart on Howard street.

A statement attached to the declaration indicated that the cost of labor, material and equipment amounted to $3,945.70. William M. Somerville represents the Hazelwood firm.

John Stewart, secretary-treasurer, of the Merchandise Mart, filed a plea denying owing the bill and said he never was indebted as alleged. Charles Z. Heskett is his attorney.

On the petition of Riccardo A. Lombardozzi, Chief Judge William A. Huster ordered that the record of his marriage license, issued May 16, 1925, be changed so that his name is listed as Riccardo A. Lombardozzi instead of as Richard Lombard.

Lombardozzi, represented by Earl E. Manges, said when he obtained the license he used the name Richard Lombard but since has learned his true name is Riccardo A. Lombardozzi. He asked that the marriage license be corrected to show his true name.

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

Here's a letter from a newly returned GI.

Actually it isn't a letter at all — it's a punch in the jaw to every snippy little American who thinks he rates priority merely because he was born here. And I'm all for it. Says he:—

"Does the mere fact of having been born in the United States automatically make a person superior to anyone born anywhere else?

"To me it doesn't because I was taught to believe that men made the country, not vice versa. If studying history taught me anything, it was that while environment and opportunity differ, basically men do not. Yet I must be wrong. If I am not wrong why do the young people of today laugh at me when I expound such theories?

"I'm thinking particularly of the men I served with in the Army. Almost to a man they, while supposedly fighting for all the things implied and said in that great document including these words—'all men are created equal'—at all times they proved by their actions that they disbelieved everything they were fighting for.

"For example, it was alright for them to cheat Frenchmen because they were Americans. But the Frenchman was wrong when he tried to cheat back. I would be ashamed to relate some of the things the GIs did and excused themselves by saying, 'Well, I'm an American.'

"I'm putting it badly, I know, but what I am trying to get at is this. To my mind being born an American doesn't give one a right to ride rough shod over those born in another country—to arrogantly dismiss them as foreign and not worth while without even investigating their merits."

JEROME GORDON
Chicago, 23, Ill.

Here's one American who isn't laughing at you, Jerome. I never put a bigger hunk of truth into this column than your letter which I have recorded verbatim. And America was never in worse need of it.

I am 63. My people helped make the west.

Sometimes I think they would have done better if they had taken a big jump in the bay.

The kind of American we are breeding today makes me sick. They are snippy, intolerant, isolated, stupid, complacent little fools who need a kick in the pants. They are no more like the Americans who founded this country than they are like a bunch of jackrabbits. I hear more intolerance in one day from these peewees than I heard in my youth in a year.

You are absolutely right. Americanism is not a matter of birth. Nor is it even a matter of breeding. Americanism means the sharing of the greatest and toughest dream that men have ever attempted.

Atta boy! Go on with your faith. It was that faith which founded America. It was that faith which drove the covered wagon on their tragic road to the western coast. It was that faith which gave us the stamina to fight through desolation and despair and death until we had built these United States.

And if you get any letters you can't handle, just refer them to me. I am an American.

Blind Newsstand Operator Plans To Close Business

James O'Neal said yesterday he has decided to prepare to move from his newsstand in the post office building, rather than sign a contract with the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, and pay them a percentage of his receipts for supervision.

O'Neal has waged a battle to avoid signing the contract for six months, but under the terms of the Randolph-Shepherd Act, it appears, according to attorneys, that the Workshop has the right to revoke O'Neal's license at will. The act does not rule on the fairness or unfairness of the Workshop's contracts with blind newsstand operators, but does give the Workshop the right to decide who shall operate the stands, it was indicated yesterday.

The popular young blind man, who has built his business and operated it in the local post office for the past 11 years, was notified this week to move his stock and personal property out of the stand by October 12.

O'Neal said yesterday, "Some people think I should sign the contract, because they feel that would be the easiest way. Personally, I'm not that small. I know what is behind this thing and I won't sign a paper that is designed to take part of my earnings to make a soft job for someone else. I don't believe the contract is fair, and I won't sign it. Most people seem to think I'm right about that, anyway. I'm blind, but I'm a free man. Some people can see, but they'd sign anything," he concluded.

Post office authorities here yesterday said they have a copy of the letter from the Workshop, signed by the superintendent, W. S. Ritchford, ordering O'Neal to remove his personal property from the stand and that his license would be revoked October 12. Local post office personnel indicated they have nothing to say about O'Neal's plight, and have instructions from the department to comply with the Randolph-Shepherd Act, and to see that the stand is properly operated.

The Workshop will have to name a successor to the stand, it is indicated, and the newsstand will be left there, post office authorities said, for the successor. The approval of the appointment of the successor must come from the Post Office Department, in the event one is named.

O'Neal said yesterday he will devote his time to the confectionery and grocery business he and his brother, Ralph O'Neal, also blind, have on Goethe street. The latter formerly operated the newsstand in the Public Safety Building.

James O'Neal said his brother has been operating the store since last April, which is believed to be the only store in the city where shelves are marked with Braille lettering, to enable James and Ralph to find merchandise quickly and accurately.

Regulations Are Changed On Taking Over Property

Regulations governing eviction of tenants of property purchased by veterans were explained last night by J. Caleb White, local rent director of OPA.

Heretofore, White said, six months notice was required before tenants could be evicted, but this period of time was working a hardship on some veterans and their families, so the time period was changed by the National OPA rent director to four months.

When a veteran buys a home occupied by another family, White explained, he must go to the rent control office and sign a petition asking for a certificate of eviction. This certificate is then taken to the local court, (in Cumberland to Trial Magistrates' Court) and at the end of four months time, the tenant can be evicted.

In the case of non-veterans purchasing property, White said, the waiting period is still six months.

At Hagerstown last night, Rent Director Edward F. Condron said that 191 certificates of eviction have been issued during September for the Western Maryland Tri-County Area. The figure, the highest in the history of the office was due to increased purchases of property by veterans, Condron explained.

At least 50 per cent of the purchases were by veterans, he declared, giving a breakdown of the eviction certificates as follows: Hagerstown, 100; Cumberland, 84; and Frederick, 7. Fifty petitions for eviction were denied.

Pullen Ponders Teacher Pay Hike

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP)—A proposal that the state establish a salary scale for 125 instructors serving in its four teachers' colleges today was under consideration by State Superintendent of Schools Thomas G. Pullen.

Representatives of teachers at Towson, Frostburg, Salisbury and Bowie Colleges made the suggestion after a meeting last Saturday at Towson.

Dr. Pullen said he would call it to the attention of the State Board of Education at a meeting in his office Friday and would confer with the teacher representatives on it October 12.

No scale was formulated by the teachers at their Towson meeting but they indicated a desire for a system already applying to teachers in Baltimore City and county schools. It provides for automatic raises on years of service and courses taken at colleges and universities.

Present salaries at the four teachers' colleges range from $2,000 upward annually, based largely on training and degrees attained before entering the service. There are no automatic raises under the present system, although individual increases are given on the basis of work and recommendations of superiors.

The teachers' college instructors recently received the salary increase given most state employes.

Garage Employes Will Strike Today

Conciliator Will Attempt To Settle Dispute, Stutzman Reports

Employes of seven local garages last night turned down a company wage offer and voted to strike this morning, according to C. E. Stutzman, business manager of Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, AFL, which represents some 55 of the workers.

Commissioner Joseph Conlon, of the conciliation service, notified Stutzman last night that he had been assigned to the dispute and reported he was attempting to arrange a meeting here today between the garages and the union.

Stutzman said the workers confirmed a previous refusal of an offer of $1 an hour for mechanics and bodymen and 80 cents for apprentices and other employes. The union is demanding $1.35 for mechanics, $1.30 for bodymen and 90 cents for apprentices and other men.

There was no development yesterday in the case of workers of the Roy F. Hinebaugh auto body shop, North Mechanic street, who "jumped the gun" by striking Tuesday after Stutzman said, one of their number was discharged for union activity.

A representative of Hinebaugh said today the man in question was "beefing" about tools and other matters and became quite loud. Hinebaugh was quoted as saying that if he (Hinebaugh) was so dissatisfied with a job he would look for work at another place. The man agreed and is supposed to have asked for his money, which was given him. Other workers are then said to have walked off the job in protest.

Garages which will be on strike today were reported to include Raupach, Eller, Chevrolet, Gurley Brothers, Boyd Harper, Oscar Gurley, Spoerl, Frantz garages as well as the Hinebaugh firm.

Stating that the Red Cross has been asked to furnish information to demobilized Army nurses regarding the program, Mrs. Witherup said that nurses who re-enter Army service may elect to serve until relieved at the convenience of the government or for a period of two years. Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We often speak of certain people as "walking encyclopedias." They have accumulated so much over the years that they are looked up to as sort of reference libraries. We have in books much about Socrates, his ideas, and his teachings—but no books by him have been left behind. Someone has written that "the books that he wrote were his pupils, and especially Plato."

All books once were men, but as these books become so much a part of those who read and are influenced by them, they take upon themselves new life, and actually nourish living men and women, bringing to life again those who wrote them.

Xenophon was so influenced by Socrates that he decided the world should have the actual words of the great teacher put into living form. So it was that we have the "Memorabilia" of Xenophon. He was the Boswell of his time, as Edward Howard Griggs has so well said. And there were many others, influenced by Socrates, who wrote books that the teachings of this wise and noble Greek should not have been in vain.

I have met men so versed in the Bible that they seemed like a circulating Bible themselves! How much more we learn from example and illustration as those words may be. People may become books—and as easily read by the unlearned as by those of high and acquired knowledge.

Many are the times that I have attended gatherings where many authors of books have been, and I have stood and watched them talk and move about, thinking that I was witnessing a moving, human library. And all the time also thinking that perhaps there were people about these authors who were living counterparts of characters depicted in their books. Perhaps shaking hands with examples of their own creation!

Moving in automobiles, down the streets of cities, in railroad trains, in crowded public gatherings, and in churches, are libraries of people—people as books.

Blight Is Killing Bermuda's Cedars

HAMILTON, Bermuda, (AP) — A mysterious disease which is causing the loss of a great number of Bermuda cedar trees, has advanced to such proportions that Albert Dick, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Inwood, Paget, has brought to the Colony an entomologist, W. W. Yothers, vice president of the Chicago Natural History Museum, to combat the blight.

It is believed that a fungus growth is responsible. Apparently healthy cedar trees gradually turn brown, lose their needles and dry out when affected by this disease.

Bert Childers and the Melon Patch

Bert Childers put an ad in the Clarion the other day. Here's what it said:

"Planted more melons than I can eat this year. Stop by and pick as many as you want. All free."

As you can guess, plenty of folks sent their kids over and plenty of the parents came too. Stripped Bert's melon patch in no time. And as they went away, Bert treated the kids to lemonade, and offered the grownups a glass of ice-cold sparkling beer.

Naturally it puzzled some folks . . . but Bert explains: "It gives me a kick to share things when I can afford to—whether it's the melons, or the lemonade, or beer. I guess I just like to indulge my whims."

From where I sit, if we had more "self-indulgent" people like Bert—who believe in share and share alike, live and let live, this tired world would be a whole lot better off!

Blind Newsstand Operator Plans To Close Business

James O'Neal said yesterday he has decided to prepare to move from his newsstand in the post office building, rather than sign a contract with the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, and pay them a percentage of his receipts for supervision.

O'Neal has waged a battle to avoid signing the contract for six months, but under the terms of the Randolph-Shepherd Act, it appears, according to attorneys, that the Workshop has the right to revoke O'Neal's license at will. The act does not rule on the fairness or unfairness of the Workshop's contracts with blind newsstand operators, but does give the Workshop the right to decide who shall operate the stands, it was indicated yesterday.

The popular young blind man, who has built his business and operated it in the local post office for the past 11 years, was notified this week to move his stock and personal property out of the stand by October 12.

O'Neal said yesterday, "Some people think I should sign the contract, because they feel that would be the easiest way. Personally, I'm not that small. I know what is behind this thing and I won't sign a paper that is designed to take part of my earnings to make a soft job for someone else. I don't believe the contract is fair, and I won't sign it. Most people seem to think I'm right about that, anyway. I'm blind, but I'm a free man. Some people can see, but they'd sign anything," he concluded.

Post office authorities here yesterday said they have a copy of the letter from the Workshop, signed by the superintendent, W. S. Ritchford, ordering O'Neal to remove his personal property from the stand and that his license would be revoked October 12. Local post office personnel indicated they have nothing to say about O'Neal's plight, and have instructions from the department to comply with the Randolph-Shepherd Act, and to see that the stand is properly operated.

The Workshop will have to name a successor to the stand, it is indicated, and the newsstand will be left there, post office authorities said, for the successor. The approval of the appointment of the successor must come from the Post Office Department, in the event one is named.

O'Neal said yesterday he will devote his time to the confectionery and grocery business he and his brother, Ralph O'Neal, also blind, have on Goethe street. The latter formerly operated the newsstand in the Public Safety Building.

James O'Neal said his brother has been operating the store since last April, which is believed to be the only store in the city where shelves are marked with Braille lettering, to enable James and Ralph to find merchandise quickly and accurately.

Pullen Ponders Teacher Pay Hike

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP)—A proposal that the state establish a salary scale for 125 instructors serving in its four teachers' colleges today was under consideration by State Superintendent of Schools Thomas G. Pullen.

Representatives of teachers at Towson, Frostburg, Salisbury and Bowie Colleges made the suggestion after a meeting last Saturday at Towson.

Conciliator Will Attempt To Settle Dispute, Stutzman Reports

Employes of seven local garages last night turned down a company wage offer and voted to strike this morning, according to C. E. Stutzman, business manager of Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, AFL, which represents some 55 of the workers.

Commissioner Joseph Conlon, of the conciliation service, notified Stutzman last night that he had been assigned to the dispute and reported he was attempting to arrange a meeting here today between the garages and the union.

Stutzman said the workers confirmed a previous refusal of an offer of $1 an hour for mechanics and bodymen and 80 cents for apprentices and other employes. The union is demanding $1.35 for mechanics, $1.30 for bodymen and 90 cents for apprentices and other men.

There was no development yesterday in the case of workers of the Roy F. Hinebaugh auto body shop, North Mechanic street, who "jumped the gun" by striking Tuesday after, Stutzman said, one of their number was discharged for union activity.

A representative of Hinebaugh said today the man in question was "beefing" about tools and other matters and became quite loud. Hinebaugh was quoted as saying that if he (Hinebaugh) was so dissatisfied with a job he would look for work at another place. The man agreed and is supposed to have asked for his money, which was given him. Other workers are then said to have walked off the job in protest.

Garages which will be on strike today were reported to include Raupach, Eller, Chevrolet, Gurley Brothers, Boyd Harper, Oscar Gurley, Spoerl, Frantz garages as well as the Hinebaugh firm.

Optimists Obtain 12 New Members

Twelve new charter members were introduced last night at the regular Optimist Club dinner, and the charter was officially closed by Major Roy F. Seymour, extension counsellor, with a membership of 101, making the new club the largest service club in Cumberland and the largest in the district.

The new members included Richard Schoff, William Hartsock, Robert L. Davis, Harry N. Iles, Jr., David E. Boyd, Wilbur G. Klingler, Thomas B. Cumiskey, Jr., B. W. Whitacre, Walter H. Geiger, W. Ward Wilson, Merrill Becker, David Scollick, Carl A. Winifield and C. Raymond Hinkle.

In the absence of H. Wayne George, president, Hugh Funkhouser presided. Reports were made and all charter night bills were reported paid.

The club's attendance contest showed the "Soda Jerks" led by Charles Keech still ahead of the Embalmers, led by Vince Leasure, 240 to 204. The losers must entertain the winners when the contest closes Thanksgiving.

Visitors included W. A. Hollar, guest of his son, Richard Hollar; "Sparky" Chisholm, guest of Edgar Lewis; Charles Hyde and George Martin, Jr., guest of Funkhouser. R. L. Davis showed a film depicting the lumber industry in technicolor.

Former Army Nurses Are Needed For Active Duty

One thousand former Army Nurse Corps officers are needed to return to active duty on a voluntary basis to ensure care for the 80,000 patients remaining in Army hospitals throughout the world, and to replace nursing personnel eligible for discharge, according to Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Stating that the Red Cross has been asked to furnish information to demobilized Army nurses regarding the program, Mrs. Witherup said that nurses who re-enter Army service may elect to serve until relieved at the convenience of the government or for a period of two years. They must qualify for general duty and agree to serve either in this country or abroad. Married nurses or those with dependents under 14 years of age will not be considered. Only former Army nurses will be accepted.

Hardy Democrats Reinstate Bean As Chairman

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 2—Senator Ralph J. Bean was reinstated as county chairman of the Democratic Committee at a meeting of the Hardy County Democratic Committee held Saturday at the Court House. Jule Chipley had been acting as county chairman since the 1944 election year when Bean was given a leave of absence during his campaign for state senator.

Maurice Beall was named associate chairman of the committee and George Trumbo was named a member to succeed Sloan Parsons. Parsons resigned at the time he became a member of the County Board of Education.

Bean announced that two rallies will be held at Wardensville and at Mathias on Friday night, October 11. The committee is trying to secure Edgar B. Sims, state auditor, as speaker. Meetings will be held at Wardensville at the high school at 7 p. m. and at Mathias high at 8 p. m.

Maurice Beall was named a candidate for Justice of the Peace in Capon District. James Funk was named for Constable in Capon District; J. T. Pierce as candidate for constable in Lost River district, and Milton McNeill as candidate for constable in South Fork district.

Bishoff Assumes Duties

C. Berdell Bishoff, who has been associated with the First National Bank in Keyser, assumed his duties at the South Branch Valley National Bank in Moorefield Tuesday, October 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishoff have secured an apartment here in the home of Mrs. Ethel Bean.

Hot Lunch Program

The Hot Lunch Program opened Tuesday, October 1, at the Moorefield graded school and at other graded schools throughout the county. Tickets are being sold for $2 to the students which are good for 20 lunches. The book room at the graded school was turned over to the hot lunch committee this summer and has been converted into the hot lunch room. A feature of the service this year will be serving of a half pint of pasteurized milk in an individual bottle.

Needy cases may be served free if the Hot Lunch Committee approves the application.

New Rate Effective

The new 5 cent air mail rate became effective in Moorefield October 1, according to the announcement of Postmaster William J. Teets this week. The new rate is effective within the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Canal Zone, Guam and to all members of the armed forces if served by an army or navy post office.

Letters overseas are limited to two ounces for overseas delivery.

Closes Restaurant

One restaurant will change hands and one will close in Moorefield this week. Clyde L. Friddle, after operating a store and restaurant for 29 years at the same place, will close his place Saturday. The building has been leased to the Firestone Store in Petersburg.

W. D. Wenzel sold his buildings on the corner of Main and Washington streets to Earl B. Thrush. Clyde Bean, veteran restaurant man and native of Moorefield, leased the restaurant room from Thrush and bought the restaurant fixtures from Wenzel and began his operations today.

Provide Recreation

Capt. Milton Austin, C. A., announces that the parish room of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Morefield will be opened to the teen-agers in this section. The recreation room will be open every Friday from 8 until 10.

The room has been equipped with a record player and various games will be available.

Capt. Austin stated that all young people are invited, regardless of their church affiliation. The new teenage recreation room will be open Friday, October 4, and the young people may dance and play games.

Fire Destroys School

The Baker School house was destroyed by fire last week from an undetermined cause. The Moorefield Volunteer Fire Company made an 18-mile run over the mountain but was unable to save the structure.

The blaze apparently started in the kitchen adjoining the school. There had been no fire in the range since three in the afternoon and the blaze was not discovered until after 10 at night. The building was insured.

Tentative plans are to open the Sperry's Run school house to take care of part of the 56 pupils. The others will be taken to Wardensville.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We often speak of certain people as "walking encyclopedias." They have accumulated so much over the years that they are looked up to as sort of reference libraries. We have in books much about Socrates, his ideas, and his teachings—but no books by him have been left behind. Someone has written that "the books that he wrote were his pupils, and especially Plato."

All books once were men, but as these books become so much a part of those who read and are influenced by them, they take upon themselves new life, and actually nourish living men and women, bringing to life again those who wrote them.

Xenophon was so influenced by Socrates that he decided the world should have the actual words of the great teacher put into living form. So it was that we have the "Memorabilia" of Xenophon. He was the Boswell of his time, as Edward Howard Griggs has so well said. And there were many others, influenced by Socrates, who wrote books that the teachings of this wise and noble Greek should not have been in vain.

I have met men so versed in the Bible that they seemed like a circulating Bible themselves! How much more we learn from example and illustration as those words may be. People may become books——and as easily read by the unlearned as by those of high and acquired knowledge.

Many are the times that I have attended gatherings where many authors of books have been, and I have stood and watched them talk and move about, thinking that I was witnessing a moving, human library. And all the time also thinking that perhaps there were people about these authors who were living counterparts of characters depicted in their books. Perhaps shaking hands with examples of their own creation!

Moving in automobiles, down the streets of cities, in railroad trains, in crowded public gatherings, and in churches, are libraries of people—people as books.

Blight Is Killing Bermuda's Cedars

HAMILTON, Bermuda, (AP) — A mysterious disease which is causing the loss of a great number of Bermuda cedar trees, has advanced to such proportions that Albert Dick, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Inwood, Paget, has brought to the Colony an entomologist, W. W. Yothers, vice president of the Chicago Natural History Museum, to combat the blight.

It is believed that a fungus growth is responsible. Apparently healthy cedar trees gradually turn brown, lose their needles and dry out when affected by this disease.

Bert Childers and the Melon Patch

Bert Childers put an ad in the Clarion the other day. Here's what it said:

"Planted more melons than I can eat this year. Stop by and pick as many as you want. All free."

As you can guess, plenty of folks sent their kids over and plenty of the parents came too. Stripped Bert's melon patch in no time. And as they went away, Bert treated the kids to lemonade, and offered the grownups a glass of ice-cold sparkling beer.

Naturally it puzzled some folks ... but Bert explains: "It gives me a kick to share things when I can afford to—whether it's the melons, or the lemonade, or beer. I guess I just like to indulge my whims."

From where I sit, if we had more "self-indulgent" people like Bert —who believe in share and share alike, live and let live, this tired world would be a whole lot better off!

Cards, Brooklyn To Resume Series At Ebbets Field

Dodgers Face Extinction Unless They Square The Set Today

CONTEST SCHEDULED FOR 1:30 P. M., EST

St. Louis To Use Dickson Or Brecheen Against Higbe Or Hatten

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 (AP)—A chastened but still combative bunch of Brooklyn Dodgers rolled back to their home park today for their date with destiny and the St. Louis Cardinals at 1:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Walloped 4 to 2 in the opening tussle of their epic best-of-three playoff for the National League pennant, the "ferocious gentlemen" of Flatbush face sudden extinction unless they can come back and square the set at Ebbets Field.

The Cardinals, hot and roiling and feeling their collective oats after smacking five Dodger hurlers for a dozen hits in yesterday's fray, need only to repeat the dose to win the flag they virtually were conceded at the season's beginning.

Both clubs reached here at mid-afternoon after making the long overnight ride from the banks of the Mississippi. Perhaps significantly, the Cardinal special was a little in the lead all the way.

Durocher Is Confident

Although the Dodgers engaged in no whooping and hollering in the aisles, they were not as gloomy a set of young men as might have seemed justified by the jolting they received from Howie Pollet and the rest of the Cards in the opener. Whatever side might be said about them, they still have remarkable faith in their abilities.

"What's the use in moaning?" asked Leo Durocher, the old dugout philosopher. "We've felt like this before, but things always turned out to be better the next day. Things will look a lot different tomorrow night."

It might be recalled that the Dodger manager won the toss to decide where the play-off would open, and that he chose St. Louis for the first game and Brooklyn for the second and third. He apparently had unbounded confidence that his club could trim the Cards at Ebbets Field, no matter what befell them in the opener.

Leo claimed today he was undecided whether to throw his veteran ace, Kirby Higbe, or the rookie left hander, Joe Hatten, at the Red Birds tomorrow, but Leo was not believed to be as undecided as he made out.

Higbe May Face Brecheen

After what happened yesterday to 20-year-old Ralph Branca, it did not seem likely that the Dodger pilot would take another chance on youth. Higbe, who won 17 while losing 10 during the season, appeared to be the logical choice. He pitched to only five men after he relieved Branca in the third inning yesterday, allowing one hit before he was pulled for a pinch hitter, and so will be rested and strong.

Hatten flew back to New York after yesterday's game in order to get plenty of rest in the event Durocher decided to use him. He won 14 and lost 10 during the season.

Although Manager Eddie Dyer of the Cards was supposed to be wavering between Murry Dickson, a right-hander, and Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, a portsider, as the man to go out tomorrow and pitch his club into the world series, the Dodgers, themselves, fully expected to face Brecheen.

They pointed out that Dickson, who was Dyer's original choice to hurl the second game, worked long and hard in the bullpen yesterday while Pollet wavered and wobbled through inning after inning. Also that Dickson is weighed down with a fresh cold.

Brecheen, on the other hand, hasn't hit a lick since last Saturday night, when he pitched a brilliant victory over the Chicago Cubs to keep the Cards tied for the lead.

The Dodgers, incidentally, felt a little bitter about Garagiola. They growled late into the night that the rookie backstop beat them with three of the sorriest hits in baseball history.

"Imagine," one of them said. "The guy can't hit a ball out of the infield, but he knocks in two runs and beat us. What a hitter."

WINS LAUREL FEATURE—Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol (10), with Jockey Bobby Martin up, pounds across the finish line ahead of W. L. Huntley's Umpydan (on rail) to capture the $10,000 added Capital Handicap, feature of the opening day card yesterday at Laurel, Md.

Miers To Referee Fort Hill-LaSalle Contest Tomorrow

John Blough Will Work Allegany-Ridgeley Tilt Saturday

Ethel "Eck" Miers, of Keyser, will referee the LaSalle-Fort Hill game tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Fort Hill stadium.

William "Huck" Miers will be the umpire and Bill Spangler, head linesman.

Coach John J. Long last evening said that all of the members of the Explorer squad came out of the bruising battle in Hagerstown in good shape and that he plans only one change in tomorrow's starting lineup. Claude Jones has been shifted from end to right guard in the place of Harold Shober and Joe Reissig will take Jones' place.

John Blough has been appointed to referee the Allegany-Ridgeley game, scheduled for Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the stadium. "Huck" Miers will be the umpire and Spangler, head linesman.

Other Friday games on tap include:

Parsons at Belington, Petersburg at Moorefield, Thomas at Keyser, Roaring Springs at Bedford (night) and Romney at Franklin. The Petersburg-Moorefield and Romney-Franklin tilts are Potomac Valley Conference games.

Coach Dana Lough's Potomac State Catamounts will be out to register their third win of the season when they play Morris Harvey College at Charleston on Saturday.

Irish Lose Sullivan For Game With Pitt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2—(AP)—Right Tackle George Sullivan of Notre Dame will miss the Irish football game with Pittsburgh here Saturday, but Halfback Bob Livingstone, Hammond, Ind., has recovered from a charley horse and will be ready.

Coach Frank Leahy sent the Irish through a long pass defense drill today.

SPECULATORS OFFER DUCATS AT $25 EACH FOR PLAYOFF GAMES

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2, (AP)—Some ticket speculators today were offering ducats for the Brooklyn Dodgers-St. Louis Cardinals playoff games at $25 apiece, but the purchaser had to buy one for Friday's "if" game as well as for tomorrow's contest.

If the Cardinals win the championship tomorrow and make Friday's game unnecessary, the purchaser would be obliged to get his refund from the Dodgers' office—at the regular price of $1.75. All of which means the "sucker" would have to shell out $48.25 for the price of one admission.

Just the same scalpers were doing a landslide business with customers far exceeding the supply of precious tickets.

1,805 Fans See Champs Lose Second Game Of Series, 4-2

Boston, Oct 2 (AP)—Scoring once in the second, twice in the sixth and again in the seventh, an American League All Star team today defeated the pennant winning Red Sox 4-2 to even their three-game exhibition series at one victory apiece.

The last of the three games, arranged in a hurry to keep the Sox sharp for the world series, will end tomorrow.

Extremely chilly weather, for the second day in a row, kept the paid attendance down to 1,805.

A Hank Greenberg single, a fielder's choice, a hit by Stan Spence and another fielding choice gave the Stars the first run of the game in the second inning.

The Sox came up with two in the sixth on Johnny Pesky's hit into right field, a walk, a lusty center field single by Tom McBride and a bad throw by Joe Dimaggio.

The final Stars' run was pushed across by Snuffy Stirnweiss' triple in the seventh. Box:

ODDS FAVOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN TWO STRAIGHT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2—(AP)—Odds announced by Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll today made the St. Louis Cardinals slight favorites to make it two straight over the Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow in the play-off for the National League pennant.

Odds on the Cards to win tomorrow's game at Brooklyn, with either Murray Dickson or Harry Brecheen pitching, were 4-5, meaning that a $5 bet on the Redbirds would win $4. The odds on Brooklyn, with Joe Hatten pitching, were 1-1.

Carroll's odds on the series as a whole, after St. Louis won the playoff opener 4-2, made the Cards heavy favorites at 1-4. The odds on Brooklyn winning the series were 3-1.

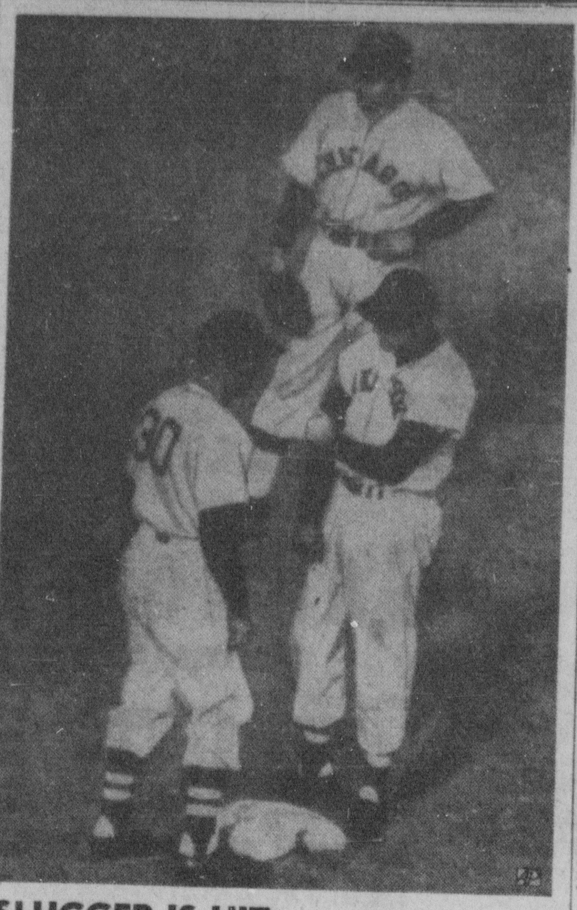

GREEN TERRORS WILL OPEN AT GETTYSBURG

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 2 — A combination of Terror veterans and freshmen will carry the hopes of the Western Maryland gridders when they open the 1946 season this Saturday against Gettysburg College at Gettysburg, Pa. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Both teams abandoned football after the 1942 season, but the Bullets will have a slight advantage over the Green Terrors since Gettysburg defeated a strong Lehigh eleven last Saturday by the score of 19 to 14.

Western Maryland and Gettysburg started their dual series in 1900 and the Pennsylvanians lead with ten wins against two for the Terrors and one contest ended in a tie.

Joe Cronin Urges One-Game Playoff To Decide Pennant

Cites Williams' Injury; Ted Will Be Ready For World Series

BOSTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — Manager Joe Cronin of the Champion Boston Red Sox today called for the limiting of any major league pennant race play-offs in the future to one game.

Cronin, who is having headaches trying to keep his Red Sox keyed up for the world series, said a lesson could be learned from the injury to Ted Williams in an exhibition game with American League All Stars yesterday, which the Sox won 2-0.

Ted To Play In Series

Williams, who suffered a bruised right elbow after being hit by a pitched ball, was reported recovering sufficiently so that he would be ready for the blue-ribbon classic.

But, Cronin asserted, Williams probably would never have been hurt if the Dodgers-Cardinals play-off had been held to one game.

"If Brooklyn and St. Louis weren't going through this best-of-three play-off this week we wouldn't have had to play any exhibition games to keep in trim," the square-jawed Boston manager argued. "And, if there had been no exhibition games, Ted would not have been hurt needlessly."

Cronin declared it was time the club owners did something about devising some uniform play-off system and suggested one game would be enough to decide ties.

The slugger's wife, Doris, said he suffered considerable pain during the night but insisted on going shopping today.

Mickey Haefner, Washington southpaw whose pitch struck Williams, said the chilly weather caused the trouble.

"I tried to throw a curve to Ted," he said, "but my hands were so cold I just couldn't break it."

Favor Earlier Windup

Among hundreds of fans and some of the players, including Williams, there was a feeling the regular baseball season should end earlier.

Meanwhile, Williams's arm was reported still sore but responding well to treatment.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Red Sox doctor, said the swelling had subsided and that Williams's arm should be as good as ever "unless unforeseen complications develop."

He said X-rays showed that Ted suffered a "severe contusion." Williams himself told newsmen he was confident the stiffness would work out in a day or two.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2. (AP)—The weather bureau forecast warm and sunny weather in Brooklyn tomorrow for the second game of the Brooklyn Dodger-St. Louis Cardinal National League pennant playoff. The temperature is expected to hover around 65 degrees.

Centerville Reds And Everett Open Series Saturday

Battle For Purse Of $200; Nee, Clapper, Drenning Will Play

A best-of-three games series for a purse of $200 between the Centerville Reds, of the Bi-State Baseball League, and Everett, Pa., will get under way on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock in Centerville, it was announced last night by Alton Nave, manager of the Reds.

The second game is set for Everett at 2:30 on Sunday while the third game, if necessary, will be staged in Centerville, Sunday, October 13 at 2:30.

The teams will split the gate receipts 50-50 in the first two games while in the third the winner will get 60 per cent and the loser 40 per cent.

Everett holds a 4-1 decision over Centerville, split even in two games with Hyndman, and has a season record of 43 wins and 10 defeats. Victories also were registered over Somerset and Cairnbrook, of the Somerset County League, and several Altoona teams.

Manager Nave said that Paul Clapper, Mel Nee, who won 14 and lost 14 with Kingsport, Tenn., and Earl Drenning, third baseman of Cumberland, will play with Centerville in the series. The trio, formerly with the Reds, starred with minor league teams this season.

Lefty Weese and Dishong will do the twirling for Everett.

Atlantic City Seeks Graziano-Zale Fight

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP) — Mayor Joseph Altman said today he would ask Promoter Mike Jacobs to shift the return middleweight championship bout between the titleholder Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano scheduled for March 31 from Madison Square Garden in New York to this city's huge convention hall.

Altman said 40,000 persons could see the fight in the hall's main arena as compared with only 18,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Zale knocked out Graziano in the sixth round of a title bout at New York last week.

After Joe Byrnes' goal gave Beall a 4-0 lead in the third stanza, Speicher scored from the field for the vistors. William Durst, Grantsville's center forward, scored a penalty goal in the last period.

MONTREAL IS WINNER OVER LOUISVILLE, 6-5

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Montreal Royals came from behind tonight to nose out the Louisville Colonels, 6-5, in ten innings, and tie up the Little World Series at two games apiece.

Jackie Robinson, the International League's batting champion, climaxed an uphill fight for the Royals by singling with the bases loaded in the overtime frame to win the game.

Robinson, first Negro since 1900 to perform in organized ball, also scored the tying run in the ninth when he romped home from third when Catcher Fred Walters threw wild on an attempted pick off at second.

Cards, Brooklyn To Resume Series At Ebbets Field

CONTEST SCHEDULED FOR 1:30 P. M., EST

St. Louis To Use Dickson Or Brecheen Against Higbe Or Hatten

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 (AP)—A chastened but still combative bunch of Brooklyn Dodgers rolled back to their home park today for their date with destiny and the St. Louis Cardinals at 1:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Walloped 4 to 2 in the opening tussle of their epic best-of-three playoff for the National League pennant, the "ferocious gentlemen" of Flatbush face sudden extinction unless they can come back and square the set at Ebbets Field.

The Cardinals, hot and rolling and feeling their collective oats after smacking five Dodger hurlers for a dozen hits in yesterday's fray, need only to repeat the dose to win the flag they virtually were conceded at the season's beginning.

Both clubs reached here at mid-afternoon after making the long overnight ride from the banks of the Mississippi. Perhaps significantly, the Cardinal special was a little in the lead all the way.

Durocher Is Confident

Although the Dodgers engaged in no whooping and hollering in the aisles, they were not as gloomy a set of young men as might have seemed justified by the jolting they received from Howie Pollet and the rest of the Cards in the opener. Whatever side might be said about them, they still have remarkable faith in their abilities.

"What's the use in moaning?" asked Leo Durocher, the old dugout philosopher. "We've felt like this before, but things always turned out to be better the next day. Things will look a lot different tomorrow night."

It might be recalled that the Dodger manager won the toss to decide where the play-off would open, and that he chose St. Louis for the first game and Brooklyn for the second and third. He apparently had unbounded confidence that his club could trim the Cards at Ebbets Field, no matter what befell them in the opener.

Leo claimed today he was undecided whether to throw his veteran ace, Kirby Higbe, or the rookie left hander, Joe Hatten, at the Red Birds tomorrow, but Leo was not believed to be as undecided as he made out.

Higbe May Face Brecheen

After what happened yesterday to 20-year-old Ralph Branca, it did not seem likely that the Dodger pilot would take another chance on youth. Higbe, who won 17 while losing 10 during the season, appeared to be the logical choice. He pitched to only five men after he relieved Branca in the third inning yesterday, allowing one hit before he was pulled for a pinch hitter, and so will be rested and strong.

Hatten flew back to New York after yesterday's game in order to get plenty of rest in the event Durocher decided to use him. He won 14 and lost 10 during the season.

Although Manager Eddie Dyer of the Cards was supposed to be wavering between Murry Dickson, a right-hander, and Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, a portsider, as the man to go out tomorrow and pitch his club into the world series, the Dodgers, themselves, fully expected to face Brecheen.

They pointed out that Dickson, who was Dyer's original choice to hurl the second game, worked long and hard in the bullpen yesterday while Pollet wavered and wobbled through inning after inning. Also that Dickson is weighed down with a fresh cold.

Brecheen, on the other hand, hasn't hit a lick since last Saturday night, when he pitched a brilliant victory over the Chicago Cubs to keep the Cards tied for the lead.

The Dodgers, incidentally, felt a little bitter about Garagiola. They growled late into the night that the rookie backstop beat them with three of the sorriest hits in baseball history.

"Imagine," one of them said. "The guy can't hit a ball out of the infield, but he knocks in two runs and beat us. What a hitter."

WINS LAUREL FEATURE—Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol (10), with Jockey Bobby Martin up, pounds across the finish line ahead of W. L. Huntley's Umpydan (on rail) to capture the $10,000 added Capital Handicap, feature of the opening day card yesterday at Laurel, Md.

Miers To Referee Fort Hill-LaSalle Contest Tomorrow

John Blough Will Work Allegany-Ridgeley Tilt Saturday

Ethel "Eck" Miers, of Keyser, will referee the LaSalle-Fort Hill game tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Fort Hill stadium.

William "Huck" Miers will be the umpire and Bill Spangler, head linesman.

Coach John J. Long last evening said that all of the members of the Explorer squad came out of the bruising battle in Hagerstown in good shape and that he plans only one change in tomorrow's starting lineup. Claude Jones has been shifted from end to right guard in the place of Harold Shober and Joe Reissig will take Jones' place.

John Blough has been appointed to referee the Allegany-Ridgeley game, scheduled for Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the stadium. "Huck" Miers will be the umpire and Spangler, head linesman.

Other Friday games on tap include:

Parsons at Belington, Petersburg at Moorefield, Thomas at Keyser, Roaring Springs at Bedford (night) and Romney at Franklin. The Petersburg-Moorefield and Romney-Franklin tilts are Potomac Valley Conference games.

Coach Dana Lough's Potomac State Catamounts will be out to register their third win of the season when they play Morris Harvey College at Charleston on Saturday.

Irish Lose Sullivan For Game With Pitt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2—(AP)—Right Tackle George Sullivan of Notre Dame will miss the Irish football game with Pittsburgh here Saturday, but Halfback Bob Livingstone, Hammond, Ind., has recovered from a charley horse and will be ready.

SPECULATORS OFFER DUCATS AT $25 EACH FOR PLAYOFF GAMES

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2. (AP)—Some ticket speculators today were offering ducats for the Brooklyn Dodgers-St. Louis Cardinals playoff games at $25 apiece, but the purchaser had to buy one for Friday's "if" game as well as for tomorrow's contest.

If the Cardinals win the championship tomorrow and make Friday's game unnecessary, the purchaser would be obliged to get his refund from the Dodgers' office—at the regular price of $1.75. All of which means the "sucker" would have to shell out $48.25 for the price of one admission.

Just the same scalpers were doing a landslide business with customers far exceeding the supply of precious tickets.

1,805 Fans See Champs Lose Second Game Of Series, 4-2

Boston, Oct. 2 (AP)—Scoring once in the second, twice in the sixth and again in the seventh, an American League All Star team today defeated the pennant winning Red Sox 4-2 to even their three-game exhibition series at one victory apiece.

The last of the three games, arranged in a hurry to keep the Sox sharp for the world series, will end tomorrow.

Extremely chilly weather, for the second day in a row, kept the paid attendance down to 1,805.

A Hank Greenberg single, a fielder's choice, a hit by Stan Spence and another fielding choice gave the Stars the first run of the game in the second inning.

The final Stars' run was pushed across by Snuffy Stirnweiss' triple in the seventh. Box:

ODDS FAVOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN TWO STRAIGHT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2—(AP)—Odds announced by Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll today made the St. Louis Cardinals slight favorites to make it two straight over the Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow in the play-off for the National League pennant.

Odds on the Cards to win tomorrow's game at Brooklyn, with either Murray Dickson or Harry Brecheen pitching, were 4-5, meaning that a $5 bet on the Redbirds would win $4. The odds on Brooklyn, with Joe Hatten pitching, were 1-1.

Carroll's odds on the series as a whole, after St. Louis won the playoff opener 4-2, made the Cards heavy favorites at 1-4. The odds on Brooklyn winning the series were 3-1.

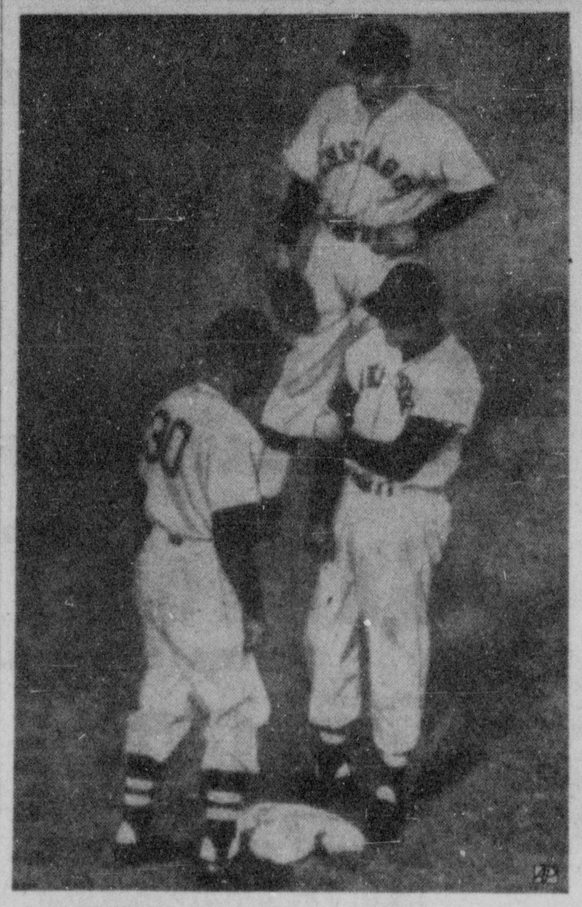

GREEN TERRORS WILL OPEN AT GETTYSBURG

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 2 — A combination of Terror veterans and freshmen will carry the hopes of the Western Maryland gridders when they open the 1946 season this Saturday against Gettysburg College at Gettysburg, Pa. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Both teams abandoned football after the 1942 season, but the Bullets will have a slight advantage over the Green Terrors since Gettysburg defeated a strong Lehigh eleven last Saturday by the score of 19 to 14.

Western Maryland and Gettysburg started their dual series in 1900 and the Pennsylvanians lead with ten wins against two for the Terrors and one contest ended in a tie.

Joe Cronin Urges One-Game Playoff To Decide Pennant

Cites Williams' Injury; Ted Will Be Ready For World Series

BOSTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — Manager Joe Cronin of the Champion Boston Red Sox today called for the limiting of any major league pennant race play-offs in the future to one game.

Cronin, who is having headaches trying to keep his Red Sox keyed up for the world series, said a lesson could be learned from the injury to Ted Williams in an exhibition game with American League All Stars yesterday, which the Sox won 2-0.

Ted To Play In Series

Williams, who suffered a bruised right elbow after being hit by a pitched ball, was reported recovering sufficiently so that he would be ready for the blue-ribbon classic.

But, Cronin asserted, Williams probably would never have been hurt if the Dodgers-Cardinals play-off had been held to one game.

"If Brooklyn and St. Louis weren't going through this best-of-three play-off this week we wouldn't have had to play any exhibition games to keep in trim," the square-jawed Boston manager argued. "And, if there had been no exhibition games, Ted would not have been hurt needlessly."

Cronin declared it was time the club owners did something about devising some uniform play-off system and suggested one game would be enough to decide ties.

The slugger's wife, Doris, said he suffered considerable pain during the night but insisted on going shopping today.

Mickey Haefner, Washington southpaw whose pitch struck Williams, said the chilly weather caused the trouble.

"I tried to throw a curve to Ted," he said, "but my hands were so cold I just couldn't break it."

Favor Earlier Windup

Among hundreds of fans and some of the players, including Williams, there was a feeling the regular baseball season should end earlier.

Meanwhile, Williams's arm was reported still sore but responding well to treatment.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Red Sox doctor, said the swelling had subsided and that Williams's arm should be as good as ever "unless unforeseen complications develop."

He said X-rays showed that Ted suffered a "severe contusion." Williams himself told newsmen he was confident the stiffness would work out in a day or two.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2. (AP)—The weather bureau forecast warm and sunny weather in Brooklyn tomorrow for the second game of the Brooklyn Dodger-St. Louis Cardinal National League pennant playoff. The temperature is expected to hover around 68 degrees.

Centerville Reds And Everett Open Series Saturday

Battle For Purse Of $200; Nee, Clapper, Drenning Will Play

A best-of-three games series for a purse of $200 between the Centerville Reds, of the Bi-State Baseball League, and Everett, Pa., will get under way on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock in Centerville, it was announced last night by Alton Nave, manager of the Reds.

The second game is set for Everett at 2:30 on Sunday while the third game, if necessary, will be staged in Centerville, Sunday, October 13 at 2:30.

The teams will split the gate receipts 50-50 in the first two games while in the third the winner will get 60 per cent and the loser 40 per cent.

Everett holds a 4-1 decision over Centerville, split even in two games with Hyndman, and has a season record of 43 wins and 10 defeats. Victories also were registered over Somerset and Cairnbrook, of the Somerset County League, and several Altoona teams.

Manager Nave said that Paul Clapper, Mel Nee, who won 14 and lost 14 with Kingsport, Tenn., and Earl Drenning, third baseman of Cumberland, will play with Centerville in the series. The trio, formerly with the Reds, starred with minor league teams this season.

Lefty Weese and Dishong will do the twirling for Everett.

Atlantic City Seeks Graziano-Zale Fight

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP) — Mayor Joseph Altman said today he would ask Promoter Mike Jacobs to shift the return middleweight championship bout between the titleholder Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano scheduled for March 31 from Madison Square Garden in New York to this city's huge convention hall.

Altman said 40,000 persons could see the fight in the hall's main arena as compared with only 18,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Zale knocked out Graziano in the sixth round of a title bout at New York last week.

MONTREAL IS WINNER OVER LOUISVILLE, 6-5

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Montreal Royals came from behind tonight to nose out the Louisville Colonels, 6-5, in ten innings, and tie up the Little World Series at two games apiece.

Jackie Robinson, the International League's batting champion, climaxed an uphill fight for the Royals by singling with the bases loaded in the overtime frame to win the game.

Robinson, first Negro since 1900 to perform in organized ball, also scored the tying run in the ninth when he romped home from third when Catcher Fred Walters threw wild on an attempted pick off at second.

Coincidence Wins Over Star-Studded Field At Belmont

Alexis Finishes Second, Polynesian Third In Vosburgh Handicap

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Oct. 2. (AP)—The Greentree Stable's Coincidence, a four year old gelding that looks like a champion on occasion, was at his best today when he led home a star-studded field of sprinters in the $19,450 Vosburgh Handicap.

Giving his stable and Jockey Ted Atkinson a double, the son of Questionnaire rallied from 10th place in the 11-horse field that covered seven furlongs and triumphed by three lengths in 1:23 4-5. His backers collected $22.40 for two. The Christiana Stables' Alexis, another long shot, was second by five lengths.

Winner Earns $13,950

Then came Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's topweighted favorite, Polynesian, which in his last outing at Atlantic City, tied the world six furlong record of 1:09 1-5. The colt subsequently was kept out of the fall Highweight handicap here as the result of a mishap while grazing, but recovered in time to start this afternoon. He carried 130 pounds. Coincidence was weighted at 118. His share of the purse was $13,950.

A crowd of 18,000, glad they wore overcoats, witnessed the sport.

Polynesian, Cassis and Buzfuz followed the pace as named, pretty well bunched. That quartet showed the way into the stretch. Meanwhile, Atkinson had urged Coincidence into fifth place around the bend.

Passes Tiring Leaders

The Greentree galloper, which had finished fourth in the Bay Shore and first in the Aqueduct Handicap in his two previous endeavors, just romped past the tiring leaders once they straightened for home, winning as Atkinson pleased.

Alexis, another sluggish beginner, also found it a simple task to run over the fatigued Polynesian. H. P. Headley's three year old Pellicle broke lengths behind his field and ran a powerful race to finish a head behind Polynesian.

Coincidence Wins Over Star-Studded Field At Belmont

Alexis Finishes Second, Polynesian Third In Vosburgh Handicap

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Oct. 2. (AP)—The Greentree Stable's Coincidence, a four year old gelding that looks like a champion on occasion, was at his best today when he led home a star-studded field of sprinters in the $19,450 Vosburgh Handicap.

Giving his stable and Jockey Ted Atkinson a double, the son of Questionnaire rallied from 10th place in the 11-horse field that covered seven furlongs and triumphed by three lengths in 1:23 4-5. His backers collected $22.40 for two. The Christiana Stables' Alexis, another long shot, was second by five lengths.

Winner Earns $13,950

Then came Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's topweighted favorite, Polynesian, which in his last outing at Atlantic City, tied the world six furlong record of 1:09 1-5. The colt subsequently was kept out of the fall Highweight handicap here as the result of a mishap while grazing, but recovered in time to start this afternoon. He carried 130 pounds. Coincidence was weighted at 118. His share of the purse was $13,950.

A crowd of 18,000, glad they wore overcoats, witnessed the sport.

Kitchen Police cut out the early running under Warren Mehrtens, who was subbing for Basil James. The latter hurt his left foot during the fourth race and went to a hospital for precautionary X-rays.

Polynesian, Cassis and Buzfuz followed the pace as named, pretty well bunched. That quartet showed the way into the stretch. Meanwhile, Atkinson had urged Coincidence into fifth place around the bend.

Passes Tiring Leaders

The Greentree galloper, which had finished fourth in the Bay Shore and first in the Aqueduct Handicap in his two previous endeavors, just romped past the tiring leaders once they straightened for home, winning as Atkinson pleased.

Alexis, another sluggish beginner, also found it a simple task to run over the fatigued Polynesian. H. P. Headley's three year old Pellicle broke lengths behind his field and ran a powerful race to finish a head behind Polynesian.

Dennis Day and His Day Makes Debut New Show Tonight

By C. K. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—A new one and an old one join the NBC schedule Thursday night.

The new one is Dennis Day and his day, for the Bob Burns old time at 7:30, repeated at 9:30 for the west. It will be a combination of comedy and music, and Jack Benny, for whose program Dennis once sang, as opening guest.

The old one is the Abbott and Costello effort for 10 o'clock. They have been on their annual vacations. Marilyn Maxwell is being added as singer, while the orchestra, Skinnay Ennis, also is an addition.

This would have been the week of world series broadcasting, but with a playoff in the national league necessary to decide that division's winner, MBS instead is turning its attention to those games. On Thursday it is scheduled to do the second one from Brooklyn, time being posted at 1:15. If a third game is necessary Friday that also will be broadcast, MBS says. Programs on at these times are being set aside.

Grand Rapids, Mich., is to be the scene of America's Town meeting regular ABC broadcast at 8:30. Topic is "Why the lag in Production," with argument by Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto workers, and James F. Lincoln, Cleveland business executive.

Broadcast from the International council of Religious Education, listed for NBC at 1:15, will have as its theme "Moral and Religious Teaching for One World."

A special Yom Kippur half-hour is announced for 5:30 p. m. by CBS, with Rabbi Solomon Fineberg presiding. He is national chaplain of the Jewish war veterans.

Furniture, Wheel Goods Prices Must Be Approved

Small volume furniture and wheel goods manufacturers selling at unauthorized ceilings will be subject to a strict OPA enforcement campaign, the OPA said yesterday.

Such manufacturers who have failed to apply for approval of their ceiling prices will be given until October 14 to file their applications for prices to replace those revoked since August 26. Suits seeking injunctions and treble damages for overceiling charges will be filed after October 14 against those who fail to comply, the OPA warned.

Come winter and the school kids will find a mark to shoot at—just as soon as the snow packs.

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—A new one and an old one join the NBC schedule Thursday night.

The new one is Dennis Day and his day, for the Bob Burns old time at 7:30, repeated at 9:30 for the west. It will be a combination of comedy and music, and Jack Benny, for whose program Dennis once sang, as opening guest.

The old one is the Abbott and Costello effort for 10 o'clock. They have been on their annual vacations. Marilyn Maxwell is being added as singer, while the orchestra, Skinnay Ennis, also is an addition.

This would have been the week of world series broadcasting, but with a playoff in the national league necessary to decide that division's winner, MBS instead is turning its attention to those games. On Thursday it is scheduled to do the second one from Brooklyn, time being posted at 1:15. If a third game is necessary Friday that also will be broadcast, MBS says. Programs on at these times are being set aside.

Grand Rapids, Mich., is to be the scene of America's Town meeting regular ABC broadcast at 8:30. Topic is "Why the lag in Production," with argument by Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto workers, and James F. Lincoln, Cleveland business executive.

Broadcast from the International council of Religious Education, listed for NBC at 1:15, will have as its theme "Moral and Religious Teaching for One World."

A special Yom Kippur half-hour is announced for 5:30 p. m. by CBS, with Rabbi Solomon Fineberg presiding. He is national chaplain of the Jewish war veterans.

Furniture, Wheel Goods Prices Must Be Approved

Small volume furniture and wheel goods manufacturers selling at unauthorized ceilings will be subject to a strict OPA enforcement campaign, the OPA said yesterday.

Such manufacturers who have failed to apply for approval of their ceiling prices will be given until October 14 to file their applications for prices to replace those revoked since August 26. Suits seeking injunctions and treble damages for overceiling charges will be filed after October 14 against those who fail to comply, the OPA warned.

Come winter and the school kids will find a mark to shoot at—just as soon as the snow packs.

Donations Of $1,975.24 Are Made To Jones Fund

Employes In B. And O. Yards At Keyser And Three Celanese Shifts Send In Contributions

Contributions received by the NEWS for the "Jones Family Fund" now total $1,975.24 and several donations received after today's tabulation had been completed sent the fund well over the $2,000 mark.

Workmen in shops and industrial plants contributed more than $120 to the fund yesterday and school teachers, church groups, lodges and individuals also came through with donations for the support of the Jones children in Midland.

Editors of the NEWS were pleased yesterday to receive a contribution of $5 from Bernard T. McGowan, of Worchester, Mass., which shows how widespread the coverage of the CUMBERLAND NEWS is. This shows that readers of the NEWS from other states are interested in seeing that the six children of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Jones, of Midland, are kept together at their home, while Mr. and Mrs. Jones and a 13-year-old daughter are patients in the tuberculosis Sanitarium at Sabillasville, Md.

Workmen Make Collections

One of the first contributions received yesterday—and incidentally the largest—came from a number of employes in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yards in Keyser. The B. and O. workers sent in a total of $62, which the NEWS greatly appreciates. Winding Department of the Celanese Corporation (11 to 7 shift) turned in $36; the Warp Knitting Department of the Celanese (11 to 7 shift) contributed $20.25, and the Jet Cleaning Department of the Celanese sent in a contribution of $13.01.

Other contributors yesterday included the Teachers of Beall Elementary School, Frostburg, who sent $26; The Women's Missionary Society, First Baptist Church, Cumberland, $10; Lake Lynn Rebekah Lodge No. 97, IOOF, Mt. Lake Park, $5, and Mrs. Niland who sent in $1 and pledged $1 weekly.

A number of American Legion Posts sent word to the NEWS that they would make donations at their next meeting, and indications point to several hundred dollars more being contributed to the fund this week.

In Tuesday's acknowledgements of contributions Centre Street Methodist Church was credited with having donated $10 which was in error. This donation should have been credited to Mrs. Walter M. Michael, wife of the pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Michael said his church plans to make a contribution to the fund later.

Benefit Performances

The Midland Theater at Midland, operated by Lionel Clark, will give a benefit show for the fund Friday night, with the entire proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund." He is increasing his prices to 20 and 40 cents in order to obtain more funds for the show. His employes will donate their services so that the entire amount taken in can be contributed to the fund.

The Embassy theater in Cumberland will give a benefit show Saturday morning starting at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Grace Fisher, owner of the theater, said that the feature will be "The Great Mike" starring Stuart Erwin. There will also be a two-reel "Stooge" comedy and a color cartoon. Prices will be 20 cents for children under 12 and 40 cents for those over 12. The doors will open at 9:30 and the show will be over about 11:40.

The employes of the Embassy are contributing their services and a representative of PRC Pictures, Washington, D. C., is contributing the films. The NEWS urges the public to attend the show and help swell the "Jones Family Fund."

Other Events Planned

The Ladies Auxiliary of Barton Hose Company No. 1, will hold a party Monday night Oct. 14 in the Firemen's Armory, with the proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund," the News was advised by M. B. Bamberson, chairman.

Sunday afternoon a softball game will be played at the Midland ball park at 2 p. m., between the Aristocrats of Frostburg, and a team picked from the Maccabees and the East Side teams of the Cumberland City Softball League. The entire proceeds of the game will go to the "Jones Family Fund."

Election of new state officers will take place and state FFA accomplishments for the school year 1945-46 will be reviewed by Carroll House of Frederick County. One of the speakers will be H. M. McDonald, state supervisor of vocational agriculture, who also will present the guests.

Theatregate Picks "Candlelight" For Its Next Play

Play reading committee members of Theatregate have been "burning the midnight oil" in their search for "Candlelight". No, this doesn't mean that Cumberland is threatened with a power tie-up a la Pittsburgh.

"Candlelight", a three-act comedy written by the matchless P. G. Wodehouse, has been selected by the local drama group for its sixth production. It should go on the boards the latter part of November.

The choice was made after innumerable scripts had been read and classified. The reviewers, headed by chairman Richard Sitzler, pared the list to 27, then sifted it further to seven.

The Wodehouse play, which has a cast of five men and three women, was chosen over six other well-known stories. "Angel Street", Patrick Hamilton's mystery thriller; the dramatic "Bill of Divorcement" by Clemence Dane; and four comedies, "Biography" by S. N. Behrman, "Accent on Youth" by Sam Raphaelson, "Late Christopher Bean" by Sidney Howard, and Ben W. Levy's "Springtime for Henry".

Assisting Mr. Sitzler with the play reading work are committee members Mrs. William A. Gracie, Mrs. P. Brooke Whiting II, Mrs. Paul D. Pickens and Hugh D. Shires.

Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie, chairman of Theatregate Productions, called an orientation meeting of the new publicity committee she appointed this week. Mrs. John Durst is to lead the group. Her aides include Mrs. George Henderson, Mrs. Delphin Treiber, Mrs. James B. Craig and Braxton Dodson.

27 Tons Of Wastepaper Netted In Drive So Far

A total of 27 tons of wastepaper has been collected in the city-wide salvage drive which began Monday, with yesterday's total listed as 13 tons. The first two days of the drive netted three and 11 tons, respectively.

Collections today, starting at 9 a. m., will be made in all sections between Baltimore street and avenue and Oldtown Road.

Naval Reserve Division To Be Trade School

100 Ex-Navy Men Hear Discussion Of Proposed Local Organization

About 100 former Navy men met in the City Hall auditorium last night to hear Capt. Valery Havard, of Fifth Naval District Headquarters, Norfolk, Va., outline plans for the organization of a Naval Reserve Division in Cumberland. The group included men from Frostburg, Cresaptown and other nearby towns as well as Cumberland.

Capt. Havard also met yesterday with the mayor and city council and other city officials and discussed plans for the erection of a Naval Armory here. Capt. Havard explained that the Navy wants the city to furnish the land for the building on a lease or rental basis.

Engineer Ralph L. Rizer proposed a site on the hill east of the city, which can be reached from Marion and Monroe streets. The land is owned by the city and county and will provide adequate space for the huge armory building, Capt. Havard said last night.

City officials indicated they believed the county commissioners would be willing to have the land used for the purpose of building a Navy Armory.

Capt. Havard emphasized last night that the local Naval Reserve Division will be in the nature of a trade school, with drills or classes held about three hours each week, for which each member of the division will receive one day's regular pay.

Work is expected to start on the armory building in about two months, Capt. Havard said, as equipment and material have already been ear-marked for the purpose.

In the meantime the organization of the Naval Division will get underway, and temporary office and recruiting quarters will be set up in the State Armory. A full-time officer and full-time yeoman will be assigned here for organization purposes.

As soon as enough men enlist in the reserve to begin a training program it will be started, Capt. Havard said. The Navy desires to get the divisions underway, and usually doesn't fool around very much, he added, smiling.

Anna Mae Rizer Is Now Fully Conscious

Johns Hopkins Hospital attendants said yesterday that Anna Mae Rizer, 13, is now fully conscious although there is still some swelling around her brain. She continues to be fed through tubes, however.

Anna Mae, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Rizer, Zihlman, was struck by a car on September 27. She remained unconscious until last Wednesday when she regained partial consciousness.

William G. Leonard, Barrelville, listed by State Police as the driver of the car, is being held on $1,000 bond pending the outcome of her injuries.

29th Division To See Film Of Their Invasion

William C. Kirby Post No. 70, Twenty-Ninth Division Association is planning a drive for new members, according to Post Commander H. Frank Hinze. The campaign, in charge of Robert Powell, will open Wednesday, October 9, with a meeting and smoker for members and their guests at the State Armory.

Hinze said a motion picture entitled, "True Glory," showing the Twenty-Ninth Division's Landing on Normandy will be shown. All members of the division interested in seeing the film are welcome at the meeting Hinze said.

Most Bakeries Discontinue Making Cakes Due To Shortage Of Lard

Cumberland's bread supply, while not plentiful, will remain sufficient to meet consumer demands throughout this month, a check of local bakeries revealed yesterday. Beyond that none would venture an opinion.

Most baking company officials said the necessary ingredients for the "staff of life," are being received on a day-to-day basis, and while flour shortages have been relieved to some extent, the scarcity of lard and shortening has made it necessary to discontinue baking of cakes and pasteries so bread quotas can be met.

John A. Kreiling, vice president of the Community Baking Company, said "there isn't a pound of lard in the plant," and vegetable compounds are becoming increasingly hard to get. He explained that all bakeries are operating on a vegetable shortening quota that fluctuate from month to month.

Strikes Add To Woes

At the present time, Kreiling said, there is just enough vegetable compound in the plant to last for another three weeks. Orders have been placed, he declared, but the trucking and shipping strikes make it impossible to even guess when new supplies will arrive, even if they are obtainable.

The company has ceased baking cakes and sweets all together, Kreiling asserted, and is channeling supplies to the bread department. He estimated that unless the lard and shortening scarcity improves the company will have to operate on a very limited basis, after the next 30 days.

CEMETERY IS CLOSED—The board of trustees of Cresaptown Methodist Church has taken action to restore the condition of the long-neglected church yard and cemetery which lies in the center of the community along U. S. Route 220. A committee headed by G. E. Broadwater has appealed to residents and members of the congregation to help clear the cemetery of brush, weeds, etc., replace grave markers, and level the ground so it can be properly cared for. In the upper photo can be seen a part of the cemetery, over-grown with brush, thorns, weeds and wild grass. In the lower picture is a marker of what is believed the first person buried in the plot. She is said by old residents to have been a negro slave owned by a man named Brady. This marker was found while a section of the cemetery was being cleared yesterday. (see story)

History Of Fine People Revealed In Old Cemetery At Cresaptown

Ann Baxter, Negro Slave, Believed To Have Been Buried There In 1804; Committee Is Named To Clean Up And Beautify Grounds

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Man passes away; his name perishes from record and recollection; his history is as a tale that is told, and his very monument becomes a ruin.—Washington Irving.

Within the shadow of the Cresaptown Methodist Church, there is a cemetery, once known as a country church yard. Now it lies in the very heart of a growing and expanding community, within sight of the county's largest industrial plant.

For many years, the cemetery was forgotten, and no new graves were opened there. As Bryant would have put it, "In their last sleep; the dead reign there alone."

Grown up with weeds, wild grass, thorns and brush, some of the headstones have been broken and fallen away. Many of the 100 or more graves are sunken, unkept and neglected.

As one walks through the old church yard, the words of the late Joseph Anderson are recalled:

"The Christian cemetery is a memorial and a record. It is not a mere field in which the dead are stowed away unknown; it is a touching and beautiful history, written in family burial plots, in mounded graves, in sculptured and inscribed monuments. It tells the story of the past—not of its institutions, or its wars, or its ideas, but of the individual lives—of its men and women and children, and of its household. It is silent but eloquent; it is common but it is unique. We find no such history elsewhere; there are no records in all the world in which we can discover so much that is suggestive, so much that is pathetic and impressive."

Old Tombstones Found

Anderson was not writing about the Cresaptown cemetery, but about all cemeteries. And here in the Cresaptown cemetery is history. History of a fine people who came to this county and settled and raised families, and built churches and homes and schools. These were the pioneers.

On the stones and remnants of stones can be seen such names as Broadwater, Winters, Stotler, Shepherd, Knight, Bennett, Smith, Powers, Chilcott, Johnson, Avery, Baxter and many others.

As far as can be determined the first grave was opened here in the year 1804 where Ann Baxter is buried. Old residents of the community say she was a negro slave owned by a man named Brady.

There is another grave nearby where the marker reads "WILLIAM STREETS, A Faithful Servant, Died February 4, 1858, Aged 81 Years, A Believer in Christ". This grave too, is said to be the last resting place of another negro slave.

Some of the old residents in the community recall that their parents and other people now gone, told stories about Brady and his slaves. Unlike many slave-owners, Brady is said to have been good to his servants, insisted they attend church each Sunday, and if he owned a "bad" or "unruly" slave, he sold him.

Since the first graves were made at this site, three churches have seen several generations of people come and go. According to J. H. Hershberger, one of the town's oldest residents and a member of the church, the present building was erected in 1935 and dedicated April 1936. The site had been occupied by a frame and stone block church for many years prior to that time, and records show a smaller building, referred to in the church's history as a chapel, stood there earlier.

To Clean Up Cemetery

On the corner stone of the present building are three dates, 1804, 1896 and 1935. These represent the dates when people in the community combined their efforts and resources to build churches on the site. And all this time, the little church yard and cemetery kept growing.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the church, it was decided the cemetery should be given immediate attention. G. E. Broadwater, a member of the board was named chairman of a cemetery committee. Work has been started

Mining Contract Subject Of Suit In Circuit Court

Dorothy Coal Company Asks Decree Ordering Specific Performance

Suit has been filed in Circuit Court asking that a decree be granted ordering specific enforcement of an alleged contract pertaining to mining of coal on land near Mt. Savage.

The action was filed by David N. Goldberg, Angelo Franciose and Ralph Franciose, trading as the Dorothy Coal Company, against James W. Ford, trading as the Ford Coal Company, Ford, George E. Ford, his brother, John Betters and Dominic Betters, trading as Betters-Ford Coal Company, and Mt. Savage Refractories Company.

The complainants also asked that an injunction be issued restraining the defendants from disposing of coal on the property, and a temporary restraining order was issued by Chief Judge William A. Huster to that effect.

Written Contract

Mt. Savage Refractories Company, owner of the Dickel Farm near Mt. Savage, entered into a contract with James Ford, the complainants said, who received the right to mine coal on a royalty basis. Ford then, on July 10, entered into a written contract with the complainants, they allege, for strip mining the coal on the property.

They said they were to deliver the coal into trucks of the Ford Coal Company and were to receive $2.06 per net ton. The agreement further stipulated, the complainants said, that Ford should furnish all equipment needed to haul the coal.

At least 8,000 tons of marketable coal was uncovered, according to the bill of complaint, which added that the work of the complainants in getting the coal ready for delivery amounted to about $18,000. They said they thus increased the value of the land and coal by at least this amount.

Breach of contract is alleged by the complainants who say the Ford Coal Company has refused to send its trucks to the pit for delivery of coal.

Intend To Cancel Lease

The complainants charge that the Ford Coal Company, working in conjunction with the refractories company, intends to cancel the lease agreement with the refractories and that the refractories intend to sell the coal to another party. Goldberg and the Franciocos asserted that it is the intention of the defendants to avoid compensating them for their work and expense.

Operations conducted by the Dorothy Coal Company were known to the refractories firm from the time operations began and were carried on with the approval of the refractories, the complainants states.

They added that they were informed that since the execution of the agreement on July 10, James Ford entered into a partnership with George Ford and that still later a new partnership trading as the Betters-Ford Coal Company was set up.

The complainants asked the court to decree that they have an equitable lien upon the real estate and coal for the value of their services.

Albert A. Doub, Jr., and John M. Robb represent the complaints.

Arbitrator Sought To Rule On Recall Of Strike Leaders

William Kaufman, Baltimore, field representative of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, AFL, said yesterday the ILGWU is seeking a local arbitrator to decide whether leaders of the strike which halted production at the Cumberland Undergarment Company for two months will be recalled.

Maurice Milberg, plant manager, last month was quoted as saying the company "does not plan to recall 12 workers because they were leaders in the strike which constituted a breach of contract" between the company and the ILGWU.

Kaufman explained that the services of a local man to serve as arbitrator is being sought because the union feels the issue is a "local problem" and added he wants the matter settled as soon as possible so that the case may be closed.

He added he was unable to report the exact status of recall of employes at the plant but said he will visit the plant today to check the matter. Shortage of materials, he said, delayed the resumption of full operations.

Kaufman said the union will not contest the failure to recall workers who have not completed the four weeks trial period since the contract gives the company the privilege of not recalling learners.

The Allegany Trades Council, which aided in the settlement of the strike which closed the plant from July 18 to September 16, appointed a committee last week to investigate why all workers had not been recalled, asserting it was told all workers would be recalled.

RETIRES—Simon P. Newlin, 416 Arch street, retired Monday after 22 years of service with the Potomac Edison Company. He started in the line department in 1924 and later was transferred to the River Plant. He had been a guard at the plant since 1941.

PE Worker Retires After 22 Years

After 22 years of service with the Potomac Edison Company, Simon P. Newlin, 416 Arch street, retired September 30.

Newlin went to work with the line department in 1924, and nine years later was transferred to the River Plant as a fireman in the boiler room. In the middle of 1941, at the beginning of the national emergency, Newlin became a guard at the River Plant, a post he held until his retirement.

At the present time Newlin is building a new home and expects to devote most of his time to that undertaking. When that is finished he expects to "take it easy."

Newlin is the father of two sons and two daughters. Both sons served in the air forces during the war, and one, Timothy, died in an army hospital at an ATC base in Memphis, Tenn., in April. The other son, James L. Newlin, was recently separated from service and returned to work with the Potomac Edison Company on Tuesday.

398 Cases Are Handled By Local Agency In Month

Associated Charities Work Is Outlined In Report To Community Chest

In a monthly report of Associated Charities, submitted to the Cumberland Community Chest, Miss Jeannette L. Bonig, executive secretary, said yesterday that 398 cases were handled during the month, and that 341 cases were carried over from the preceding month.

Of the 87 inquiries received regarding employment during that period, employment such as light housework and other domestic work was found for 37 persons, Miss Bonig said.

Stating that the agency's chief work has been in the field of rehabilitation, Miss Bonig said that the greatest problem has been in finding homes for persons who have no place to stay. A total of 209 visits and collateral contacts regarding all clients was made during the month, she added.

Other work done by the organization included supplying grocery orders for 43 persons, and filling drug orders for 29 persons; rent paid in 11 cases, room and board for 15 persons, electricity bills paid for 17 persons and gas bills for 13 persons.

Clothing was purchased for 22 persons, including heavy clothing for four persons who needed sanitorium care and 15 pairs of shoes for school children. In this connection, Miss Bonig reported that 1,809 pieces of clothing were donated to the agency for distribution.

Arrangements were made in 23 cases for persons to attend city clinics, receive hospitalization, dental care or sanatorium treatment, be taken to the county infirmary, or receive child care. Nursing care was provided in three cases; arrangements were made in seven cases to have delinquent children returned to school; and in three cases arrangements were made for moving furniture and household possessions.

Transportation expenses to the Johns Hopkins clinic in Baltimore and to sanitoria were paid for 18 persons, and 980 quarts of milk were supplied to babies in 20 families through the Baby Welfare Society.

According to James Thompson, commander of the post, an oyster roast will be held on the occasion of the visitation by the district officers.

Rev. Mr. Main was named chairman of the publicity committee at a recent meeting of the board of managers of the Methodist Training School of Cumberland and vicinity, at Central YMCA.

Rev. Watson E. Holley, pastor of First Methodist Church, Frostburg, was named chairman of the board, which includes the pastor and one representative from each of the 24 Methodist charges in the Cumberland sub-district.

Other officers named at the meeting were Rev. Raymond M. Crowe, pastor of Midland Methodist circuit, secretary; Robert W. Young, treasurer and chairman of the finance committee; Rev. B. Rose, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church, chairman of the committee on arrangements and entertainment; Rev. Mr. Crowe, librarian; and Mrs. John P. Zimmerman, registrar.

Rev. Mr. Mark was dean of a similar training school held last year at Centre Street Methodist Church on the theme of "Evangelism," in the four-year "Crusade for

Mrs. Louis Kline Wins Court Suit Over Property

Judge Capper Says Parties Should Be Bound By Attorneys' Actions

An opinion handed down yesterday in Circuit Court by Associate Judge Walter C. Capper grants the petition of Mrs. Carrie M. Kline, widow of Louis Kline, for a declatory judgment specifically enforcing the sale to her for $6,500 of a 60 per cent interest in the property at 19, 21 and 23 Baltimore street by Mr. and Mrs. Morris H. Daskais, the latter a daughter of Mr. Kline by a former marriage.

"The evidence showed, according to the opinion, that for some time prior to the alleged sale, the plaintiff, Mrs. Kline, represented by Clarence Lippel, and the defendants Mr. and Mrs. Daskais, represented by William C. Walsh, had been negotiating with each other for either a purchase or sale of their respective clients' interest. Kline, in his will had devised Mrs. Kline a 40 per cent interest in the property.

On May 3, 1946, Walsh sent Lippel a letter in which he said that Mrs. Daskais would sell her interest to Mrs. Kline for $6,500, with the understanding that the latter would assume all obligations owed by the estate of Louis Kline and would also be entitled to the assets, the opinion cited. The letter asked that an answer be given, if possible, by the following Monday.

Accepted Offer

Lippel wrote to Walsh May 14 saying that Mrs. Kline accepted the offer and would arrange to pay in cash within 60 days, Judge Capper related, adding that Walsh on the following day wrote Lippel reiterating the terms of the settlement in so far as it concerned obligations, assets of the estate, fees, costs, etc. Judge Capper declared that the court does not see that the letter "in any manner attempted to change the terms of sale."

From the testimony, the jurist said, it would appear that Walsh "was somewhat concerned about his counsel fee of $750 and that he did not wish to make a settlement and then have to fight about his fee."

Judge Capper recalled the offer of May 3 and said that it provided that all obligations owed by the estate of Louis Kline would be paid by Mrs. Kline. This being so, he continued, Walsh's counsel fee "would be a part of these obligations so far as it concerned services rendered to the executor, William M. Somerville, whom he also represented; it would be among the legitimate obligations of the estate and would be paid by the plaintiff. The court can, therefore, see no reason why any misunderstanding of the fee should be considered between counsel about the amount in deciding whether or not there was a sale of the property involved."

Both Walsh and Morris Daskais indicated in testimony that the offer by the former in the letter of May 3 had not been definitely accepted, Judge Capper stated, but he added that the court is "not, however, able to agree with them in this connection because a careful reading of the letter of Attorney Lippel of May 14 will show that he accepted the offer of May 3 in its exact terms excepting that he would arrange to pay the purchase price within 60 days.

Court Does Not Agree

It is now contended by other counsel for the defendants, the jurist said, that "an attorney has no authority to make a binding contract of sale upon his clients under the circumstances outlined in this case. With this contention the court cannot agree."

Judge Capper said he feels "it would be an anomoly to hold that attorneys at law with full and complete power to bind their principals in the sale of real estate at a certain price could not make such a sale without referring the matter to their principals for a formal contract."

"The court believes that under the circumstances of this case the sale was fairly made by the offer and that the parties should be bound by the action of their respective attorneys in so doing . . .

"The court, however, does not feel that it is called upon to deal further with the question of the fee of Judge Walsh in this case . . ."

Milton Gerson represented Mr. and Mrs. Daskais in the litigation. Lippel and Charles Z. Heskett represented Mrs. Kline.

Heskett Is Named Member Of State Aviation Group

Charles Z. Heskett, now serving his tenth term as city attorney, was appointed a member of the State Aviation Commission for a three-year term by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor yesterday, according to the Associated Press.

Heskett will fill the vacancy which has existed on the commission since the resignation of Karl F. Steinmann, Baltimore attorney, in April, 1945.

The action marks the first time that a member of the five-member commission has been named from outside the Baltimore-Annapolis area. For a number of years Heskett served as director of the Cumberland Municipal Airport when it was in the building stage, and when the Municipal Airport Commission was appointed almost a year ago, Heskett was named a member.

In announcing Heskett's appointment the Governor said the local attorney is considered one of the best informed men in Maryland on aviation problems. The State Bar Association recently listed him as one of those worthy of consideration for appointment to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

The other members of the commission, whose primary function is to develop a state airport plan, are Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, USA (retired), chairman; William K. Ebel, Mrs. Thelma Elliott Glesin, and William T. Armbruster of Annapolis. The group serves without compensation.

Donations Of $1,975.24 Are Made To Jones Fund

Employes In B. And O. Yards At Keyser And Three Celanese Shifts Send In Contributions

Contributions received by the NEWS for the "Jones Family Fund" now total $1,975.24 and several donations received after today's tabulation had been completed sent the fund well over the $2,000 mark.

Workmen in shops and industrial plants contributed more than $120 to the fund yesterday and school teachers, church groups, lodges and individuals also came through with donations for the support of the Jones children in Midland.

Editors of the NEWS were pleased yesterday to receive a contribution of $5 from Bernard T. McGowan, of Worchester, Mass., which shows how widespread the coverage of the CUMBERLAND NEWS is. This shows that readers of the NEWS from other states are interested in seeing that the six children of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Jones, of Midland, are kept together at their home, while Mr. and Mrs. Jones and a 13-year-old daughter are patients in the tuberculosis Sanitarium at Sabillasville, Md.

Workmen Make Collections

One of the first contributions received yesterday—and incidentally the largest—came from a number of employes in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yards in Keyser. The B. and O. workers sent in a total of $62, which the NEWS greatly appreciates. Winding Department of the Celanese Corporation (11 to 7 shift) turned in $36; the Warp Knitting Department of the Celanese (11 to 7 shift) contributed $20.25, and the Jet Cleaning Department of the Celanese sent in a contribution of $13.01.

Other contributors yesterday included the Teachers of Beall Elementary School, Frostburg, who sent $20; The Women's Missionary Society, First Baptist Church, Cumberland, $10; Lake Lynn Rebekah Lodge No. 97, IOOF, Mt. Lake Park, $5, and Mrs. Niland who sent in $1 and pledged $1 weekly.

A number of American Legion Posts sent word to the NEWS that they would make donations at their next meeting, and indications point to several hundred dollars more being contributed to the fund this week.

In Tuesday's acknowledgements of contributions Centre Street Methodist Church was credited with having donated $10 which was in error. This donation should have been credited to Mrs. Walter M. Michael, wife of the pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Michael said his church plans to make a contribution to the fund later.

Benefit Performances

The Midland Theater at Midland, operated by Lionel Clark, will give a benefit show for the fund Friday night, with the entire proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund." He is increasing his prices to 20 and 40 cents in order to obtain more funds for the show. His employes will donate their services so that the entire amount taken in can be contributed to the fund.

The Embassy theater in Cumberland will give a benefit show Saturday morning starting at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Grace Fisher, owner of the theater, said that the feature will be "The Great Mike" starring Stuart Erwin. There will also be a two-reel "Stooge" comedy and a color cartoon. Prices will be 20 cents for children under 12 and 40 cents for those over 12. The doors will open at 9:30 and the show will be over about 11:40.

The employes of the Embassy are contributing their services and a representative of PRC Pictures, Washington, D. C., is contributing the films. The NEWS urges the public to attend the show and help swell the "Jones Family Fund."

Other Events Planned

The Ladies Auxiliary of Barton Hose Company No. 1, will hold a party Monday night Oct. 14 in the Firemen's Armory, with the proceeds going to the "Jones Family Fund," the News was advised by M. B. Lamberson, chairman.

Sunday afternoon a softball game will be played at the Midland ball park at 2 p. m., between the Aristocrats of Frostburg, and a team picked from the Maccabees and the East Side teams of the Cumberland City Softball League. The entire proceeds of the game will go to the "Jones Family Fund."

Election of new state officers will take place and state FFA accomplishments for the school year 1945-46 will be reviewed by Carroll House of Frederick County. One of the speakers will be H. M. McDonald, state supervisor of vocational agriculture, who also will present the guests.

Theatregate Picks "Candlelight" For Its Next Play

Play reading committee members of Theatregate have been "burning the midnight oil" in their search for "Candlelight". No, this doesn't mean that Cumberland is threatened with a power tie-up a la Pittsburgh.

"Candlelight", a three-act comedy written by the matchless P. G. Wodehouse, has been selected by the local drama group for its sixth production. It should go on the boards the latter part of November.

The choice was made after innumerable scripts had been read and classified. The reviewers, headed by chairman Richard Sitaler, pared the list to 27, then sifted it further to seven.

The Wodehouse play, which has a cast of five men and three women, was chosen over six other well-known stories. "Angel Street", Patrick Hamilton's mystery thriller; the dramatic "Bill of Divorcement" by Clemence Dane; and four comedies, "Biography" by S. N. Behrman, "Accent on Youth" by Sam Raphaelson, "Late Christopher Bean" by Sidney Howard, and Ben W. Levy's "Springtime for Henry".

Assisting Mr. Sitaler with the play reading work are committee members Mrs. William A. Gracie, Mrs. F. Brooke Whiting II, Mrs. Paul D. Pickens and Hugh D. Shires.

Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie, chairman of Theatregate Productions, called an orientation meeting of the new publicity committee she appointed this week. Mrs. John Durst is to lead the group. Her aides include Mrs. George Henderson, Mrs. Delphin Treiber, Mrs. James B. Craig and Braxton Dodson.

27 Tons Of Wastepaper Netted In Drive So Far

A total of 27 tons of wastepaper has been collected in the city-wide salvage drive which began Monday, with yesterday's total listed as 13 tons. The first two days of the drive netted three and 11 tons, respectively.

Collections today, starting at 9 a. m., will be made in all sections between Baltimore street and avenue and Oldtown Road.

100 Ex-Navy Men Hear Discussion Of Proposed Local Organization

About 100 former Navy men met in the City Hall auditorium last night to hear Capt. Valery Havard, of Fifth Naval District Headquarters, Norfolk, Va., outline plans for the organization of a Naval Reserve Division in Cumberland. The group included men from Frostburg, Cresaptown and other nearby towns as well as Cumberland.

Capt. Havard also met yesterday with the mayor and city council and other city officials and discussed plans for the erection of a Naval Armory here. Capt. Havard explained that the Navy wants the city to furnish the land for the building on a lease or rental basis.

Engineer Ralph L. Rizer proposed a site on the hill east of the city, which can be reached from Marion and Monroe streets. The land is owned by the city and county and will provide adequate space for the huge armory building, Capt. Havard said last night.

City officials indicated they believed the county commissioners would be willing to have the land used for the purpose of building a Navy Armory.

Capt. Havard emphasized last night that the local Naval Reserve Division will be in the nature of a trade school, with drills or classes held about three hours each week, for which each member of the division will receive one day's regular pay.

Work is expected to start on the armory building in about two months, Capt. Havard said, as equipment and material have already been ear-marked for the purpose.

In the meantime the organization of the Naval Division will get underway, and temporary office and recruiting quarters will be set up in the State Armory. A full-time officer and full-time yeoman will be assigned here for organization purposes.

As soon as enough men enlist in the reserve to begin a training program it will be started, Capt. Havard said. The Navy desires to get the divisions underway, and usually doesn't fool around very much, he added, smiling.

Anna Mae Rizer Is Now Fully Conscious

Johns Hopkins Hospital attendants said yesterday that Anna Mae Rizer, 13, is now fully conscious although there is still some swelling around her brain. She continues to be fed through tubes, however.

Anna Mae, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Rizer, Zihlman, was struck by a car on September 17. She remained unconscious until last Wednesday when she regained partial consciousness.

William G. Leonard, Barrelville, listed by State Police as the driver of the car, is being held on $1,000 bond pending the outcome of her injuries.

29th Division To See Film Of Their Invasion

William C. Kirby Post No. 70, Twenty-Ninth Division Association is planning a drive for new members, according to Post Commander H. Frank Hinze. The campaign, in charge of Robert Powell, will open Wednesday, October 9, with a meeting and smoker for members and their guests at the State Armory.

Hinze said a motion picture entitled, "True Glory," showing the Twenty-Ninth Division's Landing on Normandy will be shown. All members of the division interested in seeing the film are welcome at the meeting Hinze said.

Most Bakeries Discontinue Making Cakes Due To Shortage Of Lard

Cumberland's bread supply, while not plentiful, will remain sufficient to meet consumer demands throughout this month, a check of local bakeries revealed yesterday. Beyond that none would venture an opinion.

Most baking company officials said the necessary ingredients for the "staff of life" are being received on a day-to-day basis, and while flour shortages have been relieved to some extent, the scarcity of lard and shortening has made it necessary to discontinue baking of cakes and pasteries so bread quotas can be met.

John A. Kreiling, vice president of the Community Baking Company, said "there isn't a pound of lard in the plant," and vegetable compounds are becoming increasingly hard to get. He explained that all bakeries are operating on a vegetable shortening quota that fluctuate from month to month.

Strikes Add To Woes

At the present time, Kreiling said, there is just enough vegetable compound in the plant to last for another three weeks. Orders have been placed, he declared, but the trucking and shipping strikes make it impossible to even guess when new supplies will arrive, even if they are obtainable.

The company has ceased baking cakes and sweets all together, Kreiling asserted, and is channeling supplies to the bread department. He estimated that unless the lard and shortening scarcity improves the company will have to operate on a very limited basis, after the next 30 days.

CEMETERY IS CLOSED—The board of trustees of Cresaptown Methodist Church has taken action to restore the condition of the long-neglected church yard and cemetery which lies in the center of the community along U. S. Route 220. A committee headed by G. E. Broadwater has appealed to residents and members of the congregation to help clear the cemetery of brush, weeds, etc., replace grave markers, and level the ground so it can be properly cared for. In the upper photo can be seen a part of the cemetery, over-grown with brush, thorns, weeds and wild grass. In the lower picture is a marker of what is believed the first person buried in the plot. She is said by old residents to have been a negro slave owned by a man named Brady. This marker was found while a section of the cemetery was being cleared yesterday. (see story)

History Of Fine People Revealed In Old Cemetery At Cresaptown

Ann Baxter, Negro Slave, Believed To Have Been Buried There In 1804; Committee Is Named To Clean Up And Beautify Grounds

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Man passes away; his name perishes from record and recollection; his history is as a tale that is told, and his very monument becomes a ruin.—Washington Irving.

Within the shadow of the Cresaptown Methodist Church, there is a cemetery, once known as a country church yard. Now it lies in the very heart of a growing and expanding community, within sight of the county's largest industrial plant.

For many years, the cemetery was forgotten, and no new graves were opened there. As Bryant would have put it, "In their last sleep; the dead reign there alone."

Grown up with weeds, wild grass, thorns and brush, some of the headstones have been broken and fallen away. Many of the 100 or more graves are sunken, unkept and neglected.

As one walks through the old church yard, the words of the late Joseph Anderson are recalled:

"The Christian cemetery is a memorial and a record. It is not a mere field in which the dead are stowed away unknown; it is a touching and beautiful history, written in family burial plots, in mounded graves, in sculptured and inscribed monuments. It tells the story of the past—not of its institutions, or its wars, or its ideas, but of the individual lives—of its men and women and children, and of its household. It is silent but eloquent; it is common but it is unique. We find no such history elsewhere; there are no records in all the world in which we can discover so much that is suggestive, so much that is pathetic and impressive."

Old Tombstones Found

Anderson was not writing about the Cresaptown cemetery, but about all cemeteries. And here in the Cresaptown cemetery is history. History of a fine people who came to this county and settled and raised families, and built churches and homes and schools. These were the pioneers.

On the stones and remnants of stones can be seen such names as Broadwater, Winters, Stotler, Shepherd, Knight, Bennett, Smith, Powers, Chilcott, Johnson, Avery, Baxter and many others.

As far as can be determined the first grave was opened here in the year 1804 where Ann Baxter is buried. Old residents of the community say she was a negro slave owned by a man named Brady.

There is another grave nearby where the marker reads "WILLIAM STREETS, A Faithful Servant, Died February 4, 1858, Aged 81 Years, A Believer in Christ". This grave too, is said to be the last resting place of another negro slave.

Some of the old residents in the community recall that their parents and other people now gone, told stories about Brady and his slaves. Unlike many slave-owners, Brady is said to have been good to his servants, insisted they attend church each Sunday, and if he owned a "bad" or "unruly" slave, he sold him.

Since the first graves were made at this site, three churches have seen several generations of people come and go. According to J. H. Hershberger, one of the town's oldest residents and a member of the church, the present building was erected in 1935 and dedicated April 1936. The site had been occupied by a frame and stone block church for many years prior to that time, and records show a smaller building, referred to in the church's history as a chapel, stood there earlier.

To Clean Up Cemetery

On the corner stone of the present building are three dates, 1804, 1896 and 1935. These represent the dates when people in the community combined their efforts and resources to build churches on the site. And all this time, the little church yard and cemetery kept growing.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the church, it was decided the cemetery should be given immediate attention. G. E. Broadwater, a member of the board was named chairman of a cemetery committee. Work has been started

Dorothy Coal Company Asks Decree Ordering Specific Performance

Suit has been filed in Circuit Court asking that a decree be granted ordering specific enforcement of an alleged contract pertaining to mining of coal on land near Mt. Savage.

The action was filed by David N. Goldberg, Angelo Franciose and Ralph Franciose, trading as the Dorothy Coal Company, against James W. Ford, trading as the Ford Coal Company, Ford, George E. Ford, his brother, John Betters and Dominic Betters, trading as Betters-Ford Coal Company, and Mt. Savage Refractories Company.

The complainants also asked that an injunction be issued restraining the defendants from disposing of coal on the property, and a temporary restraining order was issued by Chief Judge William A. Huster to that effect.

Written Contract

Mt. Savage Refractories Company, owner of the Dickel Farm near Mt. Savage, entered into a contract with James Ford, the complainants said, who received the right to mine coal on a royalty basis. Ford then, on July 10, entered into a written contract with the complainants, they allege, for strip mining the coal on the property.

They said they were to deliver the coal into trucks of the Ford Coal Company and were to receive $2.06 per net ton. The agreement further stipulated, the complainants said, that Ford should furnish all equipment needed to haul the coal.

At least 8,000 tons of marketable coal was uncovered, according to the bill of complaint, which added that the work of the complainants in getting the coal ready for delivery amounted to about $18,000. They said they thus increased the value of the land and coal by at least this amount.

Breach of contract is alleged by the complainants who say the Ford Coal Company has refused to send its trucks to the pit for delivery of coal.

Intend To Cancel Lease

The complainants charge that the Ford Coal Company, working in conjunction with the refractories company, intends to cancel the lease agreement with the refractories and that the refractories intend to sell the coal to another party. Goldberg and the Franciose asserted that it is the intention of the defendants to avoid compensating them for their work and expense.

Operations conducted by the Dorothy Coal Company were known to the refractories firm from the time operations began and were carried on with the approval of the refractories, the complainants states.

They added that they were informed that since the execution of the agreement on July 10, James Ford entered into a partnership with George Ford and that still later a new partnership trading as the Betters-Ford Coal Company was set up.

The complainants asked the court to decree that they have an equitable lien upon the real estate and coal for the value of their services.

Arbitrator Sought To Rule On Recall Of Strike Leaders

William Kaufman, Baltimore, field representative of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, AFL, said yesterday the ILGWU is seeking a local arbitrator to decide whether leaders of the strike which halted production at the Cumberland Undergarment Company for two months will be recalled.

Maurice Milberg, plant manager, last month was quoted as saying the company "does not plan to recall 12 workers because they were leaders in the strike which constituted a breach of contract" between the company and the ILGWU.

Kaufman explained that the services of a local man to serve as arbitrator is being sought because the union feels the issue is a "local problem" and added he wants the matter settled as soon as possible so that the case may be closed.

He added he was unable to report the exact status of recall of employes at the plant but said he will visit the plant today to check the matter. Shortage of materials, he said, delayed the resumption of full operations.

Kaufman said the union will not contest the failure to recall workers who have not completed the four weeks trial period since the contract gives the company the privilege of not recalling learners.

The Allegany Trades Council, which aided in the settlement of the strike which closed the plant from July 18 to September 16, appointed a committee last week to investigate why all workers had not been recalled, asserting it was told all workers would be recalled.

RETIRES—Simon P. Newlin, 416 Arch street, retired Monday after 22 years of service with the Potomac Edison Company. He started in the line department in 1924 and later was transferred to the River Plant. He had been a guard at the plant since 1941.

PE Worker Retires After 22 Years

After 22 years of service with the Potomac Edison Company, Simon P. Newlin, 416 Arch street, retired September 30.

Newlin went to work with the line department in 1924, and nine years later was transferred to the River Plant as a fireman in the boiler room. In the middle of 1941, at the beginning of the national emergency, Newlin became a guard at the River Plant, a post he held until his retirement.

At the present time Newlin is building a new home and expects to devote most of his time to that undertaking. When that is finished he expects to "take it easy."

Newlin is the father of two sons and two daughters. Both sons served in the air forces during the war, and one, Timothy, died in an army hospital at an ATC base in Memphis, Tenn., in April. The other son, James L. Newlin, was recently separated from service and returned to work with the Potomac Edison Company on Tuesday.

398 Cases Are Handled By Local Agency In Month

Associated Charities Work Is Outlined In Report To Community Chest

In a monthly report of Associated Charities, submitted to the Cumberland Community Chest, Miss Jeannette L. Bonig, executive secretary, said yesterday that 398 cases were handled during the month, and that 341 cases were carried over from the preceding month.

Of the 87 inquiries received regarding employment during that period, employment such as light housework and other domestic work was found for 37 persons, Miss Bonig said.

Stating that the agency's chief work has been in the field of rehabilitation, Miss Bonig said that the greatest problem has been in finding homes for persons who have no place to stay. A total of 209 visits and collateral contacts regarding all clients was made during the month, she added.

Other work done by the organization included supplying grocery orders for 43 persons, and filling drug orders for 29 persons; rent paid in 11 cases, room and board for 15 persons, electricity bills paid for 17 persons and gas bills for 13 persons.

Clothing was purchased for 22 persons, including heavy clothing for four persons who needed sanitorium care and 15 pairs of shoes for school children. In this connection, Miss Bonig reported that 1,809 pieces of clothing were donated to the agency for distribution.

Arrangements were made in 23 cases for persons to attend city clinics, receive hospitalization, dental care or sanatorium treatment, be taken to the county infirmary, or receive child care. Nursing care was provided in three cases; arrangements were made in seven cases to have delinquent children returned to school; and in three cases arrangements were made for moving furniture and household possessions.

Transportation expenses to the Johns Hopkins clinic in Baltimore and to sanitoria were paid for 18 persons, and 990 quarts of milk were supplied to babies in 20 families through the Baby Welfare Society.

According to James Thompson, commander of the post, an oyster roast will be held on the occasion of the visitation by the district officers.

Mrs. Louis Kline Wins Court Suit Over Property

Judge Capper Says Parties Should Be Bound By Attorneys' Actions

An opinion handed down yesterday in Circuit Court by Associate Judge Walter C. Capper grants the petition of Mrs. Carrie M. Kline, widow of Louis Kline, for a declatory judgment specifically enforcing the sale to her for $6,500 of a 60 per cent interest in the property at 19, 21 and 23 Baltimore street by Mr. and Mrs. Morris H. Daskais, the latter a daughter of Mr. Kline by a former marriage.

"The evidence showed, according to the opinion, that for some time prior to the alleged sale, the plaintiff, Mrs. Kline, represented by Clarence Lippel, and the defendants Mr. and Mrs. Daskais, represented by William C. Walsh, had been negotiating with each other for either a purchase or sale of their respective clients' interest. Kline, in his will had devised Mrs. Kline a 40 per cent interest in the property.

On May 3, 1946, Walsh sent Lippel a letter in which he said that Mrs. Daskais would sell her interest to Mrs. Kline for $6,500, with the understanding that the latter would assume all obligations owed by the estate of Louis Kline and would also be entitled to the assets, the opinion cited. The letter asked that an answer be given, if possible, by the following Monday.

Accepted Offer

Lippel wrote to Walsh May 14 saying that Mrs. Kline accepted the offer and would arrange to pay in cash within 60 days, Judge Capper related, adding that Walsh on the following day wrote Lippel reiterating the terms of the settlement in so far as it concerned obligations, assets of the estate, fees, costs, etc. Judge Capper declared that the court does not see that the letter "in any manner attempted to change the terms of sale."

From the testimony, the jurist said, it would appear that Walsh "was somewhat concerned about his counsel fee of $750 and that he did not wish to make a settlement and then have to fight about his fee."

Judge Capper recalled the offer of May 3 and said that it provided that all obligations owed by the estate of Louis Kline would be paid by Mrs. Kline. This being so, he continued, Walsh's counsel fee "would be a part of these obligations so far as it concerned services rendered to the executor, William M. Somerville, whom he also represented; it would be among the legitimate obligations of the estate and would be paid by the plaintiff. The court can, therefore, see no reason why any misunderstanding of the fee should be considered between counsel about the amount in deciding whether or not there was a sale of the property involved."

Both Walsh and Morris Daskais indicated in testimony that the offer by the former in the letter of May 3 had not been definitely accepted, Judge Capper stated, but he added that the court is "not, however, able to agree with them in this connection because a careful reading of the letter of Attorney Lippel of May 14 will show that he accepted the offer of May 3 in its exact terms excepting that he would arrange to pay the purchase price within 60 days.

Court Does Not Agree

It is now contended by other counsel for the defendants, the jurist said, that "an attorney has no authority to make a binding contract of sale upon his client under the circumstances outlined in this case. With this contention the court cannot agree."

Judge Capper said he feels "it would be an anomoly to hold that attorneys at law with full and complete power to bind their principals in the sale of real estate at a certain price could not make such a sale without referring the matter to their principals for a formal contract."

"The court believes that under the circumstances of this case the sale was fairly made by the offer and that the parties should be bound by the action of their respective attorneys in so doing . . .

"The court, however, does not feel that it is called upon to deal further with the question of the fee of Judge Walsh in this case . . ."

Milton Gerson represented Mr. and Mrs. Daskais in the litigation, Lippel and Charles Z. Heskett represented Mrs. Kline.

Heskett Is Named Member Of State Aviation Group

Charles Z. Heskett, now serving his tenth term as city attorney, was appointed a member of the State Aviation Commission for a three-year term by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor yesterday, according to the Associated Press.

Heskett will fill the vacancy which has existed on the commission since the resignation of Karl F. Steinmann, Baltimore attorney in April, 1945.

The action marks the first time that a member of the five-member commission has been named from outside the Baltimore-Annapolis area. For a number of years Heskett served as director of the Cumberland Municipal Airport when it was in the building stage, and when the Municipal Airport Commission was appointed almost a year ago, Heskett was named a member.

In announcing Heskett's appointment the Governor said the local attorney is considered one of the best informed men in Maryland on aviation problems. The State Bar Association recently listed him as one of those worthy of consideration for appointment to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

The other members of the commission, whose primary function is to develop a state airport plan, are Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, USA (retired), chairman; William K. Ebelt, Mrs. Thelma Elliott Glesin, and William T. Armbruster of Annapolis. The group serves without compensation.
